PYFA names Outstanding Young Farmers

BY JACK HUBLEY

SOMERSET — The naming of this year's outstanding Young Farmers highlighted the Pa. Young Farmers Association's winter convention held at the Ramada Inn, Somerset, on Wednesday and Thursday.

To qualify for the Outstanding Young Farmer under 30, Outstanding Young Farmer over 30, or Outstanding Community Service Awards at the state level, applicants must first receive one of these honors on the regional level.

Regional winners in the "under 30" competition were as follows:

- Region II: David and Judy Gerhart, Solanco Young Farmers Chapter, Lancaster Co.

- Region III: Lee and Kathy Spangler, Union Co.

- Region IV: John Bigham, Gettysburg Chapter, Adams Co.

- Region V: Douglas and Debra Hillegass, Berlin Brothersvalley Chapter, Somerset Co.

- Region VII: David and Phoebe Bitler, Kutztown Chapter, Berks Co.

Regional winners "over 30" were:

- Region II: Dale and Fay Herr, Solanco Chapter, Lancaster Co.

- Region III: Kenneth and Edna

Kathy and Lee Spangler of Union County received the PYFA's Outstanding Young Farmer Award in the under-30 category.

Smith, Middleburg Chapter, Snyder Co.

- Region IV: Ken and Becky Shoenberg, Shippensburg Chapter, Franklin Co.

- Region V: James and Bonnie Ringler, Berlin Brothersvalley

Over-order pricing can save Northeast dairies

BY WENDY WEHR

HARRISBURG Independent and co-op dairymen unite! By joining in a common marketing agency you can institute over-order pricing in the Northeast — and ensure that you and your neighbor receive higher, fairer prices for your milk.

That's the message being delivered by the advocates of an ambitious plan to achieve over-order pricing in the Northeast via the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency, Inc. (RCMA). Arthur Little, RCMA executive director, outlined the organization and its goals to members of the farm press and representatives of Pa. Farmers Union and the State Grange in Harrisburg on Thursday.

Over-order pricing — obtaining a price for milk producers which is higher than the minimum Class 1 prices established under the federal marketing orders — has been successful in some 35 areas throughout the country, with a range of over-order prices from 12 cents to $1.83 per hundredweight being paid to farmers. At the Thursday meeting, Little called for over-order pricing in Federal Orders 1, 2 and 4, and he claimed that RCMA is the logical organization to accomplish the pricing scheme.

During the early 1970's, RCMA then an organization of Northeast co-ops — successfully established over-order prices in New England and Western New York, collecting nearly $22 million over a 18-month period with payments to producers ranging from 3 cents to 85 cents per hundredweight.

Since that time, explained Little, the legality of RCMA was tested in court, and the U.S. Supreme Court upheld over-order pricing and gave the common marketing agency a formal legal basis. Furthermore, he said, RCMA has now been restructured to allow individual producers to become members and be fully represented in the marketing agency.

We are assuring nonco-op members they will have equal representation in RCMA," said Little as he displayed an organizational chart showing independents organized by regions. Directors from the regions and co-ops will meet to determine what over-order pricing according to an economic formula — should be established each month.

But the catch is that for RCMA to achieve over-order pricing and equity for handlers and producers, virtually all dairy farmers must join RCMA.

Total farmer participation

At least 95 percent of the dairy farmers must be members of RCMA either on an individual membership basis or through their cooperative before the program is put into effect, said Little. To accomplish 95 percent sign-up, an estimated 10,000 nonco-op members as well as all dairy cooperatives must sign member marketing agreements.

Some major co-ops, including Danylea, Lehigh Valley and NFDCO, already belong to RCMA.

Builder's Conference features 3 farms

BY JANE BRESEE
Staff Correspondent

TOWANDA — Approximately 70 builders, building supply representatives and agricultural engineers attended the fourth annual Pa. Farm Builders' Conference and Tour on Jan. 30, and 31, at the Elks Club in Towanda, Bradford County.

Sponsored by the Penn State Extension's Department of Engineering, the purpose of the event was to acquaint farm builders with up-to-date information through an all-day tour of two dairy farms, a large veal operation and Masonite Corporation, a manufacturer of hardboard products. Also on the program was a full slate of conference speakers.

Formula I

The tour group bus first stopped near New Albany at Formula I Inc., said to be the largest veal operation in Pennsylvania. The operation began in the early 60's when Walter Newton, a farmer dealing in poultry and feeder lambs, got involved in marketing veal calves. He organized his own veal operation, buying Holstein calves from the stockyard and paying farmers to grow them. He furnished the feed which perfected and patented as Formula I Feeds, Inc. Presently he sells feed into 13 states through a distributor system, and contracts out veal calves to about 30 veal growers in

Though most of us aren't too happy about having to drive in the stuff, it's hard to find fault with a fresh blanket of snow that manages to turn a lackluster winter landscape into a scene from Currier & Ives.

Ask the Old Farmer I have just started learning about making quilts. I have read a little about friendship quilts. But what are they? A neighbor said they are fun to work on. S.H. Hancock N.H.

A friendship quilt is one that is designed, assembled, and sewn by a group of people, then presented to a friend as a gift, or used as a fund raiser.

Home Hints To separate stuck drinking glasses, put the bottom glass in hot water then fill the top one with cold water.

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Beginning of week brings snowstorm. Sleet south mid through end of week partly cloudy cold.

Greater New York-New Jersey: Week begins cold with mixed rain and snow mid through end of week colder, partly cloudy.

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Snowstorm north and mountains rain east at week's beginning, mid through end of week cloudy and cold.

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Start of week mild with rain midweek sunny and cold, rain central, end of week clear and cold.

OUR READERS WRITE, AND OTHER OPINIONS

Case Co. - IH Merger

Dear Editor:

We are watching closely the development of the merger between the Case Co. and International Harvester Co. As farmers in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, we are using 18 tractors and front end loaders, all of which are either International Harvester or Case. In addition, we have a full line of field equipment which is mostly International Harvester.

The Lancaster County area has enjoyed spirited competition between International Harvester and Case dealers. In the past, this has served us well both in terms of fair pricing and reliable service.

A situation which is of grave concern to us at this point is a transaction we experienced in the wake of this merger with the present Case network of dealerships. In late October 1984, we purchased a Case 1845 skid loader for a net price of $20,500. Within a week of this transaction, another authorized Case dealer from Lancaster County was knocking on our door to tell us he could sell us the same loader for $15,500. This sales person implied that we were taken advantage of by his competitor. In checking with the dealer we purchased the loader from and the Case Co., we were told, "Sorry, you bought too early. You missed the additional discount."

Needless to say, we are very unhappy to the tune of $5,000. But of equal importance is our concern of the future Case-International Harvester dealerships in Lancaster County.

OF MY OWN ACCORD
February 10, 1985

Background Scripture:

John 10.

Devotional Reading:

John 10:22-39.

The term "sacrifice" is not heard much today, either in society in general or within the Christian community. When I was young, I heard a great deal about sacrifice as part of our Christian discipleship.

Today it is an unpopular idea, it seems. "Self-fulfillment" is much more likely the ideal that is set before us. Perhaps that is why Sister Theresa is so venerated throughout the world. We can hardly comprehend someone who offers her life for others.

THE CHAPLAIN

It's not just a matter of being willing to die for someone else, but of living for others. Many people can't help wondering about Sister Theresa: "What's in it for her?" they want to know.

St. Martin of Tours was another Christian saint who devoted his life to others. One day, walking through a village, he saw a shivering beggar. Taking off his cloak - capella - he tore it in half and shared it with the beggar. Thereafter, St. Martin was called a "capella lender," from which eventually the term "chaplain" evolved - "one who will lend his coat" to another.

There's a sense in which all Christians are called to be chaplains to one another. Sometimes, of course, it means more than lending a coat; sometimes, it may be one's life that we must lay down for another. This was poignantly demonstrated for us in February, 1943 when the American cargo-transport ship Dorchester was torpedoed in the South Pacific. As it went down, four U.S. chaplains - a Roman Catholic priest, a Jewish rabbi, and two Protestant ministers - gave up their lifebelts so that four soldiers would not have to jump into the water without them. The Dorchester slipped under the water as the four chaplains stood on the deck with their arms entwined and their hearts united in prayer.

I LAY IT DOWN

This loss of the four chaplains was a tragic loss of life, but it is important for us to remember that their lives were not taken from them; they gave their lives. In John 10 Jesus speaks of that same dynamic: "...I lay down my life that I may take it again. No one takes it from me, but I lay it down of my own accord" (10:18).

The four key words have are: "...of my own accord." If my life is taken from me, that is tragic. But if I lay it down of my own accord, then, as Jesus taught, I don't really lose it. In fact, the only way I can lose it is by trying to hang on to it.

There is a certain power in giving ourselves. Jesus said, "I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again" (10:18). Whether "laying it down" means to live or die for others. If we give it for our "own accord," we never truly lose it.

Organic farming

Every major type of livestock is now under attack by disease epidemics - avian influenza in poultry, pseudorabies in swine, John's disease in cattle and Potomac fever in horses. At the same time chemicals are being used on crops and animals are being concentrated in close confinement and given more drugs and antibiotics than ever before. The use of these poisons and unnatural methods have caused these diseases to spread like wildfire. The animals' immune systems have rebelled against their mistreatment.

This past spring I noticed an incredible amount of dandelion growing in alfalfa fields all over this region. So much, in fact, that the alfalfa surely must have been unfit for feed. This was "super" dandelion, a new strain of dandelion which has become resistant to herbicides and thrives on the imbalance caused by huge doses of chemical fertilizers and lack of crop rotation.

A weed will never develop which could withstand being torn out by a plow and left to wither in the sun. Plowing also completely destroys army worms.

Many farmers have been complaining about people throwing litter on their roadside fields and pastures. I am totally opposed to people throwing their trash out of car windows and think that the amount of litter along our roadsides is a disgrace. But, I think that it is ironic that some of these farmers care nothing about the spray drift, fumes, toxic fungus and ground water and stream contamination that comes from their farms and travels onto adjacent lands and miles beyond. Not to mention the tremendous illnesses in people that are caused by the contaminated food they grow. Cancer rates continue to rise.

The American farmer is always portrayed as being very independent, but this is largely a thing of the past. The farmer today does not think for himself. He follows completely and blindly the instructions given to him by the chemical companies, the banks and the USDA, who tell him to spray more, go more into debt and work harder.

To Check Poultry Waterers

Hens without water can cost you money. In one experiment, birds deprived of water for only 24 hours required 24 days to return to normal egg production. In most experiments, after a period of only 36 hours without water, birds never returned to normal. A flock without water for 36 hours or more may molt, then, go through a prolonged period of restricted production. This is especially so in older flocks. If water is restricted for 48 to 60 hours, severe mortality can result from dehydration.

As you walk through your house each day, check the waterers to make sure none are dry or a line is plugged. I am aware of a case where the water line was restricted, by a faulty valve, to the middle row of cages for nearly three days. Mortality was high and production was seriously affected in that row.

A few minutes a day checking waterers can well mean saving a lot of dollars - don't wait until molted feathers are under the cage.

To Be Careful With Fuels

With the greater use of wood for fuel there is need for caution about the use of gasoline or kerosene to start a fire or make it burn faster. Both of these items are explosive and should not be used near an open fire or hot coals. They should be stored in underground tanks or in metal, fireproof containers. Label all containers so there will not be a chance of any mix-up. It is inviting trouble to store gasoline or kerosene in glass jugs or bottles; also it is very dangerous to start burning trash, barbecue pits, or stoves with these materials. Be sure every member of the family understands these fire hazards.

To Evaluate Manure Plant Food

Our agronomist has told farmers for 40 years that a ton of dairy manure is equivalent to 100 pounds of a 5-3-5 fertilizer, but recent research indicates little, if any, nitrogen is available to the crop when manure is spread daily and left exposed to the elements.

Current data has confirmed that a ton of stored dairy manure is equivalent to 100 pounds of 10-3-5 fertilizer. The nutrients in fresh manure are equal to those of inorganic fertilizer for crop production, but more slowly available. In the year of application, about one-half of the nitrogen in manure is available. Studies show that corn fertilized with fresh manure applied and worked into the soil in the spring produced the most corn silage. Yields were lowest when the manure was applied in the fall, left exposed on the soil surface all winter and plowed down in the spring. It's important to manage manure application just as you manage other areas of your operation. Another important factor, by incorporating the manure into the soil immediately, you reduce the possibility of water contamination and odors.

To Train and Prune Trees

General pruning of apple trees should be in full swing at this time of year, especially if you have a lot of pruning to do. I'd like to remind growers and homeowners not to overprune young trees or those which haven't yet started to bear fruit. There is a tendency to either prune the small trees too heavily, or simply to leave them alone. A middle-of-the-road course is best.

The training of young trees should involve just enough cutting to maintain a healthy central leader and to develop the desired number of well-spaced scaffold branches. Branches that are either poorly spaced, or ones making narrow-angled crotches should be removed.

Keep in mind, when you start pruning early - start with your hardier trees, the apple and pear with plum and sour cherries next, and leave your peach till near the end; they're quite tender.

and others, such as the Pennmarva co-ops and Eastern, have expressed their support of over-order pricing and are expected to join RCMA. But organizing the independents is another matter. Listeners at the meeting expressed doubts about the feasibility of organizing all the Northeastern dairy farmers into an industry-wide marketing agency.

But Little gave evidence of independent farmer support for the marketing agency in New York, Vermont, Maine, and other states. Backing up his claims was George Demeree, a Little Falls, N.Y. dairy farmer who is volunteering his time to organize central New York state milk producers to link up with RCMA.

Demeree has enjoined independents and co-op members alike to sign RCMA marketing agreements. He explained that to meet a spring 1985 target date for achieving 95 percent participation, the New York state dairy leaders have organized by state, county, and township, so every dairyman in the state is personally contacted and understands the over-order pricing concept and the opportunity to help themselves by joining with others.

"We hope to find one independent shipper to head up each state, and break it into county and township groups," said Little. In Pennsylvania the RCMA officers, who are currently an interim board of directors made up of co-op representatives, also hope to gain the support of the state's major farm organizations to establish the sign-up network.

Arden Tewksbury, an active member of the Pa. Farmers Union dairy committee and coordinator of the Thursday meeting, expressed his desire to see RCMA negotiating for over-order pricing in the Northeast. "This is really an opportunity to reap benefits without putting anything into it," he said.

No assessment

But Tewksbury also cautioned Little that dairymen are very leery about signing membership agreements. "That word assessment scares people more than anything else," he cautioned.

Little, who works only part-time for RCMA and is the agency's sole employee, allayed Tewksbury's fears about establishing a costly program that will siphon monies from the farmers. "We have taken a firm position not to build up an administrative hierarchy that will be costly to producers," he said.

Of course the costs of implementing over-order pricing will have to be shared by all the members, but the monies can only come from the over-order premiums, not from the members' regular milk checks, reminded Little. Historically, administrative costs of RCMA averaged between one and five mills per hundredweight.

"RCMA does not have any dues," continued Little. "And the RCMA board of directors passed a resolution at the Jan. 4 meeting not to institute any assessment on individual producers until the first over-order price is collected."

"There is no charge to independent producers now, and they're not tied in the first year. If they see it isn't working, they can withdraw with 90 days notice," he added. After the first year, the RCMA marketing agreement is an annual contract with a Jan. 1 withdrawal date.

Equity for all

He further explained how the RCMA will actually work. Under the RCMA agreement the producer will authorize RCMA to market all his milk. But the board of directors has adopted a resolution that delegates back to the member the function of marketing his own milk with the exception of the authority to establish price levels for that milk.

Therefore, member-producers will continue to receive milk checks from their handler for milk shipped at the blend price. The milk processors will pay the difference of the blend price and the over-order price to RCMA, and RCMA will in turn pay that difference to the producer.

This system, explained Little, will allow the over-order pricing program to perform equitably for handlers and producers. Since the over-order price will only apply to Class 1 utilization, all the orders will be pooled to determine Class 1 utilization for the entire Northeast. Every RCMA member will receive the same over-order premium per hundredweight, based on total over-order monies paid by handlers divided by total pounds of Class 1 utilization.

For example, cited Little, assume a hypothetical over-order price on Class 1 milk amounts to $1 per hundredweight and Class 1 utilization of member's milk is 50 percent. Producers will receive 50 cents per hundredweight minus cost of administration.

The RCMA advocate also pointed out that handlers will also be provided equity under the system. Refuting arguments that handlers will object to paying the over-order price, Little said, "They don't care what price it is, just so there is equity."

And Demeree cited an example of a New York State milk inspector who is supporting RCMA. "The dealers realize the farmers need more money to survive," he commented. "Our milk inspector has signed up over 100 RCMA members so far."

What's next?

With all the facts about RCMA laid on the table, the obvious concluding questions were about time frame and additional steps to organize the Pennsylvania dairymen. While Little expressed hope that RCMA would get established in the spring and be negotiating for over-order pricing in late summer or early fall, Demeree stated that March 1 is the New York target date to have all the counties signed up.

In a week or ten days we should have a tremendous task force put together," was Tewksbury's determined comment. "Have them signed up by the end of March."

"I'd like to see a meeting of key members of these dairy committees (PFA, PFU, Grange). We're talking about doing something to give dairy farmers a salvation," declared Tewksbury.

And another listener to the presentation voiced his optimism about the opportunities that RCMA provides. Said Tom Jurchak, Lackawanna County Extension agent and milk-marketing specialist, "I often hear the frustration of farmers who say they individually can't do anything to influence the marketing of milk. I think this is the first thing to come down the road in a long time to give them a chance."

"Look at it this way," added Demeree. "In the month of November with an over-order price of $1 or a 50 cent premium on the blend, we could have collected $9.5 million." Let the dairy farmers think about that, he added.

For further information about RCMA, or copies of the by-laws and membership agreement, dairy farmers can contact Arthur Little, Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency, Inc., 831 James St., Syracuse, N.Y. 13203; or phone 315-476-9101. Or contact Arden Tewksbury, R.D.2, Box 165, Meshoppen, Pa. 18630; or phone 717-833-5776 or 717-833-5749.

Tobacco growers to hold marketing meeting

LANCASTER — Farmers dissatisfied with the current tobacco marketing system utilized in southeastern Pennsylvania are encouraged to attend a tobacco marketing meeting at the Guernsey Barn, on Route 30, east of Lancaster, on Feb. 15, at 7 p.m.

According to Lancaster County Farmers Association president Earl Newcomer, several meetings have been held since the beginning of the year, with as many as 40 tobacco growers attending and voicing their support for an auction-type marketing system similar to that used in Maryland.

At present there are no tobacco auctions held in Pennsylvania, due to a lack of organization and support from growers, said Newcomer.

A representative from the American Farm Bureau's tobacco marketing division will be present to address the Feb. 15 meeting.

Chapter, Somerset Co.

• Region VII: Glenn and Jane Wenger, Cedar Crest Chapter, Lebanon Co.

Regional Community Service winners were:

• Region II: Marlin and Nancy Becker, Manheim Chapter, Lancaster Co.

• Region III: Lee and Sandra Shaffer, Selinsgrove Chapter, Snyder Co.

• Region IV: Raymond and Judith Diebold, Tyrone Chapter, Blair Co.

• Region V: Dale and Carol Leydig, Berlin Brothersvalley Chapter.

• Region VII: Lloyd and Margaret Eberly, Cedar Crest Chapter, Lebanon Co.

Lee and Kathy Spangler were named state winners in the under-30 category. The Spanglers own and operate a 250-acre dairy farm consisting of 84 Holstein cows and 31 replacement heifers. They also farm corn, hay and rye.

Outstanding Young Farmers in the over-30 category were Dale and Fay Herr. The Herrs own and operate a 469-acre dairy farm with 105 Holstein and 70 replacement heifers. They also grow hay, corn and small grains.

Dale and Carol Leydig were selected as recipients of the Community Service Award. The Somerset County residents have three children and operate a 138-acre dairy farm. Their activities include involvement in the Pa. Farmers Association, Holstein Association, Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, Milk Marketing Inc., Agway and the Berlin Brothersvalley schoolboard.

The Outstanding Young Farmer Advisor Award went to Doyle Paul of the Berlin Brothersvalley Chapter. Paul has logged a total of 20 years of Vo-Ag advisory service, beginning with a three-year teaching term in Red Lion, York County, and continuing for the past 17 years in his hometown at the Berlin Brothersvalley High School.

Other awards conferred included the Honorary Chapter Farmer Award given to Richard Hann of Milton Hershey Farms in Hershey, and the Outstanding Young Farmer Chapter award presented to the Berlin Brothersvalley Chapter and received by Doyle Paul.

Twelve cash awards were presented to participants in the PYFA Conservation Tillage program. Sponsored by Pioneer Hybrid, Inc., the tillage program requires participating farmers to commit five acres of corn to the project, using conventional tillage on half the acreage and no-till or minimum tillage practices on the other half. Detailed records are then kept on all phases of the project from planting to harvesting, and a committee evaluates the reports submitted by the farmers at the end of the season.

First-place in the contest went to John Zimmerman of the Ephrata Chapter. Zimmerman received a cash award of $375, with an additional $1,125 going to the chapter.

Average yields for the 12 test plots were 152.1 bushels per acre in the no-till acreage and 155.1 bushels under convention tillage practices.

Commenting on the test results, Pioneer's regional sales manager, John Weidman, noted that the soil savings realized in the no-till acreage more than compensated for the minor loss in bushels per acre. He also noted that the test results for the dry 1983 growing season gave a significant edge to no-till, with no-till plots yielding 90 bushels and conventional plots yielding 74 bushels.

"We at Pioneer are concerned about our soil, and we want our generations down the road to have good topsoil," he said.

The convention's itinerary included tours of Snyder of Berlin, producers of Snyders potato chips and snack foods, and Beatrice Dairy Products, a surplus milk and butter processor located in Somerset. Also featured was an educational workshop on no-till farming, and a look at 1985's dairy program presented by Kathy Gill, of the Pa. Association of Farmer Cooperatives.

Underscoring the importance of good dairy legislation to the farming economy, Ms. Gill noted that the dairy industry generates 13 percent of the nation's agricultural cash receipts. And 90 percent of the country's milk comes from farms where dairy products are the chief source of income.

On a positive note, Gill pointed out that the diversion program has resulted in a three-percent reduction in milk production, and a hefty 50-percent reduction in government dairy product purchases.

But she also pointed out that the present administration was re-elected on a platform of reduced government spending, and the dairy industry is a prime target for budget cuts.

"Regardless of what happens (with farm legislation) we're going to have to get supply and demand more in balance," she stressed. And in order to do this, the price will have to go down, and some dairy farmers will have to go out of business. We can't continue to produce for the government," she concluded.

Also on the slate of convention activities was the election of officers for the coming year. The following officers were named: president, Jay Grove, Shippenburg; president-elect (president for 1986) Dale Rossman, Penns Valley; past president (outgoing) Tom Zartman, Ephrata; secretary, Donald Mooney, Chambersburg; treasurer, Ronald O'Neil, Kutztown; public relations director, David Paul, Berlin.

In addition, the following regional vice presidents were named: Region I, Erick Coolidge, Wellsboro; Region II, Vernon Leininger, Ephrata; Region III, Robert Garrett, New Berlin; Region IV, Glenn Snyder, Gettysburg; Region V, Larry Hay, Berlin; Region VII, Fred Bohn, Tulpehocken.

About 260 members attended the convention, representing 10 percent of PYFA's 2600 statewide membership. Four new chapters were installed, bringing the total chapter membership to 50. These new chapter members were the Greenwood Chapter, from Millerstown; Tyrone Chapter, Blair County; Rockwood Chapter, Somerset County; and the Tulpehocken Chapter from Berks County.

One of 28 state affiliates to the National Young Farmers Association, PYFA is dedicated to the continuing education of its adult farmer members.

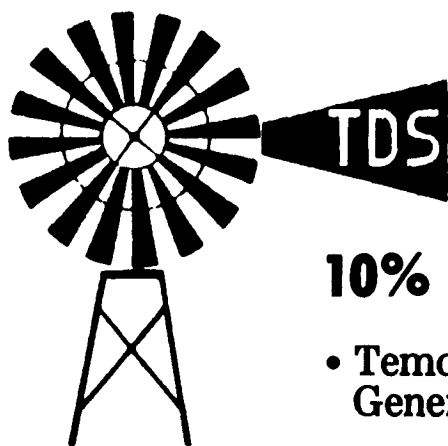

PYFA treasurer Ronald O'Neil (right) presented the Outstanding Young Farmer Advisor Award to Doyle Paul of the Berlin Brothersvalley Chapter, Somerset County.

Winner of the Young Farmers Spokesperson for Agriculture Award was Doris Wilkinson. She will represent PYFA at the National Young Farmers Educational Institute in Indianapolis in December.

Outgoing PYFA president Tom Zartman passed the gavel, along with the responsibilities of his post, to new president Jay Grove of Franklin County.

Plant proof, not promises. Plant T1100.

A lot can happen between now and harvest. Some things you just can't control. So, you control what you can. You start with T1100.

You've seen how T1100 stands up to stress. You've also seen how it yields. Not just on paper. But on your own acres, where all that proof really means something.

Today, T1100 is a field full of potential. Tomorrow, that potential pays off in extra bushels. And extra bushels pay the bills.

Not empty promises.

Md. lists 10 high-priority areas in Bay cleanup

BY JOHN STOKES SCHMIDT
Staff Correspondent

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — There is a growing concern among farmers and non-farmers alike about the deteriorating condition of the Chesapeake Bay and associated waters. Everyone is in agreement that the Bay's condition is worsening at an alarming rate.

Farmers realize their attention to the problems of the Bay is most important. Many water sources begin far inland and go through prime farmland before feeding the Chesapeake. Recognizing this, the Maryland Critical Areas Commission was formed to include a major emphasis on agriculture as well as industry, and residential areas, and to begin the long term project of reversing the current harmful trends. Naturally, many people involved with agriculture know that part of the Bay's future rests with them and their soil conservation practices.

It is difficult to determine the best ways to handle the phosphorus, nitrogen and sediment contents entering the Bay from agricultural origins. Phosphorus must attach to sediment to create a reaction, while nitrogen requires a loam or sandy type soil to trap through ground water which is more difficult.

Farmers are very concerned about the amount of land to be taken out of production to save the bay. At a recent meeting of concerned agricultural groups the main topic of discussion was "buffer zones for critical areas." At this meeting, held at the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) in Annapolis, representatives from Farm Bureau, MDA, Soil Conservation Service, The University of Maryland, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, State Soil Conservation Committee, and other soil conservation groups determined recommendations to the commission. Final results included a recommendation for a flexible buffer zone, such as a 200-foot non-use area with 800 feet remaining available for agriculture.

Lynne C. Hoot, executive secretary of MDA, stated the ten priority areas in order of importance as follows:

- 1 Double Pipe Creek, Carroll County, Maryland
- 2 Upper Potomac
- 3 Upper Monocacy
- 4 Deer Creek
- 5 Nassawango Creek
- 6 Catocin
- 7 Upper Choptank
- 8 Lower Wicomico
- 9 Upper Pocomo
- 10 Upper Wicomico

The major goals to be presented to Judge Solomon Liss, chairman of Maryland's Critical Areas Commission, are as follows:

- 1 The institution of proper soil conservation practices in the 10 priority watershed areas
- 2 The institution of proper soil conservation practices on every farm within 10 years. To assist in this effort, the MDA will acquire 42 new positions as of July 1, 1985 for this agriculture initiative.

Among these, two conservation technicians and one planner will be assigned to each priority area.

Flexibility is the key for enforcement purposes. Pending legislation in final form should focus on many guidelines for regulation and enforcement. In a given situation, failure to cooperate with any final regulations will result in a combined effort of the Health Department and the Department of Agriculture to handle refusals.

Other major concerns of farmers will be taken into account. Agricultural land values, equity and financing will be considered for those land owners who lose land in a critical area. In all areas the percentage of land in agriculture and the slope of the land will also be major factors.

For more information contact either Anne Sieling, executive secretary of the Maryland Soil Committee or Rosemary Rosewell of the Soil Conservation Administration.

Milk ads tout health theme

SYRACUSE — Exercise and proper nutrition have become a major part of the American lifestyle. Dairy farmers locally and nationally will remind consumers to make milk a part of this healthy lifestyle through phase two of their "Milk's Got More" advertising campaign.

In the new campaign, the "Milk's Got More" theme is used in conjunction with a new song which calls milk "America's favorite health kick." Three thirty second ads have been developed for the campaign and are targeted at the 18 - 35 year old age group. Throughout the ads, people are shown in a variety of action situations such as jogging, bicycling, lifting weights and dancing. The background music urges Americans to "get on a health kick/Milk's Got More."

The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, representing farmers from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, will invest $4.5 million into local television advertising for the campaign during 1985. The majority of these ads will be purchased during prime time television programs.

The "Milk's Got More" campaign will be used by the majority of milk promotion agencies around the country as well as by the National Dairy Board. This cooperation in advertising themes brings the greatest return on dairy farmer investments by bringing consumers one unified message.

The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council is the local promotion agency for the 20,000 dairy producers from the Federal Order 2 areas of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. It has offices in Syracuse, New York and Williamsport, Pennsylvania.

By helping the 4-H and FFA, we're helping all of us.

In the Agri-Finance Department of Hamilton Bank we finance projects for active 4-H and FFA members

That's because we believe that helping preserve the family farm is one of the best ways to insure a better future for us all. And that involves working with our young people.

It's important to give them guidance, instill the proper values, and help them acquire the skills they need to be successful farmers.

The 4-H and FFA are working toward these goals. And so we support their efforts. If you, or someone in your family needs money for a project, stop by and see us. It just might help us all.

Economist addresses Inter-State 3 members

BY WENDY WEHR

CHESTNUT LEVEL — Members of Inter-State District #3, Southern Lancaster Local, met for their annual dinner meeting on Tuesday, January 29, in Chestnut Level. Addressing the group was Inter-State economist James Fraher and Robert B. McSparran, District #3 director and president of the Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative board of directors.

Fraher discussed the supply and demand situation both nationally and locally. He predicted that the outlook nationally is for production to increase, with a greater availability of feed and a better milk-feed price relationship in 1985. Farmers can expect a decline in Order 4 blend prices in the coming year, however, because of the national supply situation, which will mean continued government purchases and the triggering of the two price support cuts in April and July of this year, he explained.

As well as offering comments on the national outlook, Fraher also briefly reviewed the local situation. With a high demand for raw milk and manufactured products, there is a strength in prices regionally, he said.

Although a reduced volume at Inter-State's Holly milk plant is forcing the plant to operate below the break-even point, he added, Holly's losses are offset by the increased regional demand and higher prices.

Holly is also venturing into the manufacturing of whole milk powder, which is primarily used in candy. This move into a new commercial market, coupled with Holly's flexibility in handling excess milk during weekends and holidays, allows it to serve the purpose for which it was designed, said Fraher, that of balancing Inter-State's supply.

Referring to the 1985 Farm Bill as a "crucial piece of legislation," Fraher also reminded the District #3 members to pay attention to the supply management debate that will emerge. He suggested the dairymen will see a "movement to the market," whereby price support levels will be more sensitive to supply and demand, and possibly to the farmers' production costs.

"I would urge you as individual producers to follow that debate and make your views known," concluded Fraher.

Both Fraher and President McSparran reminded the Inter-State members of their responsibilities to the co-op. Said Fraher, "You are the owners of your co-op. We work for you and need your participation to know what you're thinking, so we can do a better job for you."

And McSparran reassured the dairymen of the strength of their co-op. "You are shipping to a strong market, a market of integrity," he emphasized.

Also encouraging the members to take an active role in their co-op was Jay Ranck, delegate. He reported on the Inter-state Annual Meeting, and said that members who are asked to serve as delegates should think seriously about the opportunity.

McSparran also reviewed the work of the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board, citing the focus of the dairy promotion campaign. He urged all of the farmers to support the referendum to continue the 15 cent mandatory advertising program.

"After all, we have a product that can't be matched," said McSparran. "$150 million is not too much to recover our milk market."

Reinforcing McSparran's comments were a short film about the promotion efforts of the National Dairy Board and a slide program entitled "Osteoporosis and You."

Also reporting at the meeting was Edward L. Zug, a finalist in the Young Cooperators' Contest who earned the opportunity to attend the American Institute for Cooperatives in Bozeman, Montana. And McSparran, praising the Young Cooperator program, encouraged the "young people to learn more about their own co-op and others."

Special guests at the annual meeting included Lancaster County Agent Jay Irwin, alternate dairy princesses Kris Esbenschade and Sarah Arrowsmith, and, from the Solanco Ag department, Dr. Arba Henry.

Henry introduced members of the Solanco FFA Chapter and reminded the group that the Solanco dairy judging team was third in the nation this year. He also thanked the farmers for allowing the students to come onto their farms for practice sessions.

Receiving small monetary awards at the meeting were five 4-H members who achieved top scores on their 4-H dairy project records. They were: Helen Arrowsmith, Sarah Arrowsmith, Tom Arrowsmith, Susan Hess, and Cindy Gordon.

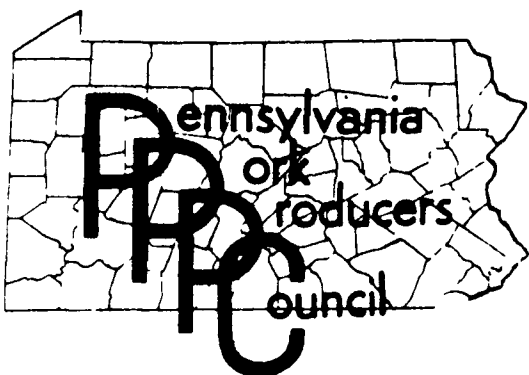

Chairing the annual meeting was Scott Kreider, vice-president of the Southern Lancaster Local.

James and Virginia Hess, left, received recognition from Robert McSparran, Inter-State Director, for 5 years of participation in the co-op's cost of production study.

Wisconsin NFO members recruit Pa. farmers

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

DOYLESTOWN — Fifteen dairymen from Wisconsin spent last week going door to door throughout Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York. Their efforts were on behalf of the National Farmers Organization, a national collective bargaining organization for farmers. "They believe in this thing enough that they would come this far to tell a story," states William Gargas, Winding Brook Farm, Warrington, Bucks County NFO president.

Although membership in Pennsylvania is sparse, the National Farmers Organization is widely recognized throughout the nation. The group seeks to recruit farmers to join the membership and place their products, whether milk, meat, grain, eggs, etc., behind them. The NFO then bargains with large processors for a better price. The products are never purchased by the organization, just talked together for greater bargaining power.

"Title is never gained to a product," Gargas goes on to explain. "Once you gain title, you can no longer bargain because then you would be trying to get a higher price for something that you're buying," he adds referring to the milk co-op's structure.

"We're building a new system for pricing farmers' products. The cost production, plus a profit, is our goal," he states. "Everything was previously priced by whoever buys it. We're the only industry that let's this happen."

"This is what farmers must do themselves. NFO has the answer," he concludes.

Gargas is a dairy farmer in Bucks County. He currently sells his milk through an NFO contract to Cumberland Farms, New Jersey. Gargas maintains that the NFO needs 15 percent of the nation's milk production behind them to make their system work. When this is accomplished, he explains, products will be priced through contracts to large processors by the cost of production.

Regarding milk contracts, Carol Sukowatey, Spring Valley, Wisconsin, states, "We have more contracts than we have production." She explains that the contracts specify amounts and availability and are localized in state areas for NFO members.

Sukowatey is one of the Wisconsin visitors in Pennsylvania to talk to farmers about the NFO. "Farmers seem to listen better if we come from another state," she says.

Sukowatey farms 1000 acres and milks 100 cows with her two sons in Pierce County, Wisconsin. A NFO member for 24 years, Sukowatey lost her husband to lung cancer three years ago. She's an active farmer and states, "We all have to work together to hold that farm together."

"We're losing our young farmers back home," she says. "They're going bankrupt and their farms are being sold."

"Basically it's just because we do not have a decent price for our farm products," she adds. "We only have about 55 percent of parity and it's only about half of what we should get."

The county secretary in her own local NFO, Sukowatey continues,

"The NFO is the way to go to save ourselves. We block together so we have more power."

"We're competitive and we move milk around. If someone doesn't want to talk to us, we take it (our products) somewhere else."

She also explains that the NFO has regional offices and local boards (for meat, milk, grain, eggs, etc.) and inspects the products to monitor quality. "We're also guaranteed a milk check," Sukowatey points out. Contract payments go into a trust fund and payments are made to producers twice a month, regardless of when the buyer makes payment on the contract. At the end of the month, leftover funds are paid back to the producers after expenses are deducted.

"We waited for the co-op structure to solve our problems, but now we (the NFO) have the structure," she continues. "We're concerned with all farmers. All we want to is our fair share."

The NFO cull cow contracts program in Wisconsin is currently working very well. Contracts are made directly with the packers, beef is gathered and sold directly. If the price falls below 72 cents hanging weight, NFO announces a "marketing vacation" and farmers wait until the price returns to what they need.

"I sit right in the middle of that area that produces the most milk in the nation, Minnesota and Wisconsin," Sukowatey continues. "We argue whether there is definitely a surplus. It might be a surplus in a certain area, but we can move it out and it will be consumed," she states.

She also cites the government for not publicizing the fact that the diversion program "actually didn't cost the government anything." She says, "It made milk shorter and it was harder to fill contracts, but we talked to more farmers so we could fill them."

Sukowatey observes that Pennsylvania "is an interesting place. It's much older than in our part of the country," she adds. "The urban sprawl shocks me a little. They're going to look for someone else to produce their food years down the road," she states.

"The problems seem the same; not enough price for our milk," Sukowatey continues. "But we can do it (change the prices), and we better before it's too late. We have a very big job on our hands."

Gargas echoes the same sentiments. "There's no doubt at all in my mind. The biggest stumbling block is the farmers themselves

"We must get the farmers convinced that it's the right way to go and to put their production behind the NFO," he states.

"We're getting very good acceptance from farmers," Gargas adds. The interstate dairymen exchange program enables farmers to visit with each other, compare state problems and discuss NFO concepts. "It's very productive," according to Gargas.

He urges farmers to consider the National Farmers Organization and to "band together for greater power at the bargaining table."

York Agribusiness Seminar to feature Walter Beuscher

YORK — Walter Beuscher, of Sperry New Holland, will be the featured speaker for the 22nd annual Agribusiness Seminar on Thursday, Feb. 28, at the York Fair Banquet Center.

"Horses Don't Bet On People." Beuscher's humorous marketing message, will open the afternoon session of the day-long seminar on the theme of "The American Farmer's Dream." York County Extension Service and the York Chamber of Commerce are co-sponsors.

Other topics planned for the morning program include financial management planning, featuring Richard Denison, manager of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association management services, and Jack Crane Sperry New Holland, and Claude Hess, poultry producer, speaking on farm computer use.

Penn State economist H. Louis Moore takes a look at the future of ag marketing, following Beuscher's keynote address, and insurance specialists Walter Jeffers, Agri-Business Insurance Center, and Kim Patrono, Geesey, Glatfelter and Zarfoss Agency, wrap up the day with a look at insurance and estate planning.

Time is also allotted over the day for participants to visit various booths and displays by agribusiness firms.

Luncheon reservations are $10 and are due by Thursday, Feb. 21, at the York Area Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 1229, York, PA 17405.

Dennis Grumbine supports Pa. swine industry

BY DONNA McCONAUGHEY
Staff Correspondent

MYERSTOWN — The Pennsylvania Swine Breeders Cooperative presents an award to someone who has made an outstanding contribution to the purebred swine industry in the Keystone state nearly every year. Some of the past recipients have been long-time promoters such as Dwight Younkin, Glenn Kean, Henry Gruber, Clyde McConaughy Sr., and Jay Harold Little.

The 1985 recipient is Dennis L. Grumbine, another strong supporter of Pennsylvania agriculture and the swine industry in particular.

Dennis has served as president of the Swine Co-op for several years but was not at all aware of his own honor. It took many "stories" on the part of the selection committee to keep Dennis uninformed as to the recipient during the 1985 Farm Show, when the award was presented.

Recipients are selected by fellow purebred swine breeders who pass their suggestions along to the selection committee, composed of the past three recipients and the vice president of the Co-op. Through the years an atmosphere of suspense and support has been in the air during the bred gilt sales as exhibitors await the announcement.

Qualities exemplified by recipients highlight their long-term commitment to purebred swine in Pennsylvania. These breeders typically are active in their respective breed, in the Pork Producers Council, Swine Co-op, and often sit on various swine task forces. Particularly highlighted is a "team spirit" or active promotion of all breeds and the overall products of the purebred swine industry.

Dennis Grumbine's first statements after receiving the award included his "feeling somewhat old" as he compared himself to many past recipients who were several years older than him. Although relatively young, Dennis has already made contributions to the purebred industry comparable to past recipients.

Throughout the swine barn, fellow breeders offered both their praise and congratulations to Dennis. Their reflections on his service included, "Dennis has done more for swine in Pennsylvania than we have seen done by anyone else for several years."

Dennis is active in many aspects of Pennsylvania agriculture, but it is easy to see how he manages to commit so much time and effort to purebred swine when one realizes how important hogs are to him.

The entire Grumbine family is involved in their Berkshire operation as well as many other ag organizations. From left are Darren, Dennis, Barbara and Daryl.

Dennis purchased his first Berkshire bred gilt from Clayton Dotterer of Lenhartsville in the early 1960's. He had also purchased stock at the National Berkshire Type Conference in Harrisburg near that same time.

Dennis, like many breeders, "will never forget" his first litter of pigs. He kept two or three gilts from that first Berkshire bred gilt and sold the rest for fifteen cents a pound — "Not the best investment I've ever made."

Dennis was committed to starting his hog herd from the beginning and utilized his persuasive skills when he convinced his father to let him raise hogs. His parents were involved in feeding cattle, vegetable farming and eventually crop farming.

Dennis' father has never had a "love" for hogs. "Probably the best lobbying job I have ever done was to convince my father to drive me to the farm to buy my first pig," says Dennis.

Dennis' swine herd has included Hampshire, Landrace, and Chester White hogs over the years, but has always been predominately Berkshire. He began showing hogs at the South Lebanon Fair and eventually worked his way through other county fairs in the region and on to the state fair circuit. In his "younger" days Dennis recalls the all-night run in trucking his show stock from Syracuse and the New York State Fair to Maryland State. He has claimed many championships and more than six premier exhibitor awards for his

Berkshires at the New York State Fair.

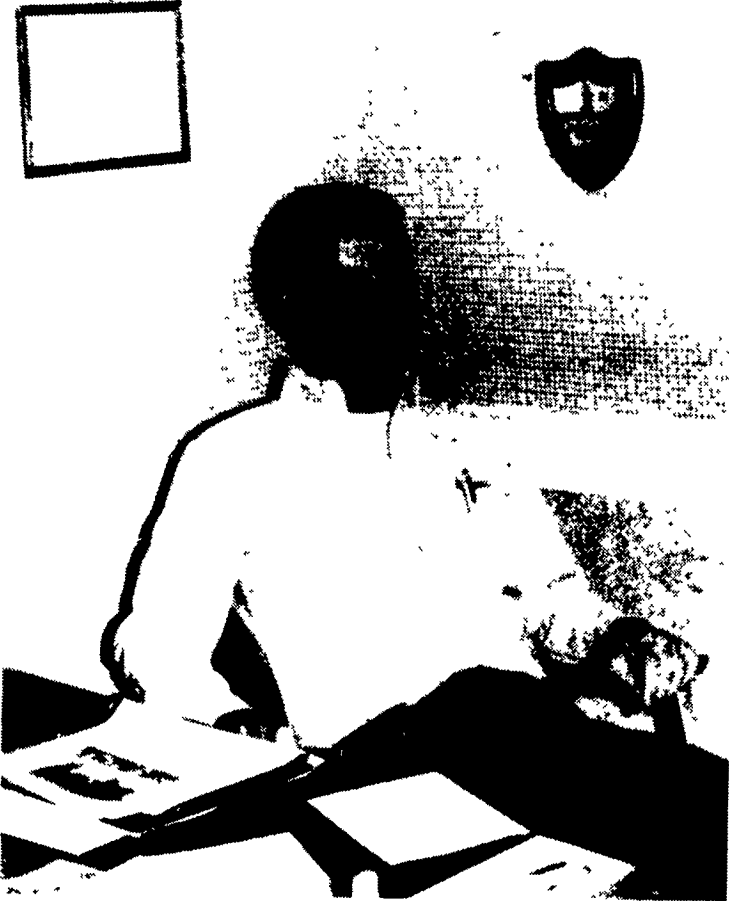

One of his most memorable show experiences occurred early when he thought he had "two exceptional February gilts." They had won at several regional shows so Dennis entered them in the Livestock Exposition (now KILE). They placed twenty-second and twenty-third in the class. "I knew I only had one way to go at that point," notes Dennis. This is typical of Dennis' willingness to accept a challenge.

The Grumbine name has become associated with high quality Berks. Dennis has owned the three highest selling Berkshire bred gilts ever sold at the Farm Show. Dennis plans to continue exhibiting at shows and sales as long as he possibly can.

Throughout his years of showing, Dennis has made a very concise observation. "I am convinced that showing livestock becomes an addiction. That competitive spirit appears to only leave you under one condition — cold and stiff and in a casket."

Dennis Grumbine was the 1985 recipient of the Pennsylvania Swine Breeders Co-operative Distinguished Service Award.

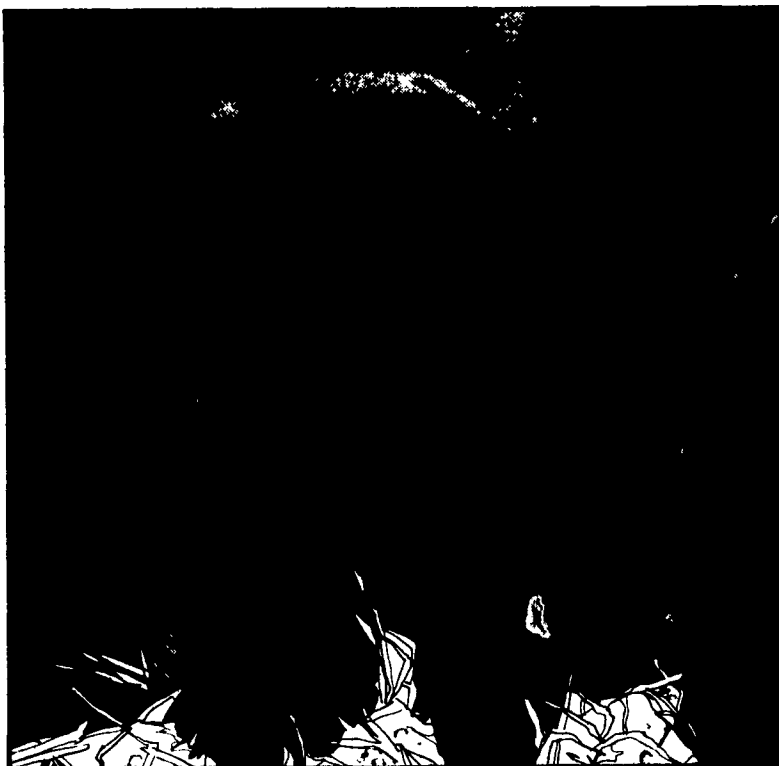

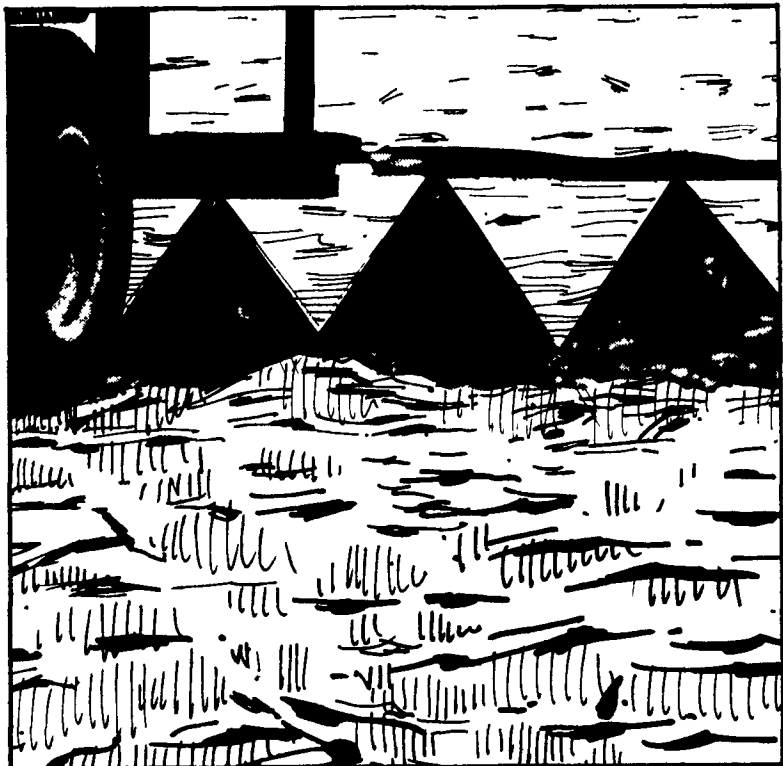

Dennis shows off some of his late fall pig crop which promises many excellent breeding stock prospects.

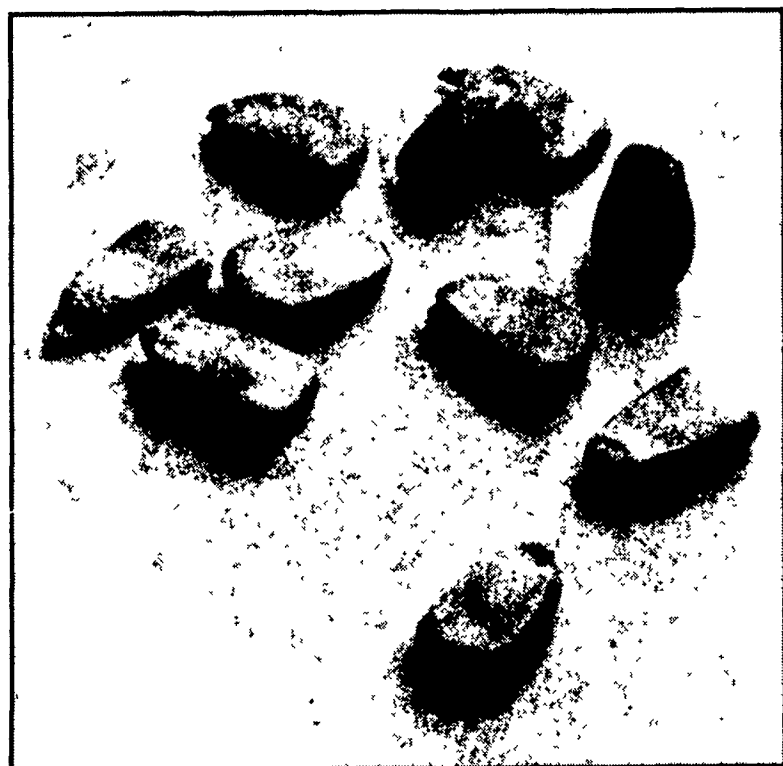

The Grumbines exhibited the reserve champion gilt at the National Type Conference held in conjunction with the 1984 KILE.

Lancaster Co. beef, sheep clubs honor members

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LANCASTER — Lancaster County 4-H beef and sheep club members, parents, leaders and sponsors gathered at the Farm and Home Center Thursday evening to recognize the outstanding livestock club members.

While the spotlight touched on many during the evening's festivities, it paused longest on the county's senior livestock judging team which placed first in the state and sixth in national competition with 37 teams.

"It's been a dream come true," one of the team's members said of the group's success. Members of the livestock judging team are Brian Hess, Jan Waltz, Michelle Dean and Fritz Frey.

The team had special thanks for their coaches, extension livestock agent Chester Hughes and Gary Dean.

The junior livestock judging team, consisting of members Emily Weaver, Joe Garber, Ellen Lewis and Tricia Musser, also had a successful year, placing second in the state. They received awards for their achievements.

Placing third in state competition was the meats judging team. Members Margaret Herr, Jay Reiff, Bryan Whitman and Jennifer Wolgemuth received awards for their participation on this team.

Many other beef club members were also recognized for their successes during the year. Kelly Rohrer showed the grand champion steer at Farm Show, keeping the honor in the County for the second consecutive year. Last year, Jan Waltz had the top Farm Show steer, and this year, he owned the county champion heifer.

Kelly Rohrer also received awards for the reserve champion steer at county roundup and for being part of the grand champion trio at Farm Show.

Fritz Frey was recognized as the champion showman at Farm Show and also had the reserve county champion heifer.

Joe Garber showed the grand champion steer at roundup and Brian Hess was named champion showman. The reserve champion showman at roundup went to Margaret Herr, who was also named champion showman at the Southeast District 4-H show and was a member of the champion trio there as well.

Rounding out the champion trio were Jeremy Longenecker and Jay Reiff, who also showed the

Other beef club awards went to Greg Musser for highest daily beef gain and to Anita Meck for the best beef record book.

A new award designed to recognize an individual or family who excelled in attendance, attitude, participation, interest, effort and project score, was awarded this year to Rob and Matt Rush.

The Lancaster 4-H Woolies also had their share of recognition at the livestock banquet. The Woolies were especially pleased with an increase in membership from 12 to 35 for the year.

Tricia Musser carried away the coveted Lancaster County

Shepherd of Year award, which includes a rotating trophy and a $150 savings bond. Tricia was also recognized for showing the reserve champion market lamb in the county and the champion middleweight market lamb at Farm Show. She also received an award for having the best Woolies Club record book.

Arlisa Snavelly also had a successful year with the Woolies Club, exhibiting the champion bred and owned lamb at roundup. She also received recognition for showing the champion junior Shropshire ewe and the reserve champion junior Shropshire ewe at Farm Show. Arlisa was also champion showman in the junior division

Expansion and innovation are hallmarks of Schrack dairy

BY WENDY WEHR

LOGANTON — Talk to Dan Schrack, and he'll probably tell you he's a survivor. He's been farming his whole life in Clinton County, and he's making sure — no matter what the farm economy — that his family will be earning their livelihoods from farming long after he's gone.

To ensure a farming future for his son and three daughters, Schrack has combined growth, innovation, and a certain self-sufficiency in a family farm enterprise that's hard to overlook in central Pennsylvania.

Located just west of Loganton, Clinton County, the Schrack farm business is a 240-cow dairy operation. And to feed all those hungry Holsteins, the family tills 1,000 acres on several farms in the valley. Such a massive operation wasn't built in a day.

"When I was 17 years old, I bought my first farm," states Schrack. Together with his brother, Schrack grew potatoes for a living, hauling them to the market in Pittsburgh to be sold for 36 cents per 15-pound bag. But the promise of a more stable income soon led Schrack into the dairy business.

From then on, the Schrack operation was marked by continual expansion, both of farmland and dairy cattle. In addition to his first purchased farm, Schrack also took over his father's 150-acre farm, a family homestead dating back to 1774, and several neighboring farms.

Today they own 8 farms, totalling 1,000 acres with 650 tillable. Renting three other farms brings the total land tiller to roughly 900 acres. Nearly 500 acres of alfalfa and 400 of corn are raised to nourish the dairy herd, which has followed a similar pattern of growth.

"One New Year's Day we tore down the old Dutch L-shaped barn," remembers Schrack about some of their first building projects to house the dairy herd. The milking parlor was constructed 27 years ago, back in the days when Schrack and his wife, Shirley, were handling 80 cows by themselves.

Today the 240 milking head and additional young stock are housed in several pole sheds in a free-stall operation. "We have three 40 by 200 pole sheds, and each shed has two groups of cows in it," explains Schrack. Although some calves and heifers now share part of this housing, there is room for 400 cows. "We try to expand ahead of the number of cattle," adds Schrack.

Two other barns also are used to house young stock, which includes 100 bred heifers.

With such an expanding operation, an expanded labor force is required too. "Besides the family, we have five full-time employees," explains Schrack, "one of whom is a full-time carpenter." Family help includes, among others, his wife, Shirley, son, Kevin, three married daughters, a son-in-law, and a brother. "And altogether my wife usually has 16 people to feed at dinnertime," laughs Schrack.

And Schrack admits that "one guy can hardly manage anymore" with such a large operation, so he's glad to have his son and son-in-law working on the farm full-time. "A year ago I retired from milking," says Schrack. "Most of my time is spent in the fields and shop. And someone has to oversee this many hired men. And then there's parts and materials."

Son Kevin, a Penn State agriculture grad, has taken over responsibility as herdsman. Together with his father, who earned his Master Farmer award in 1972, they ensure that expansion of the farm operation goes hand in hand with a certain measure of innovation. Just one example of that is their purchase of a microcomputer last fall.

Kevin explains that the computer is used mainly to help him maintain the management records for the herd, but eventually the farm's accounting records will go onto the computer as well.

"Before, Dad would ask me a question, say, what percent of the herd is heifers and what are they averaging," illustrates Kevin. Searching through the DHI records was a lengthy process to answer those questions. Now the computer will sort the herd records in one minute and put the information on the screen, he says.

"It probably doesn't save time in record-keeping, in entering the information, but when you get the information out, that's the real savings," adds Kevin.

What he looks forward to is "more computerization in the milking parlor some day." With the automatic transfer of milk weights he'll then be able to save the two hours or so it now takes to punch in the numbers from the DHI sheets.

"We will have to go to another milking parlor then. But we'll wait until the bugs are worked out and the computerized systems are proven and protection is build," says Kevin.

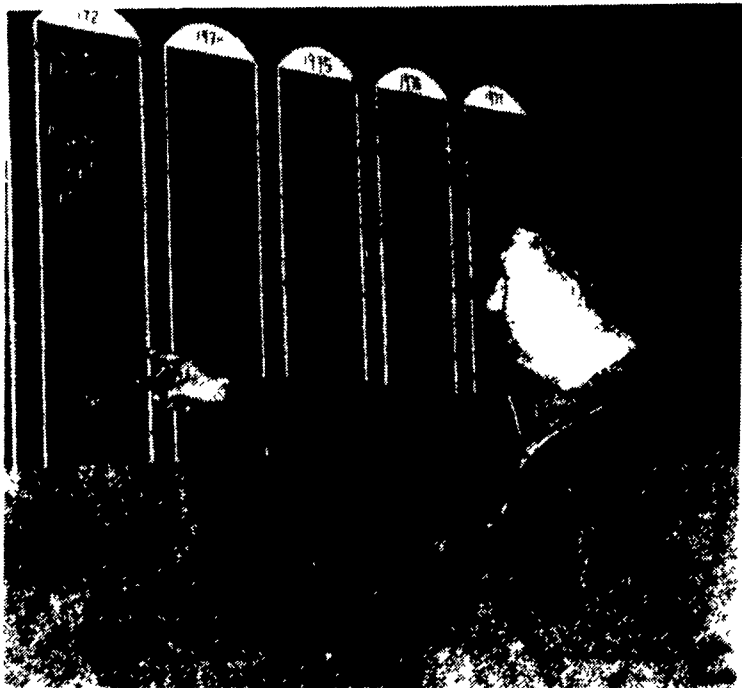

The feeding program for the Schrack herd is also entered into the computer. The cows are divided into four production groups, a dry cow group and also a sick-cow and mastitis group. In the spring a further division will be made by dividing up the dry cows.

Now the cows that are two weeks to 10 days from freshening are moved into the low production group, but that's been "quite a problem mineral-wise," says Kevin.

Dan Schrack explains that they record the contents of each of the sealed storage units. Date of harvest, crop, and field or farm are all listed on the board in the feed room.

Kevin Schrack handles herd management with the help of a recently purchased microcomputer.

Quality forage is a top priority for Dan Schrack. In 1979 he had the top yield in the state alfalfa contest sponsored by the Pa. Forage and Grassland Council, and in the past five year's he's continued to outproduce most farmers.

The Schrack farm complex is hard to miss with nine Harvestores jutting into the sky.

USDA official, PSU researcher to be featured at Conservation Tillage Conference

LANCASTER — The Fourth Annual Lancaster County Conservation Tillage Conference will be held at the Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster, starting at 9:00 a.m., Tuesday, February 26.

Two featured speakers for the morning session of this year's conference are Peter C. Myers, Assistant Secretary for Natural Resources and Environment, U.S. Department of Agriculture, and Dr. Dale Baker, a researcher at the Pennsylvania State University.

The afternoon session will feature a comprehensive review of the Lancaster County Conservation District's tillage plot program and a panel of farmers talking about their tillage programs.

Peter Myers was the seventh person to head the USDA, Soil Conservation Service, which is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year. This month, Myers was named to replace John Crowell as Assistant Secretary of Agriculture. Myers is a long-time cooperator with his local conservation district in Madrid County, Missouri. He raises row crops and manages a "farrow-to-finish" hog operation on his 1,100 acre farm.

He has practiced conservation tillage for the past 10 years and considers erosion to be "America's No. 1 long-term resource problem." He was vice president of Missouri Pork Producers' Association, belongs to the American Soybean Association, Missouri Cattlemen's Association, and the Soil Conservation Society of America. Recently, Chief Myers served in Missouri on the governor's task force on soil conservation and the governor's advisory council on agriculture.

Dr. Dale Baker will speak on the topic of "Nutrient Management and Its Importance to the Chesapeake Bay." Lancaster's increased incidence of ground water pollution and heavy use of manure and fertilizer has brought Dr. Baker to eastern Lancaster County to conduct research related to nutrient management. He has been working on about 30 sites in the Rural Clean Water Program monitoring the flow of soil nutrients.

Of special concern is the nitrate nitrogen remaining in the soil after a crop has been grown and harvested. Hopes are to have the data from the 1984 season processed by this February meeting as it will give those attending better guidelines for the management of their nutrients.

John Hauck of Chevron Chemical Company will address the subject of cover cropping. Having an established cover crop or good residue on the soil surface is the key to erosion control in the no-till cropping system.

In the afternoon, Gerald Heistand, Lancaster County Conservation District's conservation tillage specialist, will report on two special projects. Heistand has been in charge of the corn planter rental program and a series of corn tillage plots scattered throughout the county. Various farmers using 3 types of planters will give an excellent case for Murphy's Law, "If anything can go wrong, it will." Second, about half of the farmers who put out demonstration plots were not veteran no-tillers. Therefore, mistakes were made. A lot has been learned from these mistakes. This is the type of information that will be passed on at the conference.

Most everyone enjoys hearing directly from farmers who are experienced in conservation tillage. Again, this year, we have a talented group of farmers on the panel. A topic one of the farmers, Robert Berkheimer of Mechanicsburg, will address is manure management in a no-till situation.

The whole conference will prove to be an educational experience. Chevron Chemical Company and equipment dealers of the county are co-sponsoring the conference.

Lunch is being offered at a subsidized cost of $3.00 for those who attend and register. For further information call Gerald Heistand at the District Office, 299-5361.

National forage conference upcoming

UNIVERSITY PARK — The 1985 annual Forage and Grassland Conference, sponsored by the American Forage and Grassland Council in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council and The Pennsylvania State University, will be held March 4-6 at the Hershey Motor Lodge and Convention Center, according to John P. Baylor, conference organizer.

The conference officially opens on Mon., March 4 with a special luncheon. More than 50 scientists, farmers and industry representatives will give presentations on the latest developments in forage and grassland management during the three days. The afternoon general session features selected topics important to the forage industry. Monday evening there will be a celebration and banquet to recognize the 25th anniversary of the Pennsylvania Forage Council, the first of its kind in the United States.

Tuesday's program includes: 1. Improving Forage Crops and Grasslands Through Plant Breeding and Genetics, 2. Forage Preservation, Quality, and Ruminant Nutrition, 3. Humid Grazing Lands - Management and Utilization, 4. Range and Native Grasslands Management and Utilization, and 5. New Developments in the Forage Industry. American Forage and Grassland Council's annual awards banquet will take place Tuesday evening.

On Wednesday, two nationally recognized speakers will zero in on issues of concern to the forage-livestock industry. Peter C. Myers, chief, Soil Conservation Service, will discuss "Conservation Issues of the Day" and Burdette Breidentern, director of research, National Livestock and Meat Board, will consider "The Role of Red Meat and Other Animal Products in the United States Diet."

The conference will end with a luncheon on Wednesday. "The total conference is geared to top forage-livestock producers as well as those serving the producer including ag-industry and scientists," Baylor emphasizes. There are currently 20 state councils affiliated with American Forage Grassland Council in the United States. Representatives from all affiliated councils are expected to be present.

An excellent program has also been organized for the many spouses expected to attend.

Comments sought

on F. O.2 amendment

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Comments will be accepted until Feb. 16 on a U.S. Department of Agriculture recommended decision to amend the Middle Atlantic federal milk marketing order.

The recommended decision is based on the record of a public hearing held last September in Alexandria, Va.

Edward T. Coughlin, dairy official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service in Washington, D.C., said the amendments would provide that a reserve processing facility that is connected by pipeline to another person's facility located on the same premises be considered a separate plant if the pipeline is used only to move by-products between the two facilities.

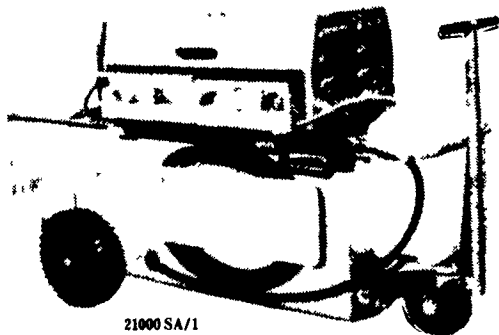

The amendments were proposed by Atlantic Processing, Inc., a federation of four cooperatives. The amendments are necessary to reflect current marketing conditions, Coughlin said.

The recommended decision was published in the Feb. 1 Federal Register. Copies also may be obtained from Joseph D. Shine, market administrator, P.O. Box 710, Alexandria, Va. 22313 — phone (703) 549-7000; or Dairy Division, AMS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Comments should be sent to the Hearing Clerk, room 1077-S, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250, where anyone may see them.

DEALER INQUIRIES INVITED

Conservation districts to ask legislators for more cost share funds

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Officials from the state's 24 local soil conservation districts will ask the state legislature to increase the amount of cost share funds that farmers can receive for installing practices to prevent sediment and nutrients from polluting the Chesapeake Bay.

Under the state's agricultural water quality cost share program, farmers can receive 87-1/2 percent of the cost of installing erosion or animal waste control practices, up to $5,000 per project and $25,000 per farm. At their conference in Ocean City recently, Maryland Association of Soil Conservation District members voted to ask the state legislature to raise the project limit to $10,000. The cap on the amount each farm is eligible to receive would stay at $25,000.

The high cost of installing animal waste management systems prompted the action. According to MASCD officials, the average cost of building waste systems in Maryland, based on an average dairy herd size of 73, is $29,000. Many farmers cannot afford to build these structures since they can only recover about 25 percent of that investment, mostly by substituting the organic nutrients contained in livestock manure for chemical fertilizer.

Agriculture's role in the Bay cleanup was a recurring theme throughout the two-day meeting. Richard R. Nagel, U.S. Soil Conservation Service, announced that his agency has received $125,000 to provide farmers with increased technical help in designing and building conservation practices.

Ralph Adkins, cooperative extension service, said his agency will establish best management practices on a demonstration farm to study their effectiveness and cost efficiency.

According to Gould Charshee, Dept. of Health and Mental Hygiene, all 20 of the cases of agricultural water pollution reported last year were resolved voluntarily by the landowner. He said his agency will work closely with soil conservation districts to see that any farmer cited for water quality violations gets the technical help they need to correct the problem voluntarily.

William Eichbaum, assistant secretary of the health department, said his agency will be spending $2 million annually through the end of the century to monitor water quality in the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries. The monitoring program will help determine if efforts to stop pollution are working.

On another note, Graham T. Munkittrick, assistant chief for SCS, said "nationally, our need for farmland during the next 50 years may not be as great as many of us thought just five or ten years ago. Advances in technology are likely to continue to increase yields and allow farmers to double-crop a much larger acreage."

He warned, however, that an increase in yields and food exports to foreign countries may put greater demand on land and water resources. This could lead to various kinds of degradation, including erosion, compaction, and salinity, Munkittrick said.

MASCD members also voiced concern over Office of Management and Budget proposals to cut federal conservation efforts by eliminating the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service and curtailing the budget of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Norman Berg, a district supervisor for Anne Arundel County and former SCS Chief, said OMB proposals would devastate the national conservation program.

MASCD members also voted to petition Secretary Block to fill the SCS Chief position, soon to be vacated when Peter Myers is confirmed as assistant secretary for the environment and natural resources, with a technically qualified, professional conservationist. Myers was the first political appointee to hold that position, formerly occupied by career employees.

Md. specialist writes Ag Yearbook segment

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The 1984 Yearbook of Agriculture, released in late December by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, has a distinct Maryland flavor. This latest edition in an 85-volume annual series is titled Animal-Health-Livestock and Pets.

The 688-page illustrated hard-back book has 87 chapters, with separate sections on raising backyard poultry and pet birds, cattle, sheep and goats, swine, fish, dogs and cats, rabbits and other small animals, and horses.

Eleven chapters totaling nearly 100 pages in the new yearbook have been authored or co-authored by Dr. Edward T. Mallinson, Extension poultry veterinarian at the University of Maryland in College Park. Dr. Mallinson is an associate professor in the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine.

All of Dr. Mallinson's writing pertains to health management for backyard poultry flocks and pet birds.

Copies of the 1984 Yearbook of Agriculture are available for $10 each, postpaid, from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

The publication also can be purchased at government bookstores in many cities. Members of Congress have limited quantities available for free distribution on request from their constituents.

Grange speaks out on balanced budget

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Six months ago farmers and ranchers nationwide launched a campaign to convince official Washington to balance the federal budget through spending reforms. Known as the "Balanced Budget Brigade," the campaign culminated last week in the nation's capital as farm leaders met with Vice President George Bush, Secretary of Agriculture John Block and many Senators and Representatives.

The farm leaders brought with them hundreds of thousands of cards and letters signed by farmers, ranchers and other interested citizens, calling for a balanced budget. In their meetings with government officials they specifically called for a freeze on all federal spending at last year's levels excepting only interest payments on the national debt.

Confronted by questions regarding the budget demands by the Department of Defense, Edward Andersen, Master of the National Grange said, "American farmers are traditionally among the strongest supporters of an adequate national defense, but Secretary Weinberger's adamant and unyielding opposition to the military sharing in a national belt-tightening, does a serious disservice to the need to retain our economic as well as military strength."

Setting their sights on Congress and the White House, the farm leaders were also determined to force official Washington to understand the serious economic condition of farmers who are financially trapped by high interest rates. They warned against raising taxes as a means to balance the budget. They said any new taxes large enough to affect the deficit would increase interest rates, reduce disposable income and lower productivity.

Andersen said the government should do what every household in America is expected to do, "Live within its means." He praised Senators Robert Dole, Mark Hatfield, Robert Packwood and Pete Domenici for their leadership in Senate efforts to control federal spending and their inclusion of the Department of Defense as an essential and critical part of this effort.

Potter Holstein Club holds annual meeting

COUDERSPORT — Forty persons attended the Potter County Holstein Club's annual dinner meeting, Thursday, January 31 at Penn-York Camp. Elected as new directors were Karl Torrey, Shinglehouse RD; and Don Thompson, Westfield RD; and Dennis Smoker, Genesee RD, was re-elected. The terms of Dan Kice, Coudersport RD, and Ivan Kibbe, Harrison Valley, RD, expired.

Jay Gooch, state director, asked to be informed of any heifers for sale and advised that calves should be selected for the state sale.

Kenneth Raney, Pennsylvania State Holstein Association, was the main speaker. He reported that China could be a good market for cattle. He announced that the state calf and bred heifer sale is set for March 28 and 29 and said the state association is trying to raise the quality of the sale. The state association is continuing to promote milk, and consumption of milk is up 3-4%. CCC purchases are down. In 1982 in national advertising there was an expenditure of $30 million for milk; $670 million to advertise soft drinks; and $1.5 billion to advertise alcohol.

Raney urged dairymen to support their own industry by using and serving milk and dairy products.

He reported that the membership drive has been completed and that Potter County did not make its goal. The annual convention will be held in Philadelphia in February. One item they will discuss is changes in setting of dues. The Pa. Holstein News is no longer available and the Association is looking for ways to print their own news in Pennsylvania. Holstein spring forum meetings will be held in five locations around the state from March 4-8 with Wysox being the closest to Potter County. The Pennsylvania Spring Holstein Show will be March 28 in Harrisburg.

Following the annual meeting the directors met and elected the following officers: Dennis Smoker, president and alternate state director; Karl Torrey, show chairman; Don Thompson, sales representative; Kevin Risser, vice president; Jack Thomas, secretary-treasurer; Jay Gooch, state director and membership chairman; Tom Kibbe, special activities chairman and Samuel Crossley, publicity chairman.

DAIRY-SWINE-POULTRY FEEDING

FLEX-AUGER® "the best way ever devised to deliver feed."

...that's the reputation it's earned from farmers

using it over many years.

On thousands of farms Chore-Time's "coreless", flexible, spring steel auger system has built its record. It's known for its reliability, its low power requirements, its long life. And Chore-Time is known for always trying to make it even better: latest improvements include new PVC tubing with ultraviolet and wear inhibitors, plus new power-efficient direct drive motors that turn the auger. Get full facts now about Chore-Time's FLEX-AUGER and line of feed bins.

USDA's Beltsville spearheads biotechnology research

WASHINGTON, A new report calls for increased genetic engineering and other biotechnology research at the nation's largest agricultural research center, located in Beltsville, Md.

"We are laying out a blueprint for biotechnologies that have potential payoffs for agriculture now and in the future," Waldemar Klassen, director of the U.S.

Department of Agriculture facility, said today.

Klassen said the research could lead, for example, to increased animal and plant resistance to diseases, safer disposal of pesticides and other wastes, and new efficiencies for crop and animal production at lower cost.

According to the director, the research either already is under way or will be started shortly at the center, operated by USDA's Agricultural Research Service. Beltsville's laboratories house 400 scientists.

Klassen said a task force of the scientists prepared background papers in 1984 that led to the issuance of the 25-page report, titled "Agricultural Biotechnologies, Strong Acceleration of Research Programs at Beltsville."

The report summarizes 41 research areas — in three major categories — that warrant "an increase in emphasis," the director said. The areas include gene splicing, deciphering chemical messengers in plants and animals, and other biological investigations using state-of-the-art technologies.

A few of the research studies, Klassen said, can be traced to "earlier, smaller scale research at Beltsville when biotechnology was not a familiar word." For example, he said, center scientists pioneered research three decades ago on how plants respond to differences in light.

Terry B. Kinney Jr., Agricultural Research Service administrator, said the Beltsville study is part of the agency's efforts to strengthen its biotechnology research. USDA's research agency opened a Plant Gene Expression Center in Albany, Calif., last July.

"Our goal at Beltsville is to accelerate current and new research," Klassen said. "We have matched our scientific expertise, research equipment and facilities to what I think is a realistic goal."

Klassen said funding for biotechnology research now totals about $6,260,000 of Beltsville's $76 million budget.

He said the task force assumed "a finite and nearly constant source of funds" for the project.

According to Klassen, about $1,250,000 came last year from shifting administrative savings to research when the agency reorganized to reduce overhead costs. He said these funds represent the first step toward a goal of increasing biotechnology funding fourfold by 1990.

"We will use every resource and take every step possible to support the research," he said.

"As projects are completed or phased out, we will carefully consider reallocating the available funds to new biotechnology research," the director said.

Klassen said the center has the equivalent of 37 full-time scientists working on biotechnology projects and that the number will increase. "We will bring in scientists skilled in various phases of biotechnology to fill vacancies," he said.

Klassen said he and center officials selected three major categories as focal points for the 41 research areas identified by the task force, chaired by H. Graham Purchase, special scientific advisor to the director:

- Identifying and isolating genes that could be manipulated, for example, to enable grain crops to use atmospheric nitrogen, which now is unavailable to them.

- Determining the structure of cell membranes in animals and plants and then regulating the membranes for various purposes, such as preventing cold injury of plants, developing controls against parasites in animals and controlling ripening in fruits and vegetables.

- Identifying the role of cells and antibodies so they can be manipulated to help animals resist diseases; finding out how cells communicate so that new techniques can be developed to improve animal health, reduce crop losses, shorten harvest time and introduce insect controls for consumers and the environment.

NFO urges reduction of heifer inventory

CORNING, Iowa — The National Farmers Organization has announced that it will begin a nationwide inventory reduction sale of springer dairy heifers early in February. The heifers will be sold for slaughter.

President DeVon Woodland said the heifer sell-off action is aimed at keeping cow numbers down, continuing the reduction in milk production that began more than a year ago, and avoiding a drastic reduction of income to dairy farmers.

The 15-month dairy diversion program, which is financed by dairy farmers, is scheduled to end March 31. It is given much of the credit for a 230,000 head reduction in milk cow numbers and a 3 percent reduction in milk production.

Several bills to extend this farmer-financed program have been introduced in Congress. Many farm groups, including NFO, support these bills. The Administration is opposed to extending the diversion program.

Woodland said a steady build-up of dairy heifers that will freshen around the time the diversion program ends is widely reported.

"The NFO is urging all dairy farmers to participate in this supply management effort to keep cow numbers and milk production in balance," he said. "This will help avoid the price support reductions the Administration proposes to make this spring and summer under current law."

USDA figures on the number of dairy heifers held on farms are not available. A recent survey of Wisconsin dairy farmers, however, suggests that the size of the nation's dairy herd will increase substantially this year if the diversion program ends. It showed Wisconsin dairy farmers had 1,850,000 dairy cows at the beginning of 1984, had cut this total to 1,834,000 by October, and planned to expand to 1,870,000 by March 31.

Woodland said heifers involved in the inventory reduction action will be moved to packers through NFO livestock collection points located in most of the nation's dairy areas. Dairy producers who are not NFO members are being invited to participate in this supply management initiative and to make deliveries through the nation's collection point facilities.

The heifers will be moved to slaughter along with cull cows now delivered to packers at negotiated prices. NFO has become one of the nation's leading sources of cull dairy cows.

Dairy producers are being encouraged to spread the heifer sales out. The cow market has shown recent strength, Woodland said, making this a good time to move heifers into cow beef channels. Woodland also noted that heifers slaughtered now will reduce the volume of cull cow beef marketed later on.

Reed appointed Md. state conservationist

COCKEYSVILLE — Pearl S. Reed, 36, has been appointed Maryland state conservationist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service, according to SCS Chief Peter Myers.

Reed will be responsible for directing federal soil and water conservation activities in Maryland's 23 counties and the District of Columbia. These include programs dealing with erosion control on farm and urban land, watershed flood protection, Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D), soil surveys, and wildlife management. He will be headquartered in College Park.

A native of Heath, Ark., he was graduated magna cum laude in 1970 from Arkansas AM&N College, now the University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff, with a degree in animal husbandry. He received a masters of public administration with honors from the American University in Washington, D.C., in 1980.

Reed began his career with SCS in 1968 as a student trainee at Walnut Ridge, Ark. Upon graduation, he went to Wisconsin where he served as an SCS soil conservationist at Kenosha, Racine and Madison. In 1973, he was promoted to district conservationist at Sheboygan. From 1974 to 1977, he was budget and accounting officer and personnel officer at the SCS state office in Madison.

Reed was promoted to the SCS national headquarters in Washington, D.C., in 1977 where he served in various positions including financial manager, budget analyst and administrative officer. In 1981, he moved to Arkansas as deputy state conservationist.

He and his wife Delores have two daughters, Cheryl, 15, and Teresa, 13.

STOPS ROOTWORMS ALL SEASON LONG

When you switch to BROOT®—the unique brand of corn soil insecticide—you put an end to destructive rootworm larvae for the entire season. It's as simple as that.

Because when you put BROOT trimethacarb in the soil, it releases its active ingredient gradually. So, that means BROOT works for you throughout the whole season—to protect your valuable corn from rootworms until you harvest it. And don't worry if you plant early either, because you can depend on BROOT to stand up to those heavy rains and still provide you with long-lasting control.

BROOT is built tough. Tough enough to protect your corn from rootworms all season. Ask us about it and find out why it's the corn soil insecticide you should switch to.

Builder's Conference

the area who raise about 7000 calves.

Within the past two years, the Newton family has built an ultra-modern research veal barn. The one-story steel building is 400 feet long containing 20 rooms each holding 56 veal calves in individual wooden crates.

The aim of this veal grower is to grow these calves for 16 weeks in a highly controlled atmosphere with a constant temperature of 55 degrees year around, and with a humidity of 80 percent, an idea borrowed from veal growers in Holland.

Fresh outside air comes in at one side of the barn through louvered windows and through 15-inch plastic underground earth tubes extending 200 feet down the slope. Air from the earth tubes is fanned on low speed and comes in at the rate of 600 cubic feet per minute in cold weather.

The fresh air is heated by gas heaters hanging from the ceiling in front of each calf room, is humidified, and blown through a large clear plastic poly roll hung from the 20-foot ceiling in each room of calves. By testing, the ag engineers on the tour found the humidity at 64 percent, and ammonia at 25 parts per million, both acceptable by their standards.

Waste from the veal barn is washed out into three large covered manure storage vats.

A homemade furnace has been built by the Newtons in a metal shed near the barn to burn the paper feed bags. Thirty bales of these bags are pressed everyday, and fed into the furnace. Heat from the furnace goes through 125 feet of domestic hot water coil to preheat the water flowing into the three hot water heaters in the feed room of the barn where feed is mixed in huge stainless steel tanks and piped to each calf room. Six men feed the calves twice a day.

Elmglade Farm

The next stop was at Elmglade Farm in Sugar Run owned by Tom and Judy McCarty. Built in two wings in 1970 and 72, the tie stall barn houses 155 Holstein milk cows, some registered and some grade. Ventilation is provided by a Ventomatic system with air controlled by vents running along the top of each side wall. Air current testing proved that air currents were running properly in front of the cows instead of over their backs.

A large feed room outside the center of the barn held a mixer where corn silage, high moisture corn, and haylage are mixed.

The McCarty's own 425 acres, and rent 300 acres, and with two full-time hired men, harvest 300 acres of corn, 125 acres of alfalfa, and 50 acres of grass hay.

Country Heaven Farm

After lunch at the Frieden-shutten Restaurant in Wyalusing, the bush travelled to the Country Heaven Farm near Tunkhannock in Wyoming County.

The young owners, Leroy and Elaine Sands, completed in 1982 the 196 foot tie stall barn holding 84 registered Holstein cows producing an average of 22,220 pounds of milk and 825 pounds of fat. The ventilation is satisfactory, the Sands said, and works on part thermostat and timer with seven fans blowing air vented in along a weighted nylon curtain air inlet fastened at the top of the sidewalls.

Other features of this modern complex are a solar calf hutch shed, and a Virginia plan type barn for young stock and dry cows. Sands stated he is also pleased with his manure spreader shed, but if he could change the barn he would have built more than two maternity pens inside.

Late in the afternoon, the group spent one-and-a-half hours touring the Masonite plant in Wysox, the largest dry hardboard plant in the United States. A new building added recently produces 13,000 door skins per day using a dieform technique. The group followed the process from the beginning hardwood through to the finished products of hardboard, lap siding, panelsiding, paneling and door skins, all ready for market.

On the second day of the conference speakers included Harvey B. Manbeck, professor of agricultural engineering from Penn State; Don Youngblood, American Plywood Association;

Nevin Wagner, Triple H Construction; Mary Bower, Telmark, Inc; Dennis J. Murphy, Safety Specialist, Penn State; Robert Graves, Ag Engineer Penn State; Lyn Sammons, D.V.M. from Reading; Daniel Myer, Extension engineer, Penn State; and Ken Guffey, Fabral, Inc.

Several exhibits were set up at the Elks Club to show Conference participants new ideas for building and ventilation.

Delaware director named

DOVER, Del. — Delaware Agriculture Secretary William B. Chandler, Jr. has named a Sussex County native and farm County official a Director of the Production and Promotion Division for the Delaware Department of Agriculture.

Roland L. Derrickson, 59, of near Dagsboro, was selected for the post to replace Robert C. Berry who retired in late December.

Derrickson has served as Director of Planning and Zoning for Sussex County since 1969. He has also been actively involved in farming, most recently raising poultry, grain and livestock. The new Director was raised on a poultry and vegetable farm near Frankford.

As Director of Production and Promotion, Derrickson assumes the responsibility for the majority of the Agriculture Department's programs including gypsy moth suppression, marketing and promotion, pesticide regulation, poultry and animal health, fruit and vegetable inspection, seed inspection, weights and measures, forestry, chemical laboratory testing, and plant industry.

Some of the programs fall under the Division of Standards and Inspections, for which Derrickson will serve as Acting Director.

Secretary Chandler, in announcing Derrickson's appointment, said the new Director's background should prove beneficial.

"Roland's knowledge of farming combined with his experience in land use planning should give us a valuable perspective as we consider the critical issue of farmland preservation," he said.

Dennis Grumbine

Fellow exhibitors confirm this observation and Dennis believes that this competitive spirit is critical in maintaining the purebred swine industry. Those breeders who are involved in shows and sales are truly committed to the production of a high quality product. There is definitely not a large profit margin when the time and expense invested in showing is considered.

Despite this fact, Dennis believes that livestock shows definitely help the swine industry. "If shows ever cease, the industry will pay the price. There will no longer be a benchmark of quality for the industry to strive for."

Dennis sees the Farm Show as an example of one of the most beneficial livestock events available. His commitment to this event is evidenced by the many hours he devotes to his role as a Farm Show Commissioner. "Where else do you see nearly 1,000 people gathered together and listening to judge's reasons for livestock placings at anyone time?" asks Dennis. It is an event anyone in the livestock industry can avail themselves to whether they wish to exhibit or not. This event also serves to stress the producers' concern for quality to the consumer," summarizes Dennis.

Dennis reflected on changes at the Farm Show in the swine division over the past years. He first exhibited at Farm Show in the early 1960's when there were only 4-H and FFA bred gilt shows for youth. At that time the typical exhibitor waited three or four years before any openings were available in the open show and then each exhibitor was limited to one or two head. No market swine show was conducted.

Dennis first exhibited as an FFA member. His involvement in FFA activities was very broad and he has received honors in many areas. He advanced through various offices including county president, state president, and ran for national office. Dennis received his American Farmer degree in 1966.

That level of achievement never comes without a great expenditure of energy. "I had a lot of help from a lot of people," says Dennis. He believes that young people should participate in 4-H and FFA activities. "The end result is worth the time invested." He sees the biggest asset he received from that hard work to be the leadership skills and knowledge he acquired.

As the keynote speaker at the recent Pennsylvania FFA Winter Convention, Dennis enjoyed seeing what is currently happening in Pennsylvania FFA. Dennis believes that not enough people from outside agriculture get to see these conventions and activities. "We need to find ways to inform them of what young people in agriculture are doing."

Dennis has utilized his leadership skills in so many organizations that it is impossible to list them all. However, the Grumbine names is well known in association with many aspects of Pennsylvania agriculture. Dennis is vice president of the Pennsylvania Berkshire Association, a member of the executive committee of the State Council of Farm Organizations, state chairman of the Pennsylvania Ag Republicans, a Pennsylvania Farm Show commissioner and co-chairman of the Keystone International Livestock Exposition.

He is also on the board of directors of the Lebanon Valley Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Pennsylvania Society, the Pennsylvania Farmer's Association, serves as 4-H leader in the Lebanon County 4-H Livestock Club and is a member of Friedens Lutheran Church of Myerstown. In addition to his involvement in leadership roles, Dennis frequently judges swine shows throughout Pennsylvania.

Dennis is quick to summarize his activities and gives credit to the support of his family and employees at Evergreen Tractor Company. He feels that a competent group of employees makes it possible to be away from his business occasionally.

As many Pennsylvania ag leaders note, they must have someone at home who is able to manage the farm responsibilities. Dennis' wife, Barbara, and sons Daryl and Darren have been involved in the farm operation since its beginning. Dennis says, "Barb shoveled as much hog manure as I did in those first few years." (Barbara believes it was more than he shoveled.)

Barbara is a former "city girl" who is now committed to farming as a way of life. She discovered early in their relationship that agriculture was a vital part of Dennis' life. She now credits the farm experience with teaching her to "roll with the punches." She learned that when an animal dies it is not the end of the world. "I've learned to cope with life in a way that I never knew before," summarizes Barb.

As a "city girl" Barb has learned many skills. She has delivered baby pigs and done practically everything involved with raising purebred swine. Barb is the official "truck driver" and frequently makes runs to shows and auctions. In addition to barn chores, Barb has learned to do field work. Her sons note that she does field work in which straight lines are not critical.

She has learned to show hogs and even exhibited their entries at KILE one year when Dennis had conflicting events scheduled. Barb is proud that her showing resulted in one of their best years ever at KILE.

The Grumbine family members not only supports Dennis in his activities and on the farm but are also involved in their own right. Barbara is president of the Lebanon County Farm Women's Organization, is past president of Myerstown Junior Women's Club and Lebanon County educational chairman of the Federation of Women's Clubs. Barb shares her husband's support of 4-H as a member of the Lebanon County 4-H.

SERIES IV FEED TRANSPORT CART!

Now with convenient hydrostatic drive and extended battery life!

Load it full. Press the new hydrostatic control lever. And you're on your way to feed silage, haylage or any other feed to your dairy herd — quickly, cleanly and conveniently.

With new hydrostatic drive, this new Series IV cart gives you fully variable speed control. Fingertip operation provides any travelling speed you select.

The Weaverline Series IV cart puts you in complete command of your feeding operation. As your Series IV cart moves into position in front of each stall, set the auger and apron-system indicator to discharge the rate of feed you desire. Then shut it off and move on to the next cow. Or if you want, lay a continuous flow of feed. Fast-flow front-end discharge with flexible deflector makes it easy to put your feed right where you want it.

No matter which of the three models you choose, you can depend on Weaverline advanced engineering design. Upkeep, time and labor saved will more than pay for the cost of a Weaverline Series IV transport cart.

Expansion and innovation

offers Kevin, includes high moisture corn, soybean meal, a commercial mineral mix, a buffer, salt, and haylage. He says they don't skimp on minerals and do pay close attention to the forages, testing whenever the feed seems to change. Usually, adds Kevin, they are feeding out of three structures.

The cows are fed haylage and corn at the first feeding, and minerals and shelled corn at the next. In total, they are fed five times a day.

The "structures" he refers to are nine Harvestores that form a landmark in the valley. The Schrack maintain an award-winning cropping program that includes proper harvesting and storage for high quality feeds.

Schrack says he believes that sealed storage reduces feed loss and give a better feed. They've put up one Harvestore just about every two years since 1966. "It was hard to make the decision for the first one — it cost $14,600 with the unloader. But today you can't even buy the unloader by itself for $14,000," notes Schrack.

In 1979 Schrack was recognized for having the top alfalfa yield in the state by the Pa. Forage and Grassland Council. That year he harvested 9.2 tons hay equivalent while the average contestant's yield was only 5.8 tons. Lack of a county agent has prevented Schrack from entering the competition in the past few years, but he's still taking off top yields.

"With 500 acres of alfalfa, it takes a lot of labor, but it's critical to get it in at the right time," says Schrack. Until the heavy dews and morning fog burn off in the valley, sometimes they must harvest 50 acres of haylage between 1 p.m. and 6 p.m.

All the alfalfa harvested is made into haylage. "We try to go into the winter with full structures," says Schrack. They raise all their own feed, with the exception of the soybean meal and minerals.

The rolling herd average for their herd is 16,154 pounds milk and 579 pounds butterfat. "That isn't too spectacular," admits Schrack. "I guess we've reached the point where we need to cull off for production increases."

"We give the first calf heifers too much of a chance to show what they can do," he adds. Currently, every heifer is raised and added to the production line as the operation expands.

While some of the heifers may be pulling down the herd average, the cows in the "super high group" are easily holding their own. Projected lactations on some of the Schrack's top individuals are well into the 20,000 pound range. And good breeding accounts for part of the success in production.

"I've used A.I. since the beginning," says Dan Schrack. "For the past 18 years we've been breeding our own cows." All the semen that is purchased is from bulls that are at least +1500 on the milk production factor. "We're mainly interested in production," he adds, "in it for the milk."

To make milk they also have an extensive herd health program that's based on preventive medicine, says the younger Schrack. Getting a professional hoof trimmer, vaccinating two times a year, and having the veterinarian do pregnancy checks are just a few of the practices that keep the herd healthy. "And we don't try to save money by buying from the route salesman," he adds. "We get 98 percent of our medicines through the vet."

The family is also literally "tuned in" to their herd. A few

Md. Conservation conferees ask for increased funds

COCKEYSVILLE — Officials from the state's 24 local soil conservation districts will ask the state legislature to increase the amount of cost share funds that farmers can receive for installing practices to prevent sediment and nutrients from polluting the Chesapeake Bay.

Under the state's agricultural water quality cost share program, farmers can receive 87½ percent of the cost of installing erosion or animal waste control practices, up to $5,000 per project and $25,000 per farm. At their conference in Ocean City, Jan. 22, Maryland Association of Soil Conservation District members voted to ask the state legislature to raise the project limit to $10,000. The cap on the amount each farm is eligible to receive would stay at $25,000.

The high cost of installing animal waste management systems prompted the action. According to MASCD officials, the average cost of building waste systems in Maryland, based on an average dairy herd size of 73, is $29,000. Many farmers cannot afford to build these structures since they can only recover about 25 percent of that investment, mostly by substituting the organic nutrients contained in livestock manure for chemical fertilizer.

Agriculture's role in the Bay cleanup was a recurring theme throughout the two-day meeting. Richard R. Nagel, U.S. Soil Conservation Service, announced that his agency has received $125,000 to provide farmers with increased technical help in designing and building conservation practices. Ralph Adkins, Cooperative Extension Service, said his agency will establish best management practices on a demonstration farm to study their effectiveness and cost efficiency.

According to Gould Charshee, Dept. of Health and Mental Hygiene, all 20 of the cases of agricultural water pollution reported last year were resolved voluntarily by the landowner. He said his agency will work closely with soil conservation districts to see that any farmer cited for water quality violations gets the technical help they need to correct the problem voluntarily.

William Eichbaum, assistant secretary of the health department, said his agency will be spending $2 million annually through the end of the century to monitor water quality in the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries. The monitoring program will help determine if efforts to stop pollution are working.

On another note, Graham T. Munkittrick, assistant chief for SCS, said, "nationally, our need for farmland during the next 50 years may not be as great as many of us thought just five or ten years ago. Advances in technology are likely to continue to increase yields and allow farmers to double-crop a much larger acreage."

He warned, however, that an increase in yields and food exports to foreign countries may put greater demand on land and water resources. This could lead to various kinds of degradation, including erosion, compaction, and salinity, Munkittrick said.

MASCD members also voiced concern over Office of Management and Budget proposals to cut federal conservation efforts by eliminating the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service and curtailing the budget of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Norman Bery, a district supervisor for Anne Arundel County and former SCS Chief, said OMB proposals would devastate the national conservation program.

MASCD members also voted to petition Secretary Block to fill the SCS Chief position, soon to be vacated when Peter Myers is confirmed as assistant secretary for the environment and natural resources, with a technically qualified, professional conservationist. Myers was the first political appointee to hold that position, formerly occupied by career employees.

Baltimore County Soil Conservation District was represented by Vernon R. Foster, Chairman, who was presented a Service Certificate representing 30 years of active service on the Board of Supervisors. Also present were Supervisors Wayne McGinnis, Robert Thomas, Loring Sparks, G. Richard Curran, Secretary, William Hahn, District Manager, Arnold Hawkins, Administrative Assistant, and Rick Dills, District Conservationist.

Milk co-ops sponsor public meeting in Union Co.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Raymond Diebold, Altoona, PA, Dairylea Cooperative district 6 director and Stanley Weaver, Jr., Elizabeth, PA, Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative district 12 director have announced a public dairy education/information meeting will be held Thursday, Feb. 14, at 8:00 p.m. at the Middle School, Mifflinburg.

The meeting will be jointly sponsored by Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative and Dairylea Cooperative Inc., both headquartered in Syracuse, NY.

Topics for review and discussion will include the '85 Farm Bill, production trends, market order activity and the dairy price support program. Presentations will be made by one of the following economists: Joseph Mathis, Eastern Milk Producers; Art Little, Dairylea Cooperative; and George O'Brien, Dairylea Cooperative.

All dairy farmers are invited to attend this open meeting and will have an opportunity to ask questions.

Schrack dairy

years ago Schrack decided to install an intercom system with numerous speakers around the farm. When problems are expected in the maternity pen late at night, for instance, the Schracks will turn on the receiver in their bedroom and be tuned in to what's happening in the barn in a moments notice, explains Schrack. With such a large herd, they can have four to six cows and heifers freshening in one day.

The intercom is just one part of the communication system on the farm. Short-wave radios in the farm shop and on the trucks and tractors, keep everyone in touch on hectic days.

All in all the farm operation is very self-sufficient. The Schracks own all their own equipment, including a truck spreader for lime and fertilizer and their own sprayer. "We can't afford to rely on custom work," says Schrack.

"We rebuild every piece of equipment in the shop every winter," he adds. "Some of it has a lot of age. I don't know of a forage harvester in the state that has handled as much haylage as we do." And remodeling and building projects are a fact of life around the Schrack operation as well.

What's ahead for the Schrack farmers? "Estate planning will be my biggest problem in the future," admits Schrack. And of course the entire dairy economy will play a part in their future.

"We aren't making any money, but we will survive it. We don't have any intentions of selling out. There never was and never will be a public sale here.

"We're going to be here for a long time to come."

OUR READERS WRITE

nothing more than chemical catalogs. They say that you must spray everything and give no mention of alternative crop production methods.

Spraying crops is no guarantee of success. I have seen many pesticide-sprayed crops that are insect eaten and herbicide-sprayed fields that are very weedy.

The earth will not stand to be abused much longer. You cannot poison it and expect it to reward you. Farming in cooperation with nature is the only way to go.

We took some of our organically-grown crops to the 1985 Pa. Farm Show and won numerous awards in vegetables, hay, corn and potatoes for the third year in a row. Not one drop of chemical of any kind was used on them.

Among the prizes our naturally produced crops won were eight first prizes and four seconds. Also a top award in ear field corn was given to corn grown by an organic farmer. The high quality of organic crops stands out every time.

Organic farming and gardening is so easy. You don't have to worry about mixing sprays or wearing spray-proof clothing or herbicide residue in fields, or having high-powered chemical fertilizers burn crops (organic fertilizers will not burn), or setback to crops from spray. Every crop known to man can be raised successfully without chemicals. Even apples can be grown to perfection under organic methods. I don't even have to use organic sprays because mother nature keeps insect populations in balance. This past season, I went through my corn once with the cultivator and had excellent weed control.

Farming without chemicals can be a big money saver. If you have a cultivator, dust it off and use it this spring. You can then pocket the savings, which you would have spent on expensive herbicides. You can become partly self-sufficient in fertilizer by growing cover and green manure crops. I never have to lime my land because I keep the organic matter up, which regulates ph. I don't use chemical fertilizers which are very acid. Give organic farming a try and you will be pleased with the results.

This country grew into the greatest nation on earth while no chemicals were used on crops. George Washington and Thomas Jefferson were organic farmers. If we would turn the huge technological capacity and ingenuity this nation has toward the research and production of chemical free crops astounding improvements could be made in agriculture.

Meet the new MF 3500 Series

Introducing the new MF 3500 Series from Massey-Ferguson... including the top-of-the-line 125 PTO hp* MF 3545 tractor.

All three models feature Perkins diesel engines for reliable, fuel-efficient operation. And the MF 3545 is both turbocharged and charge-cooled for maximum operating efficiency.

New 16-speed transmission

A new rugged 16-speed synchromesh transmission features a wide range of working speeds to make almost any job easier. And the convenient 2-speed shift-on-the-go saves time and fuel at the touch of a button.

Big hydraulics

A 29 gpm hydraulic system handles your growing hydraulic demands with ease. There's plenty of capacity to eliminate fading and power loss...even during peak demand.

Big comfort, easy servicing

There's plenty of features to reduce maintenance time and keep you comfortable, too. For example, the one-piece removable front grill provides quick access to vital systems and batteries are maintenance-free.

And a fully adjustable seat, extra-quiet interior, tilt and telescopic steering wheel, standard air and heater and more help keep you relaxed...even on your longest work days.

Row crop models

And all three models are available with your choice of 2- or 4-wheel drive. New electronic 3-point hitch gives you more efficient tillage, too.

Stop in today and find out all the ways the new MF 3500 Series can improve your profit picture.

Nat'l. Dairy Board seeking joint ice cream ads

ARLINGTON, Va. — The National Dairy Board moved forward on a major joint ice cream advertising program with the International Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers (IAICM), at its meeting in Arlington, Va. on January 23, by directing its staff to continue negotiations for an agreement with IAICM on a summer advertising campaign.

The Board is considering spending a minimum of $2 million on generic advertising. The IAICM would match the Board's expenditure by increasing its branded advertising by at least $2 million over 1984's level.

Board and IAICM representatives will meet soon to work toward cementing the agreement. In addition, Board and staff members will meet the representatives of other dairy promotion groups and seek their participation and advice to develop a truly coordinated national effort.

In other action, the Board agreed to fund the production of a brochure on osteoporosis in conjunction with the National Institutes of Health. The brochure would be distributed to grocery stores nationwide by the Food Marketing Institute.

The Board also unanimously adopted a resolution that all new advertising contracts it adopts will provide for a direct relationship between the Board and agencies that execute its advertising program.

This action was taken in part on the advice of legal counsel, who pointed out that the Board's accountability for its expenditures makes it desirable for the Board to exercise direct control over, and responsibility for, its expenditures.

However, the Board emphasized that it will continue to work with existing promotion agencies and their representatives to ensure a coordinated program and efficient placement and scheduling of advertising.

"This action," said Board

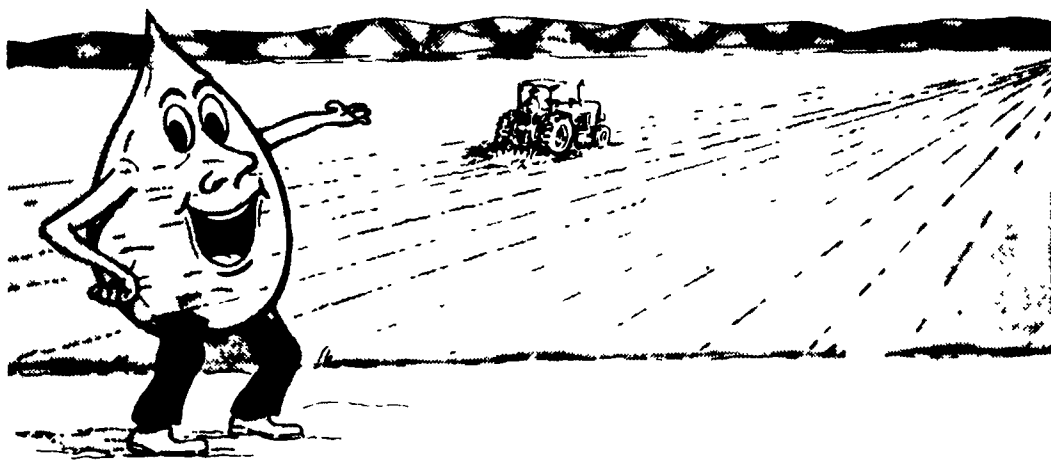

Chairman Ivan Strickler, "will simplify administrative procedures, clarify the lines of communication, and clearly place responsibility for its expenditures on the Board."

The Board's desire to put producers' money to work quickly led to its originally contracting with existing promotion groups last August. "They had the commercials, knew the industry and could place and schedule the commercials quickly. That action was critically important to the Board's desire to move immediately to get its advertising in place," said Chief Executive Officer Joseph Westwater.

Board members reiterated a firm commitment to continue a close working relationship with local and regional promotion organizations.

The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board was established by Act of Congress to develop a coordinated program of promotion designed to strengthen the dairy industry's position in the marketplace and to maintain and expand domestic and foreign markets and uses for fluid milk and dairy products.

This national program of promotion, research and nutrition education is financed by a mandatory 15-cent per hundredweight assessment on all milk produced and marketed in the contiguous 48 states. The 36-member policy-making Board of dairy producers was appointed by Agriculture Secretary John Block.

Drip Irrigation is the most economical way to irrigate.
(Over 2 Million Feet Sold)

TWIN WALL IV and T-TAPE is the most advanced and trouble free irrigation on the market today. We have special set ups to irrigate 1 to 2 acres from a small well. Also filter set ups to irrigate from stream or pond up to 100 cows or more.

SPECIAL FEATURES:

INDIVIDUAL REGULATORS meter water to each outlet through a large trouble-free regulating tube built into the hose.

FILTERS at the beginning of each regulating tube protect it against plugging. It is self-cleaning as the water is turned off and on.

OUTLET VALVE at the exit of each regulating tube opens to let the water out but closes to seal out dirt and insects when the water is off. It is not affected by salt build-up as holes are.

UNIFORMITY OF FLOW is achieved because each regulator is fed by the full water pressure of the supply tube and not through a low pressure secondary tube. This reduces the need to level or contour fields, or to exercise precise placement of the tube in the bed.

TRUE DRIP FLOW without the squirting that can erode beds or wet the plant leaves and aisles.

CLOSE ORIFICE SPACING promotes a continuously wet bed of even width in all soils, without dry areas between each outlet.

SELF CLEANING REGULATING TUBES allow full water pressure to force out any particles that pass the internal filter.

FIELD LAYOUT IS EASIER with less need for precise surveying and contouring. Furthermore, longer runs reduce field piping.

LARGE ROLLS aid tractor or manual installation above or below ground.

HOSE MATERIAL is superior, the plastics used provide for a high strength, tough, flexible and easily handled hose.

TWO FLOW RATES are available, high flow for most applications, or to replace other high flow systems, low flow for use in longer runs, where crops and/or soil responds better to low flow, or where the water supply may be limited.

Ephrata Young Farmers

Earl Martin, Ephrata, recieved the Soil Conservation Award. Earl and his wife, Grace, farm 750 acres and feed steers. Last year Earl installed terraces and waterways in his fields to conserve the soil.

The Outstanding Swine Producer Award went to Terry Sheetz, Stevens. Terry and his wife, Sandy, farm 105 acres of corn, have 90 sows and finish 2,000 hogs a year.

Paul C. Bucher, Lititz, received the Outstanding Beef Producer Award. Paul and his wife, Ruth, farm 81 acres of corn, alfalfa and rye and feed 140 steers.

John R. Zimmerman, Ephrata, received the Best No-til and Conventional Plot Tillage Award. On his no-til plot, John yielded 167.2 bushels per acre with a net return of $164. On his conventional plot, he had 177.2 bushels per acre with a net return of $151.

The Conservation Tillage Award for High Yield went to Warren Bollinger, Lititz. Warren got 179.1 bushels per acre with conventional tillage.

Appreciation Awards went to Paul B. Zimmerman of Zimmerman's Hardware, M.M. Weaver and Sons, Leola, and Tom Bollinger, 1984 EAYFA president. They also presented a quilt made by the members' wives to retired FFA advisor Lew Ayers.

The Young Farmers also installed their new officers — David Zimmerman, president; Tony Eberly, vice president; Mike Pfautz, secretary; Andy Augsburger, treasurer; and J. Calvin Zimmerman, public relations director.

USDA increases egg, poultry, rabbit grading charges

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture will increase charges effective Feb. 1 for federal voluntary egg products inspection; egg, poultry and rabbit grading; laboratory services; and federal mandatory egg products inspection overtime and appeal services.

H. Connor Kennett, an official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said the rates are being changed to reflect the increased costs of providing these services. Present rates have been in effect since Feb. 1, 1984.

To cover the cost of the grader in the plant, the hourly rate will be increased from $14.32 to $15.44. The hourly rate for nonresident voluntary service will increase from $20.76 to $21.88. The premium rate will increase from $21.64 to $23.68. The per hour costs for laboratory services will increase from $24.24 to $25.48.

The administrative volume charge of $0.025 per case of eggs and $0.00025 per pound for poultry remains unchanged. This fee covers program supervision and overhead.

The hourly rate for mandatory overtime egg products inspection services will be increased from $17.20 to $17.32, and the hourly rate for certain mandatory appeal egg product inspections will be increased from $17.32 to $19.92.

Grading services, administered by AMS, are made available upon request of financially interested parties. The Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 requires user fees to be reasonable and as nearly as possible to equal the cost of the services. Under the Egg Products Inspection Act, the cost of overtime and appeal services must be borne by the user, but appropriated funds pay the basic costs.

Kennett said the charges are being increased under an interim final rule on which public comments will be accepted until Feb. 15. The comments should be sent to D.M. Holbrook, room 3944-S, AMS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

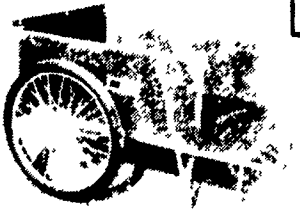

The interim final rule was published in the Jan. 28 Federal Register.

Warren Bollinger, Lititz, was recognized for his corn production; Terry Sheetz, Stevens, was recognized as the Outstanding Swine Producer, and Paul Bucher, Lititz, was named Outstanding Beef Producer.

Century Farms top 900 last year

HARRISBURG — Seventy-eight farms were designated official Pennsylvania Century Farms during 1984, bringing the total number of Century Farms in the commonwealth to 922.

Secretary Hallowell said, "The Century Farms Program was established to help publicize the strengths and durability of our farm families which have contributed so much to our commonwealth's economic and agricultural heritage. For more than 200 years our farm families have kept Pennsylvania growing better, as the leading agricultural state in the Northeast. Over 59,000 farm families produce more than $4 billion annually in farm products and help to make agriculture Pennsylvania's number one industry."

To be recognized as a Century Farm by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, the farm must be owned by the same family for 100 consecutive years to the date of application, and a family member must presently live on the farm. The farm must consist of at least ten acres of the original holding.

The Secretary urged other Pennsylvania farm families who qualify for the Century Farm honors to make application for the program and "show you Keystone Pride."

Application can be obtained by writing to Century Farms, The Press Office, Pa. Department of Agriculture, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg PA 17110-9408.

A difference in quality. Since Mueller introduced its Refrigerated Receiver more than two years ago, it's made some remarkable differences.

Milk temperatures lowered from 95 to 40 degrees without agitation. Improved butterfat. Bacteria counts down to between 10,000 and 15,000 units. More efficient cooling. Easy to clean. Overall improved quality. Enhanced taste and smell.

Isn't it time for you to join the growing number of dairymen testifying to the improvement the Refrigerated Receiver has made in their operations!

We Mueller distributors know the Refrigerated Receiver can make a difference in your operation, too. Just ask us how.

Crop scouting group

HARRISBURG — The Tri-Valley Crop Improvement Association is now forming to provide timely crop decision-making information and records for farmers in northern Dauphin, western Schuylkill and southern Northumberland counties.

The projected cost of this service will be in the range of four to five dollars per acre. Presently, several farmers are meeting to discuss the organization and procedures for the Tri-Valley Crop Improvement Association. For more information, contact the Dauphin County Extension Service, phone 652-8460, or leave a message at the Upper Dauphin Human Services Center.

PICK IT APART.

EASIER TO PICK UP. The Surge Mini-Orbit® is a full pound lighter than the Mini-Cup II. And a more convenient shape and better balance make it easier to carry, attach and remove.

BETTER VISIBILITY. The clear polysulfone thermoplastic dome is why. You can see milk flow from each quarter, avoid overmilking and harvest more milk.

BETTER BALANCE. Thanks to the unique Surge stainless steel bowl design. One that puts the weight on the bottom where it belongs.

EASIER MILK OUT. Nipple position, low center of gravity, larger stem inflations and larger inlets into the milking machine assure a more balanced milking action.

THE SURGE MINI-ORBIT MILKER. There's so much built into this milker it's easy to pick out features you like. Features no other claw-type milker can match. Ask your Surge Dealer about the Mini-Orbit today.

Dennis Grumbine

H board of directors and is vice-chairman of the Finance Committee.

The Grumbine's sons are active showmen in junior and open hog shows and also maintain a small Dorset flock. Daryl began his involvement at the age of two when he showed his first hog. They both participate in a number of 4-H events and their exposure to agriculture has made them very knowledgeable in matters of the swine industry. Daryl and Darren represent the future of the D.L. Grumbine and Sons firm.

In his twenty-five years as a Berkshire breeder, Dennis has seen many changes occur in the purebred swine industry and has formulated some goals and ideas for the future of this aspect of Pennsylvania agriculture.

Dennis has found the current state administration and Farm Show commissioners committed to making Pennsylvania agriculture number one. They have exhibited a willingness to change for the benefit to both spectators and exhibitors at Farm Show.

Dennis speak very highly of the organization which he has chaired for thirteen years, the Pennsylvania Swine Breeders Co-operative. He commends the breeders for being a truly professional group. They are able to face a problem within the industry by sitting down to discuss it.

"They may disagree in the meeting but they walk out united behind the final decision." He notes instances where a group of 25 or more breeders have assembled on 24 hours notice to form a task force to address a problem even though many of them had a four-hour drive to the meeting.

Dennis notes that a greater sense of harmony and cooperation has evolved in this group over the past 15 to 20 years. As chairman of the swine aspect of the Ag Arena Sale he noted the outstanding support of purebred swine breeders despite the fact that these donations represented a sacrifice on the part of some families facing financial hardships.

The harmony was also evidenced in the Keystone Classic Show and Sale where the breeds showed together in the various classes. Many said it couldn't be done, yet the breeders pulled together as a group to have a good show and sale.

Dennis notes further that the purebred industry has been supportive in meeting the challenge of the swine industry as a whole.

They promoted the establishment of a Test Station which is geared to the commercial aspect of the industry. The breeders supported the idea of a youth market hog show at Farm Show by changing their schedule to make it possible. Several years ago the shows and sales were scattered throughout the week. The support of this program has resulted in one of the best junior market hog shows in the nation, involving 200 young people in Farm Show.

In addressing the future of the swine industry in Pennsylvania from his perspective, Dennis feels that more all-breed activities should be promoted statewide. He plans to strive for improvement of the swine shows at KILE in his new role as co-chairman of the event. "KILE has the potential of being one of the best shows in the country. I want to see it return to the competitiveness we had several years ago."

Dennis believes that the primary emphasis must be on involving young people in the purebred hog industry. He admits that the road may not be easy, but that a pride must be instilled in these young people for the end product - high quality breeding stock.

Dennis credits the packing industry with supporting 4-H and FFA members through junior livestock sales. This has resulted in increased interest on the part of young people in swine projects. The purebred industry must now encourage involvement in breeding projects.

MOST URGENT THAT YOU RESPOND NOW.

A special Western Union notice has been sent to the top farmers in this area. In it is news about an important private demonstration of Grassroots®, a new agricultural information videotex service now offered to farmers. The demonstrations will be held on the dates shown on the Reservation/Entry form coupon below.

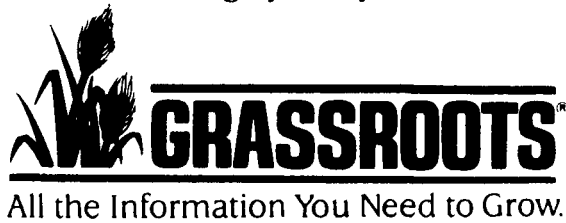

This offer has been made only to selected farmers. If you operate a large farm, you have a significant stake in attending one of these demonstration meetings.

Grassroots is changing the way top farmers market their products, buy expensive farm inputs like machinery, keep abreast of new technological developments, and stay in touch with the farm issues most critical to maintaining their farms' financial health.

As an inducement to attend, Grassroots is offering each demonstration attendee a helpful, free booklet from Doane Publishing entitled, Plain Talk About Farm Computers and an opportunity to win a new IBM-XT computer worth $5,000.00—absolutely free—without any cost or obligation. There is no purchase required.

If for some reason beyond our control, you do not receive this notice and would like to attend, please complete the Registration/Entry form coupon below. You must respond immediately. Attendance at each demonstration is limited to 15.

Please complete and return the Reservation/Entry form coupon to register. Your early response will help assure attendance on your preferred date(s). We can only hold this reservation offer open for ten (10) days. Mail the coupon to: Grassroots Demonstration, Registration Headquarters, Sunset Boulevard, Ridgely, Maryland 21660.

For immediate registration call toll-free: outside of Maryland 1-800-638-3860, in Maryland 1-800-492-2886.

Please indicate 1st, 2nd and 3rd choices of demonstration meeting dates by writing 1, 2 or 3 next to your preferred dates. Return this form to the address shown above. Your attendance at a Grassroots demonstration entitles you to one (1) free copy of "Plain Talk About Farm Computers" and an opportunity to win a free new IBM-XT computer worth $5,000.

OFFICIAL RULES—NO PURCHASE NECESSARY
1. You are automatically entered in the Grassroots America Sweepstakes when you register to attend a demonstration of the Grassroots America Videotex Service for Farmers. 2. ## Roses and candy: traditional Valentine's gifts

BY BARBARA RADER
Staff Correspondent

BUTLER COUNTY — Thursday is Valentine's Day, that special day when thoughts turn to love and loved ones. And what better way to observe the occasion than with roses and candy, two traditional Valentine's gifts.

Representing love and friendship, the rose is a favorite Valentine's gift. And milk chocolate, the favorite of all chocolate products, is a Valentine's delight when packaged in an attractively-decorated, heart-shaped box.

Sweethearts, wives and husbands living in Butler County and surrounding areas can turn to two noted local businesses who strive to offer top quality roses and candy as this holiday draws near.

Zelienople Greenhouse Co., Zelienople, and Sugar Bowl, Butler, have been thinking about Valentine's Day since late November of last year. And for them, preparing for this holiday is no bed of roses.

Both businesses have a seven-day work week, especially during the winter months, when they are carefully monitoring the weather, temperatures, price fluctuations, and the quality of their products. Of course the businesses hope to produce just enough to meet the demand for their products, but if they have misjudged, some Valentine sweethearts may have to settle for another gift of love.

Sugar Bowl Candy

The Sugar Bowl has been producing homemade candy in Butler for 75 years. William Vine established the business in 1910 and it is now owned by Harry Kadunce.

As a young man, Harry worked side-by-side with Vine, learning the candy trade. During the Depression years, these two made all the candy with the help of just three or four other employees. The store now has eight employees with Harry's daughter, Andrea, in charge of marketing the candy.

"You can get only so big and keep the reputation of never changing the quality of the candy, regardless of the price of the candy," Harry says. "Not wanting to lose this, I use all natural products wherever possible."

He uses Land-O-Lakes butter, fresh eggs, heavy cream and milk from the local dairy, and the purest grade of chocolate he can buy. They roast all their own nuts which they purchase green, and cook their own filling for the Easter eggs, no matter what the cost.

Everything made at the Sugar Bowl is done by hand from beginning to end, Henry points out, stressing again and again his firm conviction that the quality, not the quantity, of the candy produced is most important.

The Sugar Bowl sends candy all the over the United States, with much of it going into the southern states. Former Butler residents who have moved to Florida and Louisiana order candy from the Sugar Bowl, which also has faithful customers in York and Lancaster. The demand for this tasty confection always outstrips the supply.

Most of the valentine candy is already made and packed into 700 heart-shaped boxes ranging in size from two ounces to five pounds. One- and two-pound boxes are the top sellers, whether packed in valentine or regular boxes.

And some lucky sweetheart will receive the largest, fanciest heart-shaped box which contains 7½ pounds of the finest homemade candy from the Sugar Bowl.

Zelienople Greenhouse Roses

Ralph Kapp, president of the Zelienople Greenhouse Company, Zelienople, has devoted his life to raising big and little roses in a variety of colors.

His expertise in his field has come from many years of growing the roses that delight sweethearts on Valentine's Day.

Zelienoples raises millions of roses in their 23 greenhouses throughout the year, but the demand for roses is greatest on Feb. 14.

Zelienoples started in 1904 as Harmony Nursery and specialized in nursery stock. Then, in 1917, they started raising carnations and roses, with roses taking precedence in 1932.

Kapp's interest in greenhouses began in high school. Growing up in Ross Meadows near East Liverpool, Ohio, Kapp's first job was with John Kile Co. Greenhouse. Later, Kapp managed the Kile Co. and became part owner of Lincolnway Nursery located between East Liverpool and Lisbon, Ohio.

Moving to Pittsburgh, he became affiliated with the McCallum Co. in 1938 and was later transferred to Harmony Junction, his present location. Here, Kapp managed the area greenhouses until October of 1954, when he purchased the business and named it Zelienople Greenhouse Co. His son-in-law, Dale Christzman, is the firm's vice-president.

Kapp currently has a staff of 65 to 70 trained employees, including two lab technicians trained in soil testing and five drivers who deliver the roses to retail florists. Zelienoples is one of the top rose producers in the state.

Selling wholesale only, 90 percent of the roses go to florists in a 150 to 200 mile radius. The Pittsburgh area gets most of them.

To date, the greenhouse boasts nineteen varieties of large roses and nearly a dozen varieties of sweetheart roses. The two most popular red roses are the "Samatha" and "Rolarity."

Cropping for this year's Valentine's Day began between Dec. 10 and 20. The hours of daylight, which are the shortest during the winter, and the weather are important factors in growing roses. This explains why only about 60 to 65 percent of the crop comes back to bloom for the mid-winter holiday, and why rose prices are highest in mid-winter.

A number of people are responsible for producing the Roses cut in the morning await packaging and grading. After they are cut, roses are stored in buckets of water in coolers.

Homestead Notes

“My 120 beat the rest”

Just look at this alfalfa. Leafy...fine-stemmed...the best alfalfa there is. That's not just the seed dealer in me talking. I got this proof right out of my own fields.

University tests also proved 120 is the best. You just can't get better tonnage than this. Or protein. And my 120 beat the others in fast starts, winterhardiness, longevity and regrowth, too. You need that kind of performance whether you feed it or sell it.

Why not ask your own DEKALB-PFIZER dealer about 120. Then compare it with what you're growing. You'll see how this 120 beats the rest.

beautiful roses that delight sweethearts on Valentine's Day. The main grower assigned to a particular section of the greenhouse is responsible for seeing that the roses receive the proper amount of water and fresh air, and keeps an eye on the temperature control. He also makes sure the roses are cut properly to insure a good quality rose for the next bloom.

The maintenance crew operates the coal boiler and the two gas boilers that are always ready for back-up use. Right now 20 to 21 tons of coal go through the furnace daily.

Trying to keep up with the trends from year to year is a gamble.

Every four years the 150-foot benches are replaced with new plants. Depending on the variety of roses, the plants each yield 13 to 25 blooms per cut each year, with one fourth of the plants renewed each year.

After cutting, the roses are carried to the grading building where they are sorted according to length, variety and color. Before they are taken to the retail florists, the roses must be in water for 12 to 24 hours. The delivery trucks take roses out every day.

Kapp offers the following advice to all who receive roses on Valentine's Day. "If the rose is cut fresh and left at room temperature during the day and placed somewhere cool at night, they'll last 10 to 15 days. Anything below 70°F., usually 50 to 60°F., but even down to 35°F. won't hurt them a bit." However, he continues, "If left out at 80°F., for 24 hours, the rose will only last five days."

The water temperature is also important, he said. "The rose will last longer in water temperatures before blooming to half open. If open more than half, cooler water can be used."

Kapp has served as president of Roses, Inc. of the United States and Canada, and has been vice-president, treasurer and chairman of the finance committee for several years. He has also written a book on roses titled, "What I Know About Women and Growing Roses."

Valentine's Day is still several days away, so don't forget to remember your sweetheart with roses and candy.

Wayne Co. 4-H'ers

compete in horse bowl

HAWLEY - The First Annual Wayne County 4-H Horse Bowl was held on Jan. 12th at the Queen of Peace Church Hall in Hawley, Pa.

Twelve Wayne County 4-H Horse Club members representing the Chaps and Breeches 4-H Horse Club, the Wayne County Highsteppers 4-H Horse Club and the South Canaan Saddle Club, participated in this 4-H event.

The members of these teams earned points for themselves and their team by answering a series of questions dealing with horse health, nutrition, management, 4-H horse show rules and equipment, horse breeds and general horse information.

The Chaps and Breeches 4-H Horse Club, represented by Justin Racht, from Waymart; Tammy and Robin Seely, Star Route, Honesdale; and Matt Moyle, Waymart; placed first in this competition.

The Wayne County Highsteppers 4-H Horse Club, represented by Laura and Carrie Chalmers, Honesdale; Craig Grimm, Honesdale; and Sue Tietjen, Honesdale, placed second in the 4-H Horse Bowl.

Third place in this competition was won by the South Canaan Saddle Club. This 4-H horse club was represented by Tiffany and Colleen Hughes, Waymart; David Swingle, Lake Ariel; and Christine Myers, Lake Ariel, Pa.

Awards were also given out for the six highest scoring individuals in this 4-H Horse Bowl. They were first, Justin Racht; second, Tammy Seely; third, Colleen Hughes; fourth, Robin Seely; fifth, Christine Myers; and sixth, Sue Tietjen.

The Wayne County 4-H Horse Bowl also involved a number of Wayne County 4-H Horse leaders and parents. Organizers of this event were: Kathy Racht, Jane Tietjen, Carol Chalmers and Doris Leventhal, and Geri Hughes. 4-H parents involved with the 4-H Horse Bowl were Jackie Myers and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Swingle.

"Twist-Lock" cups: newest innovation from the new leader

...another reason SWISH saves you more labor, more birds, and more money

The newest twist in cage watering makes cup cleaning and maintenance a real snap - it's SWISH's "Twist-Lock" cups for cage layers and brood-grow watering systems.

Saves labor. No more contortions with hand tools inside a cage - one simple twist of the wrist unlocks and removes the unitized cup and valve. It's that easy to maintain when necessary. But, with SWISH, it's hardly ever necessary. That's because our cup is self-cleaning. Our patented valve keeps the cup clean by flushing any feed particles out so birds can consume them with the water.

Installation is a snap too with SWISH's new cups - they simply snap into the desired location and the hose attaches to the water line outlet. These are some of the ways SWISH's new cup saves you labor - easy installation, low maintenance, and labor savings between flocks because our cup constantly cleans itself.

Helps save more birds. Because our cup is self-cleaning, algae and bacteria growth is not a problem as with cups that don't flush out feed particles. Clean cups mean less chance of disease and less mortality. And our big cup means good access to water, for a good level of bird health.

SWISH saves you money. That's the bottom line with a system that cuts labor and keeps birds alive and productive.

Get all the facts about our new cup and other SWISH innovations. See your SWISH distributor or contact us.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Taunting, flaunting, teasing, enticing, they arrive again, filling our heads with giddy promises as they sap our checkbooks.

Seed catalogs. These gardeners' wishbooks invariably hit the mailbox when the snow is up to here, the temperature down to there, and we're our most susceptible to their outlandish promises and lusty colors.

Perfect red roses, tomatoes so fat and juicy they almost drip onto your lap from the page, cabbage never nibbled by slimy green things and cantaloupes that ooze images of incomparable sweetness.

It's those poetic names and breathtaking descriptions that always do me in, like Summer Icicle, Pink Panther, Rose Diamond, Fluffy Ruffles, Rainbow, Gold Dust and Fiesta, all of which are showy, free-flowering, early-blooming, sturdy, disease-resistant, delicate, ruffled, crinkle-leaved, and so on and so on.

Once in a while a variety does, by the end of the season, live up to all the wishbook hype promised on the slick, glossy pages. Then again, more than once I've invested a mint on some highly-touted variety only to have it fizzle under the best conditions. And, with real life gardening what it is, with May frosts, June insects, July drought and August vacations, even the best varieties under coddled conditions can turn out something less than picture perfect.

No matter what I plant, it seems some varieties return year after year to my garden, and probably to yours. If you don't have these, and would like to try some, just drop me a note—I'm sure I have some extra seed flying around:

—"Slug's Favorite"—a delightful, loose-leaf variety of lettuce, bursting with extra-crinkly, deep green leaves. Each little crinkle provides a hiding place for the neighborhood baby slugs, some of which you will find in the dressing after you have finished your salad. Nice if you like meat with your vegetables.

—"Sure-to-Seed"—an old favorite spinach, slow to germinate, shy to form rosettes, but then taking off with unbelievable vigor and going straight to seed, before you get more than a serving or two. A favorite of my children, whose regard for spinach is unprintable.

—"Oh Yuk!"—an especially high-yielding type of red beet, vigorous in growth and enduring throughout the entire season. Mature overnight from tender, tiny golfball size to soccerball giants. Named by our offspring, whose inevitable reception of these served for dinner is "Oh yuk, beets."

—"Fantail"—a standby carrot variety, characterized by its ability to break from a single straight, crisp root into several useless, fingerlike projections, upon contact with the tiniest stone in the garden soil. Beloved by guinea pigs and entrants in "wierd" vegetable classes at flower shows.

—"Butterfly's Delight"—every variety of broccoli that I've ever planted. The butterfly in question here is that dainty, white cabbage moth type, which graces broccoli with its little eggs, which in turn become those awful green larvae that play hide-n-seek in broccoli heads.

My supplies of these varieties are limited, so run, don't walk, to the nearest post office with your order.

After all, planting season is right around the corner.

Cambria Co. Master Gardener program seeks participants

EBENSBURG — If you're a gardener who enjoys working with plants and people, then you don't want to miss the opportunity to become part of the Cambria County Master Gardener Program. The main objective of the program is to train the horticulture enthusiast who has interest in gardening of all types.

The program will be taught by Extension staff and past master gardeners. Information in the program will include such basic areas as soils, fertilizers, plant growth and development, pest control, and the various cultural aspects of many garden plants and crops.

The training program will begin Tuesday, March 12 and is sponsored by the Extension Service. It will be made up of five sessions for five weeks and will be held each Tuesday evening of the respective week.

There will be no enrollment fee. The only thing expected in return for the training received will be for the volunteer to return service back to Extension. At the end of the training and service period each volunteer will be awarded a Master Gardener certificate.

If you are interested, send your name and address to: Ron Hostetler, c/o Master Gardener, P.O. Box 390, Ebensburg, PA 15931.

You will receive an application and a horticultural test which you must complete and return by Monday, Feb. 25 to be considered for the program.

Make mushrooms a part of your meal plans

The ancient Greeks and Romans gathered wild mushrooms to serve exclusively to the rich and noble. Today, the best restaurants and finest gourmets add this succulent vegetable to their menu selections.

Their unique texture, form and taste make mushrooms a welcome addition to any meal. Easy to prepare, they are delicious as a side dish or included in main-dish recipes. They can be sauteed, cooked in down-home American dishes or in exotic offerings from anywhere on earth.

Mushrooms taste great and complement any protein dish whether it's meat, poultry, fish, eggs, or cheese. And, a generous 3½-ounce serving contains only 28 calories!

Have I piqued your interest? Looking for some recipes to try this tasty vegetable? Then try some of the delicious mushroom recipes below and enjoy their exquisite flavor.

MUSHROOM STEAKS

6 ounces mushrooms, chopped
¾ cup evaporated milk
1 medium onion, chopped
¾ cup quick oats
1 teaspoon Vegex (may also use Savorex or Savita)
2 eggs

Mix together for gravy:
1 can mushroom soup
1 can water

Combine the first six ingredients, mix well. Let stand for 15 minutes. Drop by tablespoonfuls into hot oil and brown nicely on each side; use medium heat. Place patties in casserole and cover with mushroom soup gravy. Bake at 350°F. until well heated; about 30 minutes. Serves 6.

This is a delicious, easy dish to prepare and is vegetarian too.

Mifflinburg

WILD RICE WITH MUSHROOMS AND ALMONDS

1 cup uncooked wild rice
¾ cup butter or margarine
½ cup slivered almonds
2 tablespoons snipped chives or chopped green onions
1 8-ounce can mushroom stems and pieces, drained
3 cups chicken broth

Wash and drain rice. Melt butter in large skillet. Add rice, almonds, chives and mushrooms; cook and stir until almonds are golden brown, about 20 minutes.

Heat oven to 325°F. Pour rice mixture into ungreased 1½-quart casserole. Heat chicken broth to boiling; stir into rice mixture. Cover tightly; bake about 1½ hours or until all liquid is absorbed and rice is tender and fluffy.

CREAMED MUSHROOMS

3 pounds mushrooms
1 stick margarine or butter
1 can evaporated milk
Salt

Flour and water for thickening

Wash and slice mushrooms thinly. Place in heavy pan with butter and salt. Cover tightly. Add no water. Cook until tender and covered with own juice. Add the milk. Simmer a few minutes. Mix flour and water to thicken. Use approximately ½ cup flour.

Sally Souder
New Holland

CZECH LENTEN MUSHROOM AND SAUERKRAUT SOUP

1 pound 27-ounce can sauerkraut
1-ounce package dried mushrooms Sauce (Lapashka):
1 small onion (diced)
¼ cup oil
½ cup flour

Cook mushrooms and sauerkraut ½ hour.

Add onions and oil in an iron fry pan. Heat well and add flour gradually. Stir constantly until flour browns. Add to soup and cook ½ hour. Soup should be thick so more sauce can be made and added.

Note: This is an old recipe from the days when a pot would be filled from the sauerkraut barrel and a few handfuls of fresh home dried (strung on a string and hung behind the coal stove to dry) mushrooms were thrown in, so it wasn't easy to break this recipe down.

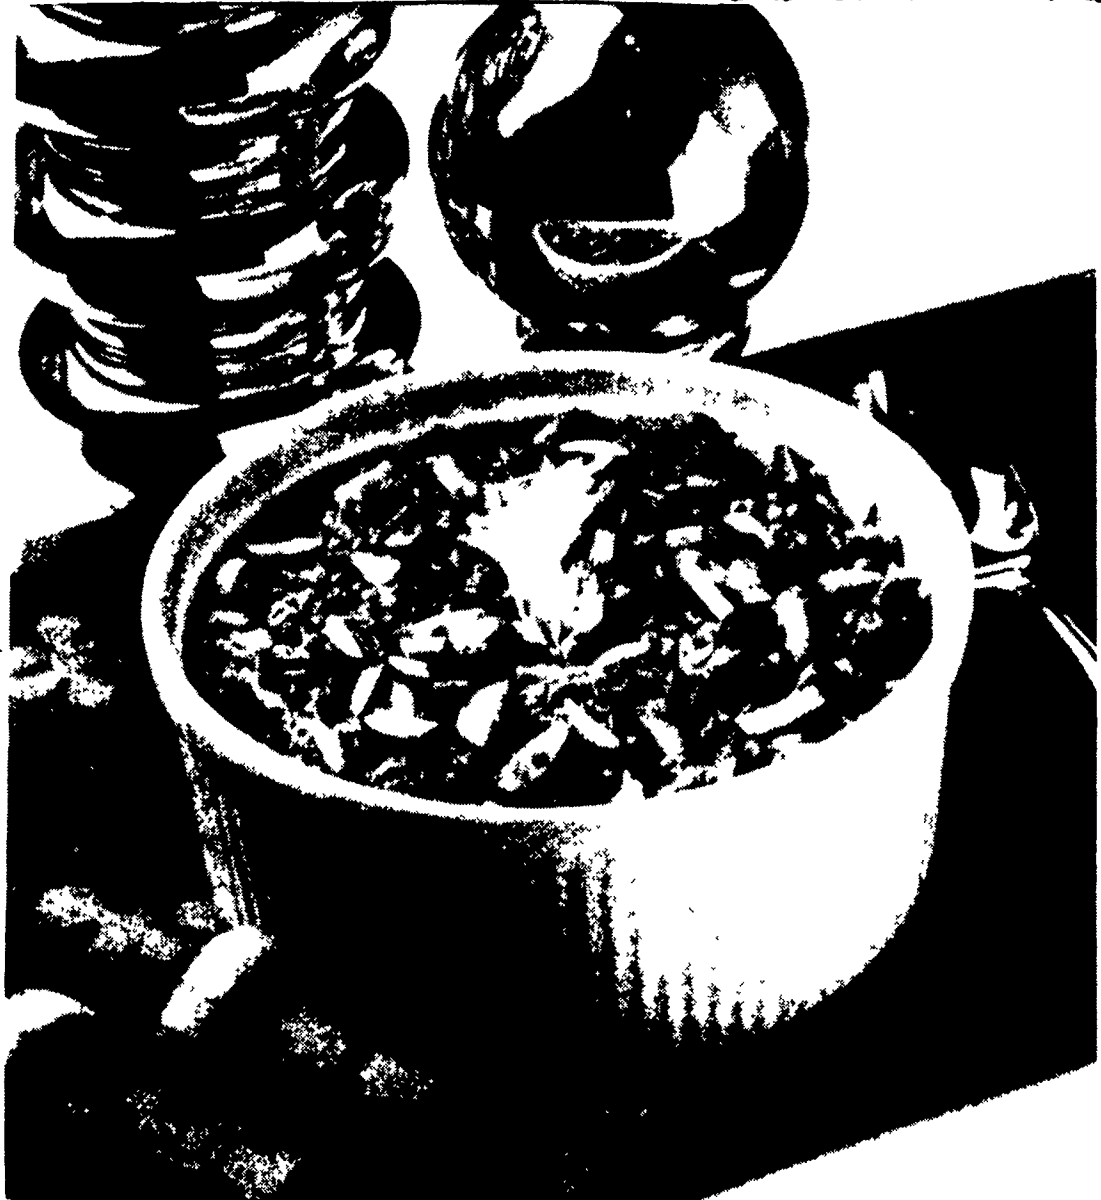

Mary Lehman
Pine Grove

DICK'S DELIGHT

3 cups sugar snap peas (strings removed)
3 cups sliced mushrooms
1½ cups sliced onions (wedges)
½ teaspoon garlic powder
½ cup sherry
1 cup chicken bouillon
4 teaspoons cornstarch
Salt to taste
Vegetable cooking spray

Spray frying pan with vegetable oil and heat. Add prepared peas and stir fry one minute. Remove peas to plate. Add onions and stir fry one minute. Remove onions to plate. Lower heat and add mushrooms. Cover and cook until limp. Add garlic powder, sherry, salt and ½ cup bouillon to mushrooms. Make paste of ½ cup bouillon and 4 teaspoons cornstarch. Add to mushroom mixture and cook until clear. Add peas and onions. Warm through. Note: Do not overcook. Vegetables should be crunchy.

ELEGANT MUSHROOM QUICHE

1 8-ounce can refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
8 strips of bacon, cooked crisp and crumbled
¾ cup shredded cheddar cheese
¾ cup shredded Swiss cheese
12 ounces fresh mushrooms, washed and sliced
3 tablespoons margarine
1 cup boiling water
1 individual serving envelope of cream of mushroom soup mix
1 individual serving envelope of cream of chicken soup mix
3 eggs, beaten
½ cup milk
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons flour
¼ cup dairy sour cream
½ teaspoon chopped chives
¼ teaspoon paprika

Separate crescent dough into 8 triangles. Place triangles in an ungreased 10-inch pie pan or quiche dish. Press over bottom and up sides to form a crust.

Mix cheeses and bacon together. Reserve ¼ cup of this mixture for later use. Arrange remainder evenly over bottom of prepared crust. Saute mushrooms gently in large skillet, in the 3 tablespoons margarine. Remove from skillet with slotted spoon. Set aside.

In large mixing bowl, empty both envelopes of soup mix. Pour in the boiling water, stirring till smooth. On medium speed of electric mixer, or with rotary beater, mix in the eggs. Beat in the milk, pepper, flour and sour cream till thoroughly blended. With a spoon stir in the mushrooms. Pour into crust.

In a preheated 350°F. oven, place carefully on center rack. Bake 25 minutes. Add reserved bacon-cheese mixture by sprinkling evenly over top of quiche. Bake 10 more minutes. Sprinkle with chives and paprika. Bake 10 to 15 minutes longer (till puffy and lightly brown). Remove to a rack and allow to cool 10 minutes. Cut into wedges and serve. Makes 6 servings.

MUSHROOM CASSEROLE

3 to 4 pounds mushrooms, (sliced and cooked)
1 16-ounce package stuffing mix
Chopped onion and celery (optional)
1 16-ounce box Velveeta cheese, sliced OR ¾ pound sharp cheddar cheese, shredded, OR ¾ pound Mozzarella cheese, grated ¾ cup water

¼ pound butter
1¼ cup half and half

Wash, slice and cook mushrooms briefly. Drain. Melt butter in water, then combine with stuffing mix, adding celery and onion if desired. Stuffing will be slightly dry.

In greased 14x9-inch casserole layer mushrooms, cheese, then stuffing. Repeat, ending with stuffing. Dot with butter. Casserole may be made ahead and refrigerated until cooking time. Just before cooking, pour over 1¼ cups half and half. Bake at 350°F. for 30 minutes.

Featured Recipe

This week's featured recipe comes from Stella Esbenshade of Mount Joy. Stella has been busily quilting quilts in preparation for the Pennsylvania Relief Sale to be held on April 6 at the Farm Show Building.

Working with the Mount Joy Sewing Circle and her church's adult Sunday School class, Stella has helped quilt two quilts for the auction. She plans to make the following Cherry Cream Dessert for the sewing circle the next time they meet in her home.

To learn more about Stella and the sale, see the story featuring them in this week's B Section.

Cherry Cream Dessert

1 9-inch graham cracker crumb crust

To make crust combine 1½ cups graham cracker crumbs (18 crackers), 3 tablespoons sugar, ¼ cups melted butter. Press into sides and bottom of 9-inch pie pan and bake in 350°F. oven for 10 minutes.

Filling

1 8-ounce package cream cheese

1 14-ounce can Borden's condensed milk

½ cup lemon juice

1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix all ingredients together in mixer and pour into prepared pie shell. Chill 3 to 4 hours or overnight. Top with cherry pie filling and whipped cream.

NO-SWEAT NO-TILL

BICEP + PRINCEP

To get unbeatable broadleaf and grass control in no-till corn, all you need is a program with Bicep® + Princep®.

Here's why: Bicep gives you season-long broad-spectrum control in conventional and conservation tillage.

But, for no-till corn, combine Bicep with Princep and you'll get long-lasting, residual properties that take care of broadleaves and grasses right up to a clean harvest. Even late germinators like crabgrass and fall panicum.

It's the dependable, economical combination that's going to become your standard for no-till.

MUSHROOM CHOWDER

Saute 1 pound mushrooms, ½ cup chopped onion, 1 cup diced potatoes, 1 cup chopped celery, 1 cup chopped carrots in ½ cup butter. Cover and simmer 10 minutes. Add 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon dried parsley, 3 cups chicken stock; bring to a boil. Mix together 2 tablespoons water and 1 tablespoon flour. Add to chicken stock. When slightly thickened, add 3 cups diced cooked chicken and 1 cup milk; bring to boiling point but DO NOT boil. Top servings with parmesan cheese.

MUSHROOM SPINACH SALAD
8 ounces fresh mushrooms
½ pound fresh spinach
¼ cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon salad oil
1 teaspoon onion powder
2 teaspoons instant nonfat milk powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
1/8 teaspoon powdered mustard
Pinch of ground black pepper
Rinse, pat dry and slice mushrooms (makes about 2½ cups). Wash and drain spinach; tear into bite size pieces. Place mushrooms and spinach in a salad bowl. In a covered container combine remaining ingredients; blend until smooth. Pour over mushrooms and spinach; toss gently. Yield: 6 portions.

STUFFED MUSHROOMS
Remove stems from 24 large mushrooms. Chop and cook stems in 2 tablespoons butter with 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion. Remove from heat, stir in ¼ cup fine bread crumbs, ½ teaspoon dillweed, 1/8 teaspoon salt and 1/8 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Fill mushroom crowns with this mixture. Bake on greased baking sheet at 425°F. about 8 minutes.

MUSHROOM SPREAD

4 slices bacon
3 cups chopped fresh mushrooms (1 pound or 12 ounces)
1 medium onion (chopped)
1 clove garlic (minced)
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 8-ounce package cream cheese
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
½ cup sour cream

Cook bacon until crisp. Cook mushroom, onion and garlic in 2 tablespoons of drippings until tender and most of the liquid has evaporated. Stir in flour, salt and pepper. Add cubed cream cheese, Worcestershire sauce and soy sauce. Heat and stir till cheese is melted. Stir in sour cream and crumbled bacon. Heat, but do not boil. Makes 2½ cups. Serve on rye bread rounds, crackers or melba toast.

Jody Henkel accepted into IFYE program

LANCASTER — Jody Henkel of Strasburg has recently been accepted into the International 4-H Youth Exchange program and will be leaving for an as yet undisclosed destination sometime this spring.

Jody, the 24-year-old daughter of John and Carol Henkel, applied to participate in the IFYE program in Europe, but at this time does not know where she will be traveling.

"I'm intrigued by some of the things there," Jody says when talking of her desire to travel to Europe. "I've wanted to go for a while, but I didn't feel I was ready."

Jody enjoys meeting people from different places and says she is looking forward to observing the differences in farms in Europe and the United States.

Traveling abroad is not a new experience for Jody, who has traveled to Turkey as an exchange student while in high school. Reflecting on her experience in Turkey, Jody said "It was hard, but I learned a lot about myself. It was really good. I wouldn't tell someone not to go."

A 4-H'er for four years, Jody is a past member of the Rough Riders 4-H Club and showed at the state horse show in 1978. She was a teen leader for three years and participated in National 4-H Days in Washington D.C.. Jody also served on County Council for three years.

She graduated from Colorado State University in 1982 with a bachelor's degree in animal science. Following graduation she worked as a farrowing manager on a Colorado farm, then returned to Lancaster where she now lives on her parent's hog farm in Strasburg.

Jody's trip will be sponsored by area industries and private funding. Anyone interested in helping with her expenses can their check payable to the 4-H Development Fund and send it to the Lancaster County Extension, care of 4-H agent Zoann Parker.

Ladies Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

KEEP FASHIONABLY WARM

Winter is here, bringing the cold, the snow and ice along with it. But you can stay warm — even with the thermostat set at 68°F. or lower — by opting to wear the fashionably layered look.

The secret is insulation. Insulate your body from the cold as you would insulate your home. The best insulator, for you or for your home, is air. By trapping the air between your clothing and your skin, you can form your own personal insulation system.

Wear clothes that trap as much air as possible around your body; this does not necessarily mean heavy clothes. Two thinner, less bulky sweaters, for example, insulate better than one thick, bulky sweater. This is because the two sweaters not only trap air themselves, but also trap a layer of air between them. Just as important, if you get too warm, you can always loosen or remove a layer. Be sure that your outer sweater is bigger than the inner one, to allow enough room for that air layer as well as to provide some ease.

If clothes fit too tightly, there is no room for air to be trapped between the clothing and your skin. If the clothes are too loose, the air moves around and carries heat away from your body as you move. Therefore, select clothing that falls somewhere between the two extremes.

Skirts or jumpers and blouses are good choices, as these lend themselves to layering. Choose a skirt made of a fabric that has some thickness and insulation, but don't choose one that's too full. You want to prevent excess air movement.

The new longer length in skirts is not only fashionable, but also adds warmth to your legs. A blouse, jersey, or light sweater serves nicely for a top. Choose long sleeves to keep your arms warm. A turtleneck underneath a top keeps warm air from leaving your body.

Next, add a sweater or vest to your ensemble. Quilted vests are popular, and the added thickness — the trapped air in the batting — means much more warmth. You could also choose a tunic top to go over the costume. Many different lengths are in style. The longer ones cover more of your body and provide much more warmth.

A jacket or blazer is always an appropriate choice, whether matching or coordinating, because it adds another layer for warmth. Or, consider the wide variety of shawls that are still in fashion.

The layered look is "in." Take advantage of it, and keep fashionably warm this winter.

NEW WAYS

FOR OLD VEGETABLES

Next time you're clearing the table, notice the leftovers. Most likely they will be the vegetables. Vegetables are a food most Americans don't eat enough of. Too many diets are lacking in vitamins A and C, found in vegetables.

Making vegetables more attractive and tasty could help your family like them more. Before cooking any vegetable or combination of vegetables, add a pinch of herb, such as marjoram or thyme. Or, after cooking, season with butter, margarine — or even salad oil and lemon juice, horseradish or garlic. Try sprinkling cooked vegetables with herb vinegar or crumbled bacon.

You can mash a number of vegetables besides white potatoes and sweet potatoes. Turnips, rutabagas, kohlrabi, carrots and winter squash are all good that way. Add hot milk or cream to moisten. Season with salt, pepper and butter or margarine, then beat until fluffy.

Cream peas, carrots, celery, cabbage, asparagus, broccoli, potatoes, snap beans, onions, lima beans, cauliflower or spinach, using a seasoned medium white sauce. For quick creamed vegetables pour a can of undiluted condensed soup over three cups drained cooked vegetables.

Chill cooked vegetables and marinate them in sweet French or Italian dressing. Any of these are tastier than just plain unadorned vegetables.

4-H leaders forum planned for March

TOWANDA — The 1985 Pennsylvania 4-H Leaders Forum will be held March 28-30 at the Penn State Sheraton Inn. The theme for the forum will be Pennsylvania and 4-H Friends Forever. The keynote speaker will be Dr. Donald Stormer, deputy administration 4-H/USDA.

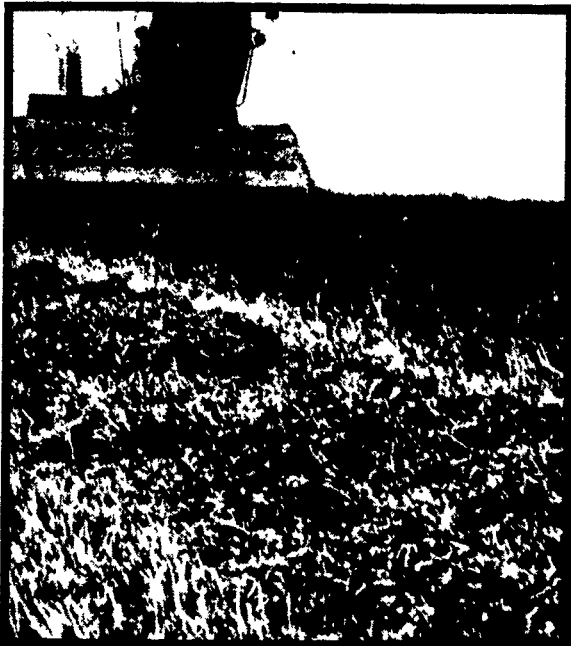

The program will include in depth leader education workshops Thursday afternoon and Friday morning and a variety of shorter workshops Friday afternoon and Saturday. The workshops will focus on 4-H computer projects, putting flair into Fashion Revue, horticulture activities, intergenerational 4-H programs, 4-H meat science project and recreation.

Other workshop topics will include 4-H project completion, clothing and textiles and food and nutrition project updates, 4-H promotion, using key leaders, involving teens in 4-H, techniques of teaching, using 4-H committees, improving 4-H advisory committees, designing exhibits, and stress management.

If you are interested in attending the 1985 Pennsylvania 4-H Leaders Forum, contact the Cooperative Extension Office in your county today.

Make an animal valentine

How do you say 'I love you' with an animal shaped valentine? First think of a funny love line using an animal's name. Then on a piece of paper folded in half, draw half the animal shape and cut it out. Color it with crayons or paint, or paste on a heart shaped piece of paper or lace. Print on that funny love message, seal it with a kiss and send it off. That's what Ranger Rick did when he made these valentines just for you!

A single colony of 500,000 weaver ants in tropical Africa, Asia, or Australia can maintain 150 nests in as many as 20 trees and patrol 1,600 square meters. It's one of the largest insect territories known, National Geographic says.

On Washington state's Olympic Peninsula, the Hoh rain forest gets about 140 inches of rain a year, but farmers just 40 miles away, on the other side of the Olympic Mountains, must irrigate to survive, says National Geographic.

The Byzantine Empire kept defenses up by gathering information - from distant ports, naval patrols, envoys, merchants, spies, and defectors. Collating the intelligence was the Bureau of Barbarians, Constantinople's CIA, says National Geographic.

A school of krill - thumb-length crustaceans consumed by whales - can molt en masse to flee danger, leaving a phantom school of empty exoskeletons, says National Geographic.

Surprise your valentine with a tasty dessert

Valentine's Day brings roses, lacy cards bearing loving verses, and scrumptious desserts featuring rich chocolate and bright red cherries.

Surprise your valentine with one of the fancy desserts below. If he's a chocoholic, he'll be sure to devour the Chocolate Decadence with much enjoyment.

But if your valentine prefers cherries, he'll find the Cherry Berries on a Cloud more to his liking. Made in a heart shape, this tasty dessert makes a creative, edible valentine.

Luscious, Pink Bavarian Cream is a light, fluffy dessert that every valentine will certainly enjoy. This creamy dessert features strawberries and whipped cream.

You might want to surprise the angel in your life with Fluffy Angel Meringue, a light, heart-shaped dessert featuring a pineapple filling.

CHOCOLATE DECADENCE

16 ounces bittersweet chocolate
10 tablespoons unsalted butter, at room temperature
4 Grade A large eggs
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon flour

2 cups whipping cream
1 tablespoon powdered sugar
1 teaspoon pure vanilla
Chocolate curls for decoration
Raspberry Sauce (recipe follows)

Preheat oven to 425°F. Butter an 8-inch round cake pan. Cut parchment paper to fit the bottom and butter the paper. Flour the lined pan and set aside.

Prep work: Cut chocolate into small pieces. Place with butter in the top of a double boiler over hot, not boiling water. Stir until smooth, remove from the heat and set aside.

In the top of another double boiler, whisk egg and sugar over hot, not boiling, water. Whisk until sugar dissolves. The mixture will darken slightly and be barely warm to the touch. Remove from heat. Place the egg mixture in a mixer bowl and beat, at highest speed, until eggs are the consistency of light whipped cream. This will take about 5 to 10 minutes. Fold in the flour. Fold a third of the egg mixture into the chocolate to lighten it. Add the rest of the egg mixture and fold in carefully, deflating the mixture as little as possible. Pour batter into pan and tap pan lightly on the table to remove any air bubbles.

Bake 15 minutes. The center will be soft and the top will be crusty.

Cool on a rack. Cover the pan with plastic wrap and freeze overnight. To serve, remove Decadence from the freezer early in the day. Turn onto a flat serving plate and remove the parchment paper. Whip the cream with the powdered sugar and vanilla until it forms soft peaks. Do not over- whip. Frost the cake, using two-thirds of the whipping cream. Top cake with chocolate curls.

Raspberry Sauce

10-ounce package frozen raspberries, thawed
3 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon Framboise or Kirsh (optional)

Puree raspberries in the bowl of a food processor, fitted with a steel knife. (A blender may be used.) Strain to remove seeds. Stir in sugar and puree and then add the Framboise or Kirsch. Blend well and refrigerate until ready to use.

CHERRIES ON A CLOUD

3 egg whites (1/3 to 1/2 cup)
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
3/4 cup sugar
1 3-ounce package cream cheese, softened
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chilled whipping cream
1 cup miniature marshmallows
Cherry-Berry Topping (Below)

Heat oven to 275°F. Cover baking sheet with heavy brown paper; draw outline of heart, 9 inches across greatest width, on paper. Beat egg whites and cream of tartar until foamy. Beat in 3/4 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time; continue beating until stiff and glossy. Do not underbeat! Spoon meringue into outline on paper, building up side.

Bake 1 1/2 hours. Turn off oven; leave meringue in oven with door closed 1 hour. Remove from oven; finish cooling away from draft.

Blend cream cheese, 1/2 cup sugar and the vanilla. In chilled bowl, beat cream until stiff. Gently fold whipped cream and marshmallows into cream cheese mixture. Pile into meringue shell. Cover; chill at least 12 hours. Just before serving, top with Cherry Berry Topping; cut into wedges.

Cherry Berry Topping: Stir together 1 21-ounce can cherry pie filling, 1 teaspoon lemon juice and, if desired, 2 cups sliced strawberries or 1 16-ounce package frozen strawberries, thawed.

PINK BAVARIAN CREAM

1 10-ounce package frozen sliced strawberries, thawed
1 cup boiling water
1 3-ounce package strawberry-flavored gelatin
1 cup chilled whipping cream
Drain strawberries, reserving syrup. Pour boiling water over gelatin, stirring until gelatin is dissolved. Add enough cold water to reserved syrup to measure 1 cup; stir into dissolved gelatin. Chill until almost set.

In chilled bowl, beat cream until stiff. Beat gelatin until foamy. Fold gelatin and strawberries into whipped cream. Pour into 1-quart mold. Chill until firm. If you wish, garnish with additional whipped cream and strawberries. Serves 6.

FLUFFY ANGEL MERINGUE

Meringue:
3 egg whites, at room temperature
1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar
1/4 teaspoon almond extract
Dash salt

3/4 cup sugar
Red food color, if desired
Pineapple Filling:

1 20-ounce can crushed pineapple in unsweetened juice
3/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup cornstarch
Dash salt
3 egg yolks, slightly beaten
2 teaspoons grated orange peel
3 tablespoons orange juice
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
Fresh strawberries, sliced

Preheat oven to 275°F. For meringue, draw a heart 9-inches long and 9-inches at widest point on heavy brown paper. (A heart-shaped cake pan makes a good guide.) Place on baking sheet; set aside. Beat egg whites in small mixer bowl until frothy. Add cream of tartar, almond extract and salt; beat until soft peaks form. Add sugar, 1 tablespoon at a

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Every now and then I like to reflect on the life-style of my great grandparents who lived on a farm in eastern Lancaster County.

I've been told that in the mid 1800's their general farm resembled a tiny village with several tenant houses, a blacksmith shop, a cooper, a wagon and corn crib shed, a pig sty, a summerhouse with a bake oven, a springhouse in addition to the large bank barn and a huge brick house.

A small stream ran through the meadow and was the scene of a tragedy that the family never completely recovered from. My grandmother and her older sister were to watch their baby brother but somehow he disappeared and was found floating in the stream. In later years, my great grandmother kept one room full of dolls that she made to give to children who visited her.

They had a variety of animals on their farm including geese, ducks, guinea fowl, sheep, cattle, horses and even peacocks. My grandmother had a beautiful arrangement of peacock feathers hung in her bedroom and I remember admiring them as a child.

My great grandfather crossed the ocean seven times to visit relatives in Germany. He must have been an unusual man as he decided one year to put a glass roof on his barn. Later it had to be removed as it was too heavy and it got too hot in the barn. I still have some of the ridged yellow, blue, green and amber glass that was used.

It is also said that he had bad luck because his barn burned twice. One time the hired girl accidentally dropped a candle in the hay while hunting the eggs. When he was coming home from Lancaster, he was informed of the fire and he immediately turned his team around and drove back to town for a load of lumber to rebuild.

It appears that farmers are not easily discouraged!

York 4-H'ers plan Fun Night

YORK — The annual 4-H Family Fun Night will be held Saturday, Feb. 9th from 7-10 p.m. at the York Co. 4-H Center near Bair. The evening will include a covered dish dinner, square dancing, bingo and lip sync performances by 4-H members.

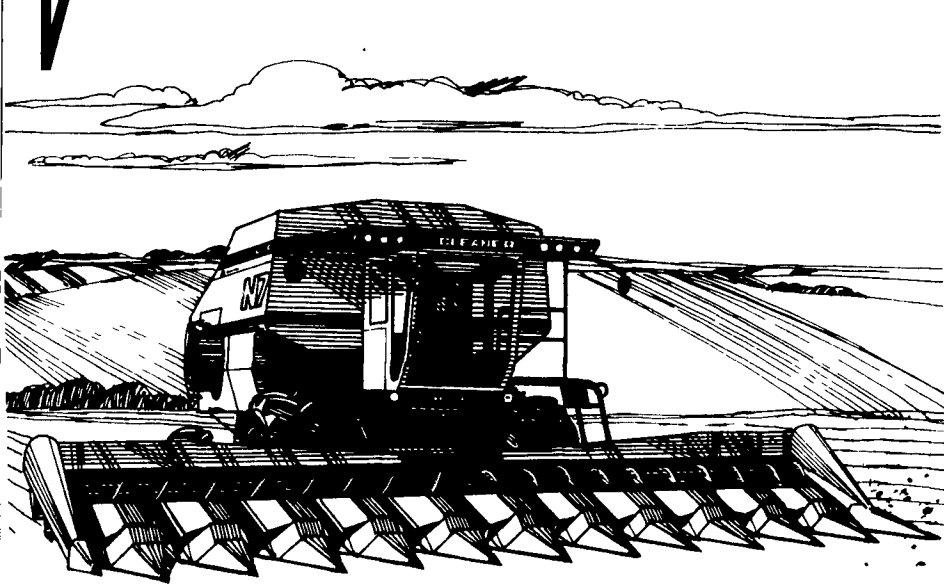

In conjunction with the Fun Night will be the 4-H Poster Contest. All 4-H Members are encouraged to create a 14"x12"-inch poster on one of the following themes: "Learning For Life;" "Picture the Possibilities" or Open. Junior Division is for contestants age 8-12 and Senior Division, age 13-19. The top three posters from each division will be sent on to state competition.

time and continue beating until stiff peaks form. Tint with food color. Spread on heart shape, forming sides 1½ to 1¾-inches high. Bake 45 minutes. Turn off oven. Leave in oven 45 additional minutes. For filling, drain pineapple, reserving juice. Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt in a 1-quart saucepan; gradually stir in pineapple juice. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly; until thickened and mixture reaches a full boil. Boil and stir 2 additional minutes. Blend a small amount of hot mixture into egg yolks; return all to pan. Cook 1 minute. Stir in pineapple, orange peel and orange juice. Chill. Fold in whipped cream. Chill filling 2 to 3 hours before serving. To serve, spoon filling into meringue shell. Garnish with strawberries.

Make a pot roast in your microwave

This is the second of a two-part series on cooking meats in your microwave. The directions today are for cooking fresh pork roasts, fresh ham, and pot roasts. Tender beef roasts, precooked hams, and beef cooked to rare or medium are best cooked as directed in this column last week. For well-done beef, you could use either the directions given here, or those given last week. Try it both ways to see which you prefer!

Pork roasts and pot roasts need a low power and a covered container to be cooked in the microwave. Pork needs to be cooked slowly to make sure that it is cooked evenly throughout. And pot roasts need to be cooked slowly to be tenderized. If you like VERY well done beef, use this technique too, to get evenly cooked, juicy meat.

You need a microwave with a low setting, such as defrost, 30, or 3, to cook pork roasts and pot roasts in your microwave. If your oven has only high power, you should not cook these meats, because the pork may not be evenly cooked throughout, and the pot roasts will get tough instead of tender on high power.

Pork needs to reach an internal temperature of 170°F to kill any trichinae organisms that might be present in the meat. Several years ago there was a report that pork could not be safely cooked in a microwave. However, recent research has shown that when pork is cooked in a covered container on low power to 170°F, it is evenly cooked and safe to eat.

Be sure to thoroughly defrost all roasts before roasting. Use a temperature probe for pork roasts if your oven has one. It is the safest way to cook pork. Boneless rolled roasts that weigh between three and five pounds cook the most evenly. Start all roasts upside down, and turn them over halfway through the cooking time. Let all pork and pot roasts stand for 10-15 minutes after microwaving to finish cooking.

Closed-Container Roasting

Use these directions for fresh pork roasts, fresh hams, pot roasts and tougher cuts of beef that need to be tenderized, such as chuck roasts. If you like your beef VERY well done you will like the evenly cooked, juicy meat this slow roasting technique gives you.

These roasts are cooked in an oven cooking bag in a flat microsafe pan. If you have a large (3-4 quart) covered casserole dish or covered microwave roaster you could use one of these instead. A covered container or oven bag is important to hold the heat and steam around the meat for even cooking and tenderizing.

1. Rub roast with garlic, pepper, etc. as desired. If additional browning is desired, baste the roast with Kitchen Bouquet, or sprinkle evenly with Micro-Shake, dry onion or mushroom soup mix, or a dry gravy mix.

2. Put the tip of the probe in the center of the roast. Don't let it touch bone or fatty areas. Put the roast upside down in an oven cooking bag and let the probe wire come out through the hole where you tie the bag closed.

3. For pot roasts, or tough roasts that need tenderizing, add 1/2 to 1 cup liquid, such as water or juice to the bag. Do not add liquid for pork roasts, or tender beef roasts to be cooked to very well done.

4. Tie the bag closed very loosely

Approximate Roasting Temperatures and Times
(600-700 Watt oven at 30% power)

| Meat                | Probe Temperature* | Serving Temperature* | Approximate Min./Pound |
|---------------------|--------------------|----------------------|------------------------|
| Very well done Beef | 150                | 165-170              | 19-20                  |
| Fresh pork, ham     | 170                | 175-180              | 21                     |

*PLEASE NOTE: The "Probe Temperature" is the temperature you set in your oven, for the microwave cooking to stop when the roast reaches this temperature. The "Serving Temperature" is the temperature the roast will be AFTER 10 MINUTES STANDING TIME. Temperatures in the middle of a roast will increase one or two degrees each minute during standing time as the center continues to cook.

Tip: If you want to add around the probe wire, leaving at least a half-inch opening for steam to escape. Tie it with a plastic fastener, string, or a small strip of plastic cut from the end of the bag. Do not use a metal twist-tie. If you fasten the bag tightly, it may pop or split open from steam pressure.

5. Set probe for 100°F. and set oven to cook on low (30, 3, defrost). If your oven does not have a probe, or you cannot set it for this low a temperature, cook the roast for the first half of the cooking time without the probe, using the times given in the chart below.

6. When oven stops, turn roast (bag, juices and all) over in the dish. Do not drain the juices; shielding should not be necessary. Set probe temperature for 170°F. for fresh pork and 150-155 degrees for very well done beef or pot roast (see chart below). Set oven to cook on low power (30, 3) again.

7. When meat reaches the set temperature, cover roast and bag with foil to stand for 10 minutes. To make gravy, drain the juices from the roast before letting it stand, and make the gravy while the roast stands. Check for doneness after standing time; cook it longer if necessary.

vegetables with the pot roast, such as onions, potatoes, carrots, etc. you may do so at the beginning of the cooking time, but the meat will take longer to cook than the times given in the chart because of the added food.

Note: The times above are for microwave ovens with 600-700 watts of power. For 500-600 W, add 10 seconds to each minute; for 400-500 W, add 20 seconds to each minute.

Nutrition add-ons can help the underweight

PITTSBURGH — Believe it or not, there are people who need to gain weight or are working to not lost weight! Sometimes in this diet conscious world, we forget about persons who are at the other extreme because of either a health problem or some factor that keeps them thinner than they want to be or should be!

Much is written on losing weight, but there is little to help in weight gain according to Judy Dodd, a registered dietitian for Dairy and Nutrition Council. Start first by examining the possible reasons for a person being under weight since this can give clues on where to begin. Determine too if the weight loss is unexpected, rapid, or extreme. Any such losses should be discussed with a physician. Unless a person is dieting, weight loss of one pound a week over a month would indicate need for evaluation. This is even more of a concern if the person is already underweight.

If appetite isn't good, or if food doesn't have any appeal, there may be an underlying health problem. Medications or medical treatment may cause loss of appetite. In some cases, there may be lessening of the ability to taste food. Check with a physician to determine if loss of appetite is a side-effect of medication. There may be a need to check the dose level or use alternative medications if the weight or appetite loss is major.

Loss of appetite or food "appeal" may indicate some need for some other kinds of assistance.

Depression, loneliness, and emotional upsets often lead to food rejection. This can be serious enough to warrant professional counseling. In the older adult, providing the stimulation of mealtime with other persons present may be a way to easily "perk up" an appetite.

For the person with a limited appetite and for the picky eater, using mini-meals and "sneaky" nutrition add-ons may be the answer. Mini-meals are chosen with nutrition in mind but are spaced to provide frequent eating times, perhaps five or six per day. "Sneaky" nutrition add-ons refer to increasing calories and nutrition through added nutritious ingredients or foods. The trick is to add calories and nutrients without increasing volume at any one meal. For the person trying to gain weight or the person with a limited appetite, this is important.

Adding nutrition can be done in more subtle ways. Milk can be fortified by adding extra non-fat dry milk solids to fluid milk. This adds extra calories, protein, Vitamin D and calcium without making a major change in volume or fat content. This fortified milk can be used as a base for milkshakes or mixed with equal parts of fruited yogurt for an increasing drink. Use fortified milk in soups or cooking for extra nutrition. The dry powder is also a nutrition booster when added to meatloaf, hamburgers, or other meat mixtures.

Pennsylvania. Especially needed are cafeteria or conference style tables and chairs that are in good condition. Businesses and organizations that have these furnishings to donate due to renovation or redecoration should contact the Montgomery County Extension office at 489-4315.

All donations are tax deductible and arrangements for pick-up are possible.

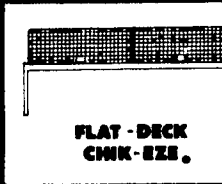

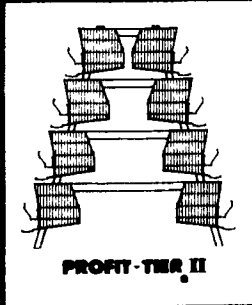

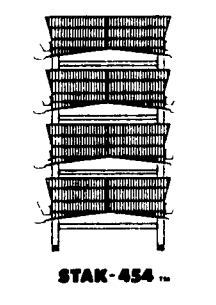

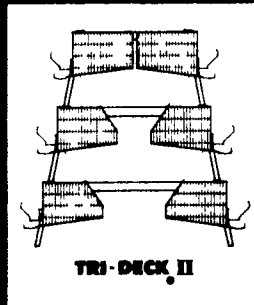

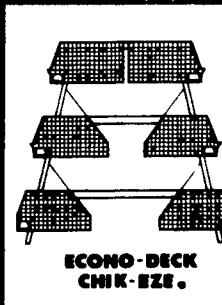

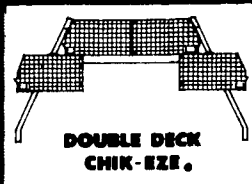

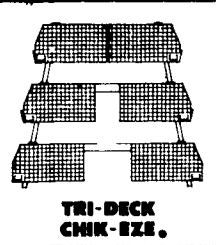

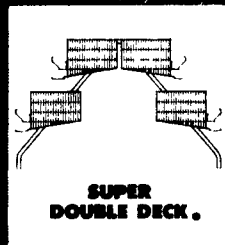

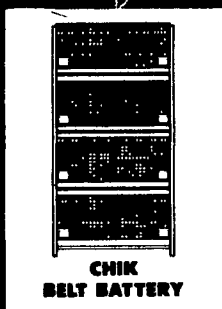

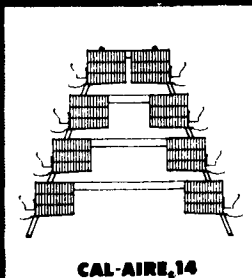

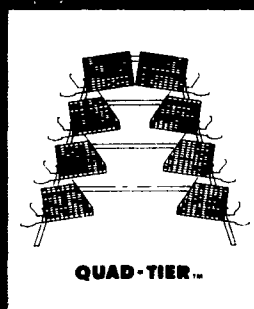

Merrill Zimmerman, chairman of the Montgomery County 4-H Foundation, explains that the need for furniture is the result of slow response to the fund-raising drive "despite generous assistance from some local businesses and a grant from the County Commissioners, we are still short of our fund-raising goal".

Renovations are nearly complete at the Old Creamery Elementary School which will house the new 4-H Center. "We hope to have 4-H clubs meetings here by this spring", claims Zimmerman. He adds, "When it is completed it will be one of the finest 4-H facilities in Pennsylvania."

Among the many activities that will be offered at the 4-H Center are horsemanship; pet care; clothing construction; foods and nutrition; design and crafts; model rocketry; dairy; livestock; self-improvement; photography and much more.

Mennonite women quilt to help the needy

BY SUZANNE KEENE

MOUNT JOY — Some people quilt to pass the time, while others quilt because they want beautiful coverings for their beds. But Stella Esbenshade and Ruth Weaver of Mount Joy, and many other Mennonite ladies like them, quilt to help the needy people of the world.

Each year Mennonite women across the state make hundreds of quilts to be sold at the Pennsylvania Relief Sale held early each spring at the Farm Show Building in Harrisburg. Sewing in their homes, churches and at the Mennonite Central Committee's Material Aid Center in Leola, the ladies create beautiful, multi-colored quilts that will raise hundreds of dollars for relief.

When the sale, which is sponsored by the Mennonite Central Committee, is over, the money raised from the quilts and other goods auctioned at the sale is used to feed the hungry and to help the disadvantaged in other ways. The primary function of the Mennonite Central Committee is sending people to work side by side with local people to meet their needs, whether those needs are for food, education, spiritual ministry or improved agricultural procedures.

At last year's sale, the 270 quilts auctioned brought a total of $106,000, with some of the quilts selling for several thousand dollars. The highest-selling quilt, a sampler quilt, brought $5,000.

Stella and Ruth say they are always interested in seeing how much the quilts, especially the ones they made, bring at the sale.

"We're eager to know how much our quilts bring," Stella said.

The selling price of an individual quilt, she explained, depends on the quality of workmanship and the people who are bidding on it.

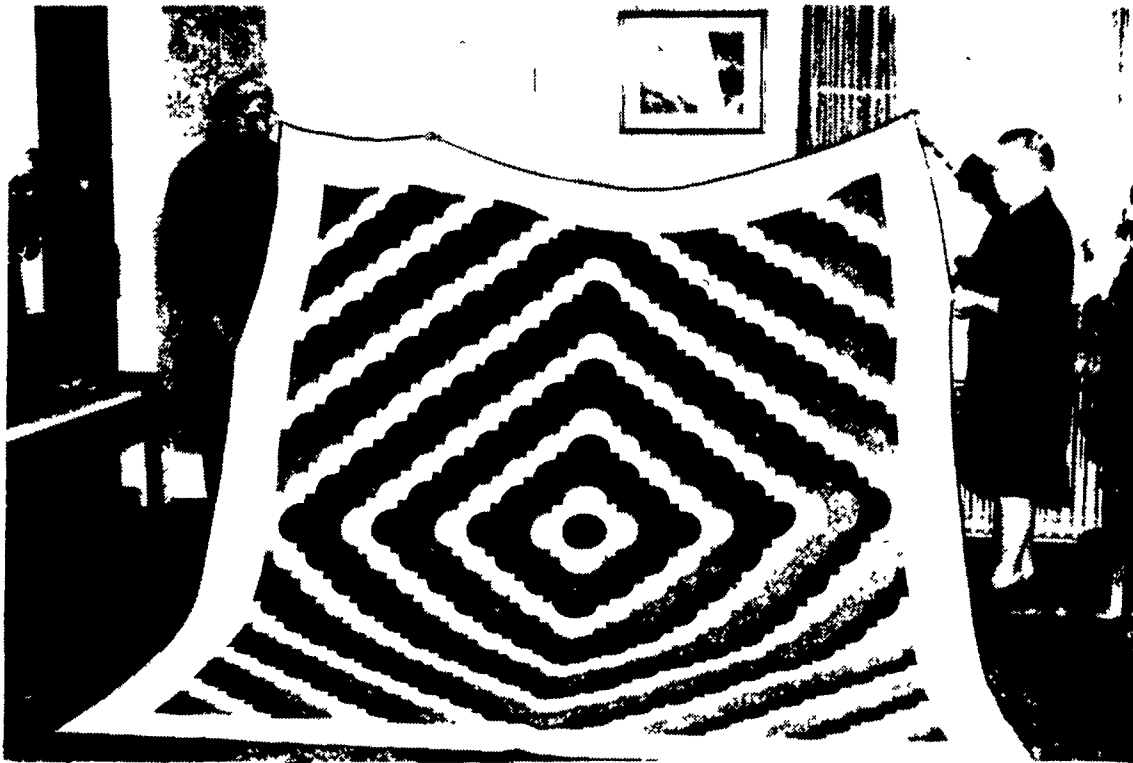

The quality of a quilt, Stella and Ruth agreed, is most evident in the size of the stitches. When working on quilts, they said they aim for 11 stitches to the inch. The closer the stitches, the finer the workmanship.

Buyers also look for straight patching. If all the corners meet like they should, the quilt is well done, they said, explaining that this is sometimes very difficult to do.

The color combinations and pattern used in the quilt are also important to its marketability. People come to the annual sale bearing swatches of fabric and wallpaper with the intention of finding the perfect quilt for their decor.

And while the ladies are interested in the prices the quilts bring, they are just as interested in seeing what the other entries look like. "I just like to see the quilts," Ruth said, explaining that she goes up to the Farm Show Building the Friday night before the sale to view the quilts. While they are there, the ladies take the opportunity to compare their quilts with the other entries and get new ideas for the next year.

Although this year's sale isn't until April 6, Stella and Ruth have been busily preparing for the sale for the past several weeks, working on quilts that will soon be delivered to the Mennonite Central Ruth Weaver, left, and Stella Esbenshade display the None Such quilt that the Mount Joy Sewing Circle is donating to the Pennsylvania Relief Sale, scheduled for April 6 this year.

Committee. The Mount Joy Sewing Circle, which Stella belongs to, will be donating a None Such quilt made in cranberry and white and highlighted by pink fabric with a tiny floral pattern.

Stella has also helped with a quilt done in the Casement Window pattern that will be donated by the Mount Joy Mennonite Church adult Sunday school class, to which she belongs.

Stella and seven other ladies worked for some eighty hours quilting the off-white and brown coverlet. Working in groups of two or three at a time, the ladies gathered around the quilting frame at Stella's farm home for an afternoon or an evening of quilting. In about ten days they had completed the project.

Stella is an experienced quilter, having made her first quilt when she was just 12 years old. She learned quilting from her mother and grandmother. She recalls that as a child the neighborhood ladies would gather at her house for a full day of quilting and fellowship.

"They'd come in the morning and quilt all day," she explained. In between they would break for a bowl of oxtail or noodle soup.

She had to slow up on her quilting while she was raising her three daughters and helping with the farm chores, but now that her children are grown and her husband, Ross, has relinquished his farm duties to a son-in-law, she has more time to devote to her crafts.

Ruth, who helped with the Sewing Circle's quilt, learned to quilt in 1972. Although she was a reluctant student at first, with her mother's encouragement and guidance, she learned to quilt and found that she really enjoyed it. Now, she said, "It's my favorite hobby."

In addition to working on the quilts donated by individual churches and groups, the Mennonite ladies devote one full day a year to the Mennonite Central Committee. At the Committee's Material Aid Center in Leola, church groups work on some of the quilts that are always in frames there. A number of groups may work on a particular quilt, so no one individual group can take credit for quilting it.

Crafts take up much of Stella's time. She says she enjoys all kinds of crafts, including crocheting and needlepoint. She has crocheted a number of coverlets and made needlepoint covers for several chairs.

"I just like to learn new things," she said as she displayed one of her latest projects, an intricate crewel picture.

Many are blessed with talents, but those, like Stella and Ruth, who are freely willing to share their skills for the benefit of others, are doubly blessed.

This chair is upholstered in material that Stella needlepointed.

Planning helps get the job done

MEDIA — Today, I'm going to get a lot done! Does that sound familiar? Perhaps too familiar? If so, you may be failing to define what the "a lot" you want to do entails and neglecting to develop a plan to accomplish it.

Many people think the way to get a lot done is to dig right in with the first task that comes to mind. But taking a few minutes to sit down and analyze how you'll spend your time for the day is a good investment because doing so gives you a grasp of what needs to be done and how it can be done most efficiently. The old "do-something—anything" attitude can overwhelm us and leave us feeling exhausted and unaccomplished.

Instead, the first step to planning your time should be to look at each activity you think you want to complete. Then decide if it is important and figure out concrete reasons why it needs to be done and what doing it will accomplish. You may well decide that something you've been nagging yourself to do but have been avoiding is not really worth spending time on — or at least not worth spending time on now.

After you have compiled your list of tasks, work out a schedule to help you work most efficiently. Some people work best when they do all the things they don't really enjoy doing first because they know once they're finished, they can go on to more enjoyable things. Other people work most efficiently when they alternate enjoyable activities with those less palatable. Decide which type of person you are then plan to do the task you've assigned yourself in the order you know works best for you. And keep your most efficient work time in mind when planning your schedule.

If you know you get the most done in the morning, you may want to use this prime time to do activities which require the most concentration or attention.

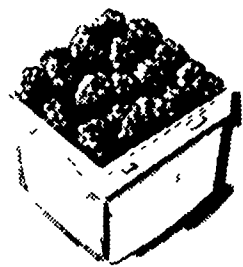

Finally, look at the sequence of work and decide what order of task will make the most efficient use of your time and energy. Look for a logical sequence of tasks and plan activities that seem to naturally flow into each other or that you can do simultaneously.

Here Stella and Ruth work on a quilt in the Casement Window pattern. Soon, the quilt will go to the Mennonite Central Committee and later to Harrisburg to be sold at the Pennsylvania Relief Sale.

For the avid gardener

Now that the ground is frozen and snow is in the air, there are still several things to be done in the garden.

Winter protection for some of the broadleaf evergreens and support for other plants will preserve quality for the coming seasons. A few minutes now will often save considerable time next spring when repairing damage or replacing lost plants.

Most of the winter injury to broadleaf evergreens like rhododendron, Japanese holly or mountain laurel comes from excess winds blowing over the frozen foliage. Frozen water in the leaves can still be lost over winter, the same way water is lost when clothes dry on the line during the colder seasons. If water is lost below a critical point, leaves will simply die.

If you find your plants were injured, it may be possible to reduce the severity of the injury by placing a windbreak in front of them. Until they establish, newly set plants need windbreaks for a few years.

A windbreak can be made from burlap fastened to stakes that are driven into the soil. Keep the material several feet away from the plant to allow for some air circulation. Snowfence can also be used with or without the burlap or plastic covering, depending on the degree of protection you want.

Do not enclose the plant in plastic bags or similar covers. Anything that completely covers a plant may trap heat inside during the day and cause the plant to begin growing. At night the inside temperature drops, and the plant will be injured or killed.

In our attempts to protect ourselves from the winter conditions, we often subject our plants and lawns to potential injury from the ice-melting products used on walkways and driveways. Every ice-melting product used is made of salt. When salt enters the soil, it can be both toxic to plant roots and damaging to the soil structure necessary for the growth and development of roots.

Unless you have heated driveways and walkways, some ice-melting products will be needed. Keep moderation in mind.

On walkways, mix ice-melting material with a traction material like sawdust, coarse sand or fine gravel. The sawdust absorbs some of the salt and slows runoff as water drains from the ice and snow.

Complete fertilizer will also work well as a melting agent. Salts from the nitrogen and potash melt, and the phosphorus source often helps create extra traction. But keep in mind that fertilizer will also burn and injure plants when used in high amounts.

Schuylkill plans woodcutting program

SCHUYLKILL HAVEN — A wood cutting and chainsaw safety program sponsored by the Schuylkill County Cooperative Extension Service, Bureau of Forestry and Blue Mountain High School Vo-Ag Department will be conducted on Saturday morning, Feb. 23, from 10 a.m. until noon.

The meeting will be held in the Vo-Ag Department with demonstrations presented by John Miller, Bureau of Forestry, in the woodlot on proper methods of cutting standing trees. A $2 fee per person will be charged to cover material costs.

To register, please send your check made out to the Schuylkill County Extension Service - Special Fund. Registration must be received by Feb. 19. For additional information contact George P. Perry, Jr., County Agent - Horticulture, P.O. Box 250, Schuylkill Haven, PA 17972 or telephone (717) 385-3431.

EVEN OUR $100 IRA'S GROW LIKE MAGIC.

TAX DEDUCTIBLE NOW. PLUS TAX-DEFERRED EARNINGS.

What? You haven't opened an IRA because you thought you needed the whole $2,000? You aren't taking an IRA deduction on your 1984 income tax because you thought only $2,000 qualified? You aren't earning high yields, tax deferred because you were sure nobody paid high yields on amounts as small as $100?

Come talk to Penn Savings Bank. At Penn Savings Bank we'll open an IRA for you with as little as $100. Or $200, $500 or $1,000. We'll put your IRA in high yielding certificates of deposit insured by the FSLIC. And even $100 will grow like magic because those high yields will accumulate untouched by taxes until you begin to withdraw.

There's still time to get a 1984 IRA with all the tax advantages as long as you open your account before you file. (Tax filing deadline, April 15th) And there's plenty of time to start building your 1985 IRA. Start with as little as $100 now. Then add to it when you can, any time between now and April 15, 1986.

Mexico

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has announced the sale of 10,000 metric tons of nonfat dry milk valued at $7.4 million to CONASUPO, the Mexico government's food purchasing agency. The milk was owned by the Commodity Credit Corporation. The sale was made on January 10 under a public tender.

CCC sold the nonfat dry milk, part of its surplus inventory acquired under CCC's dairy price support program, for $740 per metric ton delivered f.o.b. railcar at U.S. Mexican border points. Block said this price is in line with sales of nonfat dry milk to Mexico also made by Canada, Ireland, New Zealand and the United Kingdom.

Deliveries by CCC will be made in February, Block said. The sale provides for payment in U.S. dollars. No credit arrangements are involved in this sale, Block said.

CCC has made sales of nonfat dry milk to CONASUPO since 1968 and the United States considers Mexico to be its one traditional export market for nonfat dry milk. Mexico will give CCC an opportunity to participate in any future tenders for nonfat dry milk to meet Mexico's import needs.

As of January 4, CCC had 511,113 tons of uncommitted nonfat dry milk in its inventory.

Columbia Co. home economist retires

BLOOMSBURG — Anna Mae Lehr, Penn State senior Extension home economist in Columbia County, retired Jan. 31. She has worked with the 4-H and family living programs in the county since 1946.

Lehr's home management workshops have helped county residents to refinish hundreds of pieces of furniture, to make slipcovers and to remodel their kitchens. She often held an open house for participants to display their work to the public, which helped to make her programs even more popular.

She has coordinated 33 homemakers groups in the county. In 1958, Lehr started the Homemakers Council which helps to plan Extension programs, carry out activities and raise funds for the Columbia County Extension Homemakers group, who recently celebrated their 50th anniversary.

She has prepared an annual "Toddler Topics" newsletter series for parents of young children, and writes a weekly foods and nutrition column called "Ask Anna Mae." Recently she has conducted money management programs for single parent families and a microwave cooking workshop attended by over 300. She has also helped the Legal Aid Society with income tax instruction.

Her work with the 4-H program in Columbia County includes starting a county 4-H council, a one-day camp and a demonstration workshop. She helped to establish the 4-H junior achievement show for members to display their 4-H projects and a leaders and bankers dinner to recognize 4-H members in the National 4-H Awards Program. The Anna Mae Lehr Community Service Award is given each year in her honor to the club most outstanding in community service work.

The Pa Association of Extension Home Economist honored her with the Florence Hall Award for her program motivating area residents to examine their health. The Bloomsburg Rotary Club also awarded her its Outstanding Citizen Award in 1981.

Lehr helped to organize the Benton Health Care Center, Ye Old and New Craftsmen group and the Bloomsburg Fall Fest. She has served two terms on the board of directors for the Central Pa. Health Systems Agency and was president of the Susquehanna Region Interagency Council. She is a member of the State Extension Health Committee, Epsilon Sigma Phi, and Delta Sigma Epsilon.

Lehr is a past president of the Business and Professional Women's Club and vice president of Soroptomist International. As a board member of the Columbia County United Way, she chairs the public relations committee.

Lehr, who received her home economics degree from Indiana University of Pennsylvania, has one son. During her retirement, she plans to stay active in many of the organizations with which she is now involved.

Perkasie 4-H'er receives Clover award

DOYLESTOWN — Kathy Moss, 15, Perkasie, recently received the 1984 Bucks County 4-H Clover Award in recognition of her outstanding work in 4-H during the past year. The award is based on her personal development, citizenship, and leadership skills.

Kathy has been a member of the Danboro 4-H Club for six years. She has completed 4-H projects in sheep, rabbit breeding, crafts, and foods. Kathy has shown her animals in many shows in competition with professional breeders.

A sophomore at Pennridge High School, Kathy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Moss.

Currently, Kathy is using her skills in public speaking as the Bucks-Montgomery County Wool Queen. She was also a member of the Bucks county 4-H Horse Bowl team that competed in the National Contest in Harrisburg, in November.

Kathy's future plans include entering the Veterinary Science field.

Wayne Co. 4-H Dairy Judging Team

The second Wayne County 4-H Dairy Judging team practice session will be held at the Paul Kennedy Farm, Star Route, Honesdale, on Feb. 7 starting at 8 p.m.

Any 4-H members or other interested persons are invited to attend this meeting to learn more about judging dairy cattle.

New Holland 4-H Baby Beef Club

The New Holland Baby Beef Club met at Terry Hill Silo Company on Jan. 22 at 7:30 p.m.

The following officers were elected: Fred Weaver, president; Krista Yost, vice president; Kim Martin, secretary; Nicki High, treasurer, Andrea Yost, new reporter; Kristin Chupp and Jessica Hertzog, game and song leaders.

The group's next meeting is at Creek Hill Motors on Feb. 19 at 7:30 p.m.

Franklin Co. 4-H Shepherds

The Franklin County 4-H Shepherds had their first meeting of 1985 on Jan. 22 at the County Extension office. Club members voted on new rules for the club and registration forms were completed.

Five new members have joined the Shepherds for this year. They are Kelby Mowery, Nyesville; Kenneth and Kim Bixel, Chambersburg; Heather Fusting, S. Thomas; and Robert L. Martin Jr., Marion.

Robert Kessler, 4-H agent, discussed the Fair show with members and parents. Club leaders furnished refreshments.

Tri-Community 4-H Club

The Tri-Community Club held a 4-H swimming party at the Phoenixville YMCA for their January meeting. Twenty-three people attended.

The next meeting will be on Feb. 22 at the Kimberton Fire Co. Allye Gottlieb will be showing slides of her trip to Australia. The group will also elect officers.

February is Dental Health Month

SOUTHAMPTON — Are you tempted to put your hand over your mouth when you smile? Do you find yourself in the dental chair too often, afterward paying costly bills for dental work? Do you feel that dental maintenance is only for children and that by the time you reach adulthood, the damage has been done.

If you answered "yes" to any of these questions, your dental health maintenance program probably needs an overhaul, says Dairy Council Inc., Southampton, Pa. And February—Dental Health Month—might be the time to do this.

Dental health care is the easy and smart thing to do. Dental health care should begin early in life. Practices that are started early in life are usually habitual by the time one reaches adulthood and they require little effort to keep up. Even if you are an adult, however, is no reason to bypass dental health care; you could be surprised at the results.

Rules for a good dental health program are few. Brush regularly with a fluoride toothpaste; don't eat sugary foods between meals unless you can brush afterward; floss teeth to remove food and bacteria from between teeth and under gum line; and see your dentist regularly for checkups and cleaning.

Diet has been found extremely influential in either causing or preventing tooth decay. A variety of nutrients such as calcium, phosphorus, and vitamins A, D, and C are needed for healthy teeth and gums. Food nutrients for healthy gums and teeth, bone structures, and other tissues in the mouth are identical with those for good general health.

A diet composed of milk and dairy products, meat, fruits and vegetables, and grains has been shown to have a good relationship to dental health. Probably the most positive step you can take to prevent tooth decay is to limit foods containing sugar. Eating sugary foods without brushing afterward is seen as a major cause of tooth decay. This is why we have to be careful about the type of snacks we choose. Snack-type food is often sticky and, because it's hard to remove, likely to cause cavities.

Sugar is added to foods for sweetening, to change texture, and to prevent spoilage. It is found in unexpected foods, such as canned soups, spaghetti sauces, salad dressings, ketchup, relishes, cured meat, crackers, breads, and more.

It is unrealistic to cut out sugar altogether, but we can monitor our intake. We can use less in cooking, use fewer foods containing sugar, eat fresh fruits and vegetables, use sweet herbs (fennel, allspice, cardamon, basil, ginger, coriander, mace, and nutmeg) in lieu of sugar in main dishes, vegetables and desserts. Instead of sweet snacks, serve nuts or seeds; cheese kabobs (alternate cheese cubes with fruit pieces on a toothpick); walnut or pecan halves, sandwich-style, with a soft cheese filling; fruits and raw vegetables; and cheese sandwiches cut in fancy designs with a cookie cutter.

If your community does not put fluoride in drinking water, your dentist may recommend topical or extra dietary fluoride. Fluoride won't prevent all tooth decay, but it has been shown to significantly reduce decay.

Is good dental hygiene worth all the effort? The next time you have to hide your smile or wait in the dentist's office, only to pay a costly fee, ask yourself that question. The answer will probably come easily!

Delaware Extension offers CPR training

NEWARK, Del. — Safety and emergency care can't be separated, says University of Delaware extension safety specialist Ron Jester. Emergency care is particularly important to farm and rural people because of the relatively long distances they must travel to hospitals and medical facilities.

"The first few minutes after a medical emergency are crucial," Jester says. "Without proper treatment, complications can develop. People with adequate training in emergency care can often keep an injury from becoming serious. In many cases, they can save lives."

For example, if a victim stops breathing, brain cells and the central nervous system may die within four to six minutes after being deprived of oxygen. This means it's essential to understand the process of breathing and the most effective means of artificially ventilating a nonbreathing victim. Likewise, when the heart stops beating, irreversible damage to brain cells will occur within four to six minutes unless emergency care is provided.

This winter the University of Delaware Cooperative Extension Service and Delaware Chapter of the American Red Cross are jointly offering "Race for Life," a course to teach people how to give emergency care. The three-hour course will cover mouth-to-mouth breathing and CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation). The course will be offered as follows:

Feb. 14—St. Peters Episcopal Church, Smyrna—7 p.m.

Feb. 18—Bethesda Grange, Hartly—7 p.m.

Feb. 27—Delaware Department of Agriculture Building, Dover—7 p.m.

March 6—University of Delaware Substation, Georgetown—7 p.m.

Those completing the course will be officially certified by the American Red Cross. There is a $7 fee to attend, and preregistration is required. For more information or to register, contact the county extension office in Newark (451-2506), Dover (736-4675) or Georgetown (856-5250).

Make most of nursing home visits

CREAMERY — Visiting a friend or relative who lives in a nursing home can be difficult. Often we don't know what to say or do: should we talk about current events? Do we mention a friend who is sick? Do we take the person for a walk, offer to read aloud, or sit and play cards?

You can learn to make the most of your visits to a nursing home through "Visits to Remember," a two-hour workshop offered by the Penn State Montgomery County Cooperative Extension Service.

The workshop will show you how to improve communications with the resident and help him or her to feel valued and to share experiences.

In Montgomery County, "Visits To Remember" will be offered on March 4 at the Norristown Library from 10 a.m. to noon and March 5 at the Glenside Library from 10 a.m. to noon. There is no charge for the workshops, but preregistration is encouraged. For more information contact Nancy Stevens at 489-4315.

PROWL® attacks weeds through the root and shoot for 2-way protection in conservation tillage.

PROWL® herbicide is more photostable, less volatile and less water soluble than some other herbicides. So PROWL stays put, to attack grasses and broadleaf weeds in the root and shoot all season long. PROWL moves through the residue to deliver excellent control of 21 grasses and broadleaf weeds. PROWL. Right for conservation tillage.

The new needlepoint

In recent months, a new variety of needlepoint called "openwork" has appeared on the stitchery scene. It is characterized by texture, delicate patterns and open lacy designs.

Like counted cross-stitch, another of today's needlework stars, the openwork technique is stitched onto a blank canvas. In other words, rather than stitch over a printed design, you copy your design onto canvas from a separate printed chart.

Because there are no design lines to peek out from under the yarns, every intersection of canvas need not be filled. As a result, the patterns are lacy; the work, quick to finish.

You can use openwork for an entire canvas or for the background only. In the "Hearts & Kitty Sampler," for example, the kitten is worked in basket weave, the hearts in satin stitch, and the background as a sampler of openwork stitches.

Like many openwork kits, only a portion of the design, in this case the kitten, is pre-printed on the 12-mesh canvas. Along with Persian wool yarns, cotton threads, needle and instructions for an 11-by-14-inch sampler in white, pink and black, the kit includes printed chart for the background stitches.

To order kit D-2250, send $22, plus $2 postage & handling, to Ellen Appel Crafts, Box 1144, Laguna Beach, CA 92652. California residents, please add 6 percent sales tax. To learn how to copy openwork stitches onto canvas right now, just read on.

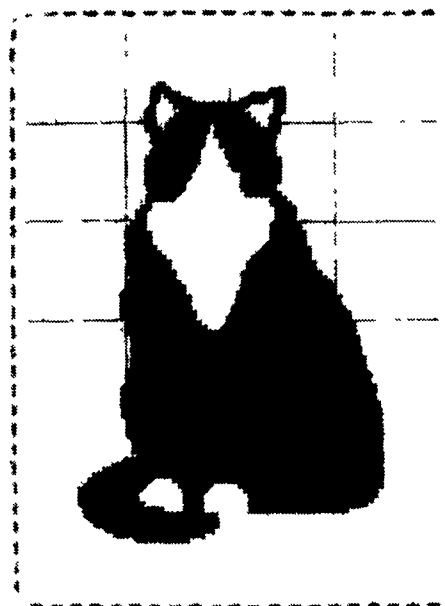

In copying designs from a chart to canvas, it's important to remember that the lines in your graph represent threads in your canvas. By counting one graph line for each canvas thread, you'll know exactly where to place each stitch.

Basic openwork directions, plus sample stitches follow.

DESIGN DIRECTIONS: Note: Skip this section if you have purchased a kit or design chart. 1. Draw a simple design on graph paper. Make design large enough to cover the same number of boxes on the graph as there are threads in your canvas. 2. Indicate stitches as desired. 3. Darken every tenth line to make copying easier.

STARTING: 1. Locate center of graph and center of needlepoint canvas. 2. Count boxes on graph and corresponding threads in canvas to find starting point for stitchery.

STITCHING: 1. Copy stitches to canvas as indicated by chart. 2. Work the following stitches as indicated: a) Satin stitch. b) Cross-stitch. 3. Always come up at "A," down at "B," and so on, through the design.

Fresh fruit is welcome addition to school lunches

MEDIA — Parents know that fresh fruit is one of the best desserts for their young. And most children like it.

But fresh fruit packed in school lunches is often another story. The orange comes home because it was too hard to peel; the banana doesn't get eaten because it got knocked around so much on the way to school that it got "mushy". The apple you so carefully sliced is reported by your suspicious third grader as "looking rotten." What to do? Here are a few hints from Maryetta Dorricott, Delaware County Extension Home Economist with the Penn State University.

An orange can be peeled, separated into segments and packed into a small plastic bag for eating anytime. Don't worry about Vitamin C loss. The membrane on the orange segments will keep it intact.

Choose bananas that are slightly underripe. They travel best, and most children prefer their firmer texture.

If your child likes yogurt or cottage cheese, fold some cut up fresh fruit into one of these and pack in a sealed plastic container.

Use the plastic containers to pack canned fruit, too. Applesauce is especially popular. If you choose canned pears, peaches, or cherries, avoid those that come in a heavy syrup.

EARLY RISER GIVES YOU MAXIMUM PERFORMANCE IN MINIMUM TILLAGE.

If you're looking for maximum performance when planting in minimum-till field conditions, International® 800 Series Early Riser planters are the answer.

Side-by-side tests proved the Early Riser is unmatched for planting flexibility and you don't need costly extras. The Early Riser was number one in emergence and yield when compared to two other popular competitive planters. Even when equipped with no-till colters, these planters couldn't match the Early Riser — without colters — in minimum-till conditions.

Narrow angle, staggered double disk openers give the Early Riser a big advantage. They penetrate hard soils and slice through heavy trash easily to form an ideal seedbed. In addition, farmers found that the Early Riser adjusted faster and easier to meet different crop, population and soil condition requirements. Get an Early Riser and put maximum performance to work for you in conventional-till, minimum-till and no-till field conditions. See us today for details.

Coopersburg girl receives 4-H award

Coopersburg — Lorraine Rafter, 17, R.D. #1, Coopersburg, recently received the Danforth "I Dare You" Award at the 1984 Bucks County 4-H Awards Program. The award is in recognition of excellence in character, personal development, and constructive leadership.

The "I Dare You" award was created by Mr. William H. Danforth, founder of the Ralston Purina Company, to challenge young people to their highest potential. The award is presented to two 4-H members in every county.

Rafter has been a 4-H member for nine years and is currently president of the Springtown 4-H Club. She has worked as a volunteer 4-H Camp Counselor for three years. As a member of the 4-H Consumerama team, she has won second place in state-wide 4-H competition.

A senior at Palisades High School, Rafter is a varsity cheerleader, and a member of the National Honor Society. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Rafter.

Wild animals need quality habitat

WEST CHESTER — With snow in the forecast, many people turn their thoughts and efforts toward feeding birds and other animals to help them survive severe weather conditions. Feeding stations are a great help, but food is only one aspect of a wild animal's life that needs to be considered when planning quality habitat.

These wild creatures tend to be forgotten after the winter is over, but they also need food, water, shelter and places to raise their young the rest of the year, too. Well planned and managed wildlife habitat includes all these elements. The Soil Conservation Service at 235 West Market Street in West Chester has information available and technicians ready to assist landowners in planning for wildlife and other land uses.

"Wildlife, just like grain or hay is a crop, says Samuel High, a soil conservationist with SCS. "The better the management is, the greater the production will be. Good conservation practices on farms such as contour strip-cropping, field borders, windbreaks, pasture improvement, ponds, tree planting and woodland management all benefit wildlife. Non-farmland owners can plant seed or fruit bearing trees and shrubs, food plots and evergreens for shelter and nesting cover. Not only will these plantings enhance wildlife habitat, their blooming and fruiting will add a colorful variation to the landscape through the seasons."

No property is too small to attract wildlife. The proper use of trees, shrubs, annual plants and supplemental feeding will enhance the wildlife environment around any home.

NEW PRODUCTS

SUPER BOWL E-80
Built To Last

- Reinforced Precast Concrete
- No More Rust
- No More Corrosion

A full 1" of high density styrofoam insulation coated with a reflective foil gives you the most efficient use of energy needed. A high capacity  $\frac{3}{4}$ " valve gives quick recovery. This plastic valve resists corrosion and is very easily serviced without the use of tools. The adjustable thermostat and element are located beneath the bowl. This effectively reduces the possibility of "stray voltage." This method of "heating through the bowl" is especially well adapted to precast concrete. Concrete itself is a good conductor of heat and at the same time is a poor conductor of electricity. Our concrete bowl, because of its mass will retain heat for a longer period of time. This effectively reduces the frequency of use of the heating element and thermostat, and maintains a very uniform water temperature.

What's he doing baling at this hour?

Whether it's early in the morning and there's still dew on the windrows, or late in the afternoon... he's out baling! He's treating his hay with Beacon Hay Pre-Serv*, and that means he can bale at up to 25% moisture! So, he can bring in his hay early in the day, perhaps before bad weather hits. Or he can bale two or three hours later in the afternoon. Or when the hay is almost field cured, but not quite.

What's more, he'll have better hay. Because of its higher moisture content, there's less leaf shatter. There are more high-protein leaves that will turn more milk production. No wonder we call hay treated with Beacon Hay Pre-Serv SuperHay!

Start using this food-grade blend of preservatives, antioxidants and flavors on your hay yourself. Start making SuperHay, and start making super profits! Call your Beacon Advisor now.

Beacon — headquartered in Cayuga, New York... available throughout the northeast.

Farm Talk

Jerry Webb

Agricultural competition at rural gatherings is a tradition. And over the years it has taken some very unusual forms. There are the traditional horse races, tractor pulls, hoeing contests, corn husking and cow milkings. Add to that the more unusual cow chip throwing, Bessie bingo, watermelon seed spitting, and on down the list of interesting, exciting, ridiculous agricultural contests.

But today's story beats them all - a demolition derby for farm combines. That's right, one was held this summer at the Kansas State Fair and it was a sell out. Ten thousand people packed the grandstand to watch those monstrous grain harvesters ram into each other.

If you've ever been to an automobile demolition derby - I went to one - then you know the ground rules. A bunch of vehicles are trapped in an arena before a screaming, blood thirsty crowd. The object is to bang into other cars and knock them out of commission without suffering any fatal damage yourself.

The typical demolition derby is a gathering of twenty or thirty old clunkers able to run with a value of no more than $200 dollars each. The participants are required to remove the glass and make certain other safety alterations. In competition they usually drive backwards so as not to mess up their motors. The most skilled or perhaps the luckiest avoids any kind of a hit that puts him out of action while in turn causing great damage to other vehicles. This sport is considered great fun by many and draws huge crowds at the Delaware State Fair and other gatherings.

But imagine if you will, ten or twenty combines. Those gigantic multi-thousand dollar machines that are used to harvest corn and soybeans here on the Delmarva peninsula. Obviously, in Kansas they would have lots of combines and they would surely know how to operate them. And although my information doesn't say so I also assume the competition was limited to old worn out and otherwise outdated machines that were no longer suitable for field operations. Agricultural clunkers if you will.

Having never seen such a mess, I can only imagine the mayhem that would be caused by an arena full of roaring combines and crazed farmers doing their best to destroy the other guy's machine. Of course, speeds would be reduced considerably from the automotive type demolition derbies but the power and the ability to keep going would be awesome with large tractor size tires and motors mounted way up high as they are on combines. It might take quite a blow to disable one. But that's the object. The last one still able to maneuver around the arena was declared the winner. And ten thousand spectators, their hearts pounding wildly went home to wait till next year's combine demolition derby.

Only in Kansas you say? Don't bet on it. Offer some prize money and the proper arena and you can be sure Delmarva combines would be there to compete. What a natural for the Delaware State Fair. An agricultural contest with the drawing power of a tractor pull but without the tremendous expense.

There are plenty of old combines setting out behind barns and otherwise rusting away that could be awakened for one last try. Many of those old machines run, they just don't pick corn very well. Otherwise they are worth only a few bucks for scrap metal and spare parts. And even after the competition is over there is probably still some salvage value in terms of tires, motors, belts, pulleys and other usable parts.

My enthusiasm for automotive demolition derbies lasted about an hour and maybe I would feel the same way about a combine demolition derby. But I'll bet if one were held at the Delaware State Fair or some other rural gathering, it would draw a large and appreciative crowd. At least once.

"Maryland Agriculture Week" observed

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — "Maryland Agriculture — A Modern Miracle" is the theme for this year's 16th annual observance of Maryland Agriculture Week. Festivities actually began on Jan. 28 in the Montgomery County suburbs of Washington, D.C., and will wind up March 16 on the lower Eastern Shore.

As in past years, the ag week message is being brought to urban dwellers throughout the state at a succession of shopping mall displays.

The Monday-Saturday activities at each mall have been planned by local committees, chaired in most cases by county agricultural agents of the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service.

Generally, the shopping mall displays feature a daily program which includes something for persons of all ages. Most will include demonstrations on preparation of food grown or produced in Maryland. Soybeans are on the list.

Other demonstrations will include tobacco-stripping, sheep shearing, and spinning and weaving with wool. Milking contests will pit local dignitaries against dairy princesses. For the youngsters, there are petting zoos with live animals and a chance to see baby chicks being hatched.

The Cooperative Extension Service and other farm organizations are sponsoring a number of educational displays, ranging from soil testing to agricultural career training opportunities in four-year and two-year programs offered by the University of Maryland's College of Agriculture and Institute of Applied Agriculture, respectively.

Martha M. (Marcie) Becker, Extension coordinator of special communications at the College Park campus, is program coordinator again this year for the Maryland Agriculture Week observance. Co-coordinator is Anthony I. (Tony) Evans, public information marketing specialist for the state Department of Agriculture at Annapolis.

Mrs. Joan Hagerty of Clarksburg submitted the winning theme for the 1985 Maryland ag week. Mrs. Hagerty is the mother in a family of active 4-H members from upper Montgomery County.

Two additional agricultural displays are tentatively scheduled for late fall at shopping centers in Baltimore and Columbia. Dates would be Oct. 14-19 in Baltimore and Oct. 16-21 at the Columbia Mall.

Calf and heifer management topic of meeting

NEW HOLLAND — The Eastern Lancaster County Adult Farmer Program will present a Dairy Management Meeting on Wednesday evening, February 13, at 7:30 p.m. at the Blue Ball School. The main topic of discussion will be Calf and Heifer Management. Emphasis will be on providing housing for calves and heifers, feeding calves and heifers, a new measuring program to calculate weight and pinpoint problems, and feeding Rumensin to dairy heifers.

The program will be presented by the adult farmer instructors with comments from local dairymen. Mr. Jim Andrick from Elanco Chemical Co. will discuss the feeding of Rumensin.

All interested persons are invited to attend. The Blue Ball School is located just east of the village of Blue Ball on Ewell Rd. The meeting will be held in the all-purpose room, just inside the front doors. For additional information call the Adult Farmer Program office at 354-4525.

WORKER B'S.

Nothing works harder than our B-Series tractors. They range from 12 to 19 hp. So there's one for every job.

And with a hydraulic 3-point hitch, front and rear PTO, these tractors can handle a variety of implements.

Like every Kubota tractor, B models come with your choice of 2- or 4-wheel drive. Plus a sturdy, low-maintenance Kubota diesel engine.

There are special features you can choose from, too. Like hydrostatic transmission for the ease of no-shift one-pedal control.

So if you're looking for a hard worker, look no further than Kubota's worker B tractors.

Nothing like it on earth.™

Your participating Kubota dealer invites you to come in and see the full line of Kubota tractors and implements.

Northern Tier milk co-op elects

MESHOPPEN - Joe Rogers, dairy farmer from Hop Bottom, recently was elected president of Northern Tier Farmers Union Milk Cooperative. Rogers succeeds William Sturges of Wellsboro, as head of the Cooperative. Mr. Rogers, who has a long history of involvement with farm organizations, also serves as president of Susquehanna County Farmers Union.

Mr. Sturges was instrumental in organizing Northern Tier in 1982, but is no longer involved in dairying.

Dennis Boyanowski, of Laceyville, was elected vice-president of the Cooperative. Wayne Morcom, of Kingsley, remains secretary of the Co-op, and Gerald Clause, Camptown, continues as treasurer of Northern Tier.

Thomas Champluvier and Mark Gary, of Laceyville, were recently elected to the board of directors of Northern Tier.

At a recent meeting of the cooperative, the directors endorsed a continuation of the milk diversion program, providing there is no action taken to lower the support price on manufactured milk products.

Arden Tewksbury, manager of Northern Tier, acknowledges there have been at least two different bills introduced in Congress, that coincide with Northern Tier's policy and maintain the present level of the support price on milk.

Secretary of Agriculture John Block has the authority to lower the support price 50 cents per hundredweight on April 1, and another 50 cents on July 1. Tewksbury said these two cuts in the support price would set the price at $11.60. He further commented that the support price has not been that low since 1979.

"It's asinine to think dairy farmers can stay in business with these types of prices, which would be less than 50% of parity," said Tewksbury.

Mr. Rogers commented that any further lowering of milk prices would only be playing Russian roulette with the future of the family farms of the country. Both farm leaders question the unwillingness of the present administration to support programs which are geared to provide stability in the dairy industry.

The directors of the Cooperative are requesting all dairy farmers to immediately contact their congressmen in an attempt to prevent any reductions of milk prices at the farm level.

Northern Tier is again requesting government officials to turn back the overflow of casein imports into this country.

Tewksbury said, "It's a puzzle to all of us why government officials fail to acknowledge the continued damage imported casein is doing to the American dairy industry."

Rogers noted that supply and demand of milk can never be brought into line as long as there continues to be a heavy infiltration of dairy products into this country.

In summing up the cooperatives' policies, Tewksbury said that Northern Tier wholeheartedly endorses the efforts of the Regional Common Marketing Agency to establish over-order prices for dairy farmers, and all dairymen will soon sign into the agency.

Turfgrass school scheduled

TOWANDA — The Tenth Annual Northeastern Pennsylvania Turfgrass and Grounds Maintenance School will be held on February 19 and 20 at the Luzerne County Community College, Prospect Street and Middle Road, Nanticoke.

Al Homan, Bradford County Agent, notes that pre-registration is urged, but will open at 8:00 a.m. Tuesday and Wednesday. Sponsors for the school are the Cooperative Extension Service of the Pennsylvania State University, The Pennsylvania Turfgrass Council, and the E-2 Chapter of the Pennsylvania Nurserymen's Association.

The purpose of the school is to bring the latest in turfgrass and landscape information to individuals engaged in these disciplines. This would include those working with cemeteries, golf courses, parks, athletic fields, schools and colleges, homegrounds, nurseries, as well as related vocational education and agricultural business personnel.

The two-day program will qualify those attending for pesticide applicator certification or updating in the areas of turfgrass, and shade tree and ornamental classification.

This year's school will emphasize hands-on-training workshops in the areas of insects, weeds, equipment maintenance, and pesticides. Speakers for the school will include - The Pennsylvania State University Extension Service: Dr. Paul R. Heller, Entomologist; Dr. John C. Harper, Turf Specialist; Dr. Robert Nuss, Horticulture Specialist; and Dr. Tom Lanini, Weed Specialist. Other speakers include: Don Dodson, Kalo Agriculture Chemical Company; Tom Heist, Lawn and Golf Equipment; James Baldino, I.C.I. Chemical Company; and William Schiorrappa, B.A.S.F. Chemical Company.

Registration forms are available from the Bradford County Extension Office, 701 S. Fourth Street, Towanda, or phone 265-2896.

F.O.4 milk $15.18 for March

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine today announced a Class I milk price of $15.18 per hundredweight for March 1985. This price is down 12 cents from February but is 35 cents above last March's Class I price. The Class I price has dropped 32 cents from January to March 1985.

Mr. Shine announced a Class II milk price of $12.45 per hundredweight for January 1985 and a butterfat differential of 16.3 cents for the month. The Class II price was down 15 cents from the previous month, while the butterfat differential dropped four-tenths of a cent.

The March Class I price and the January Class II price are based on the January 1985 Minnesota-Wisconsin manufacturing milk price of $12.40 per hundredweight at a 3.5 percent butterfat content.

The USDA reported that the wholesale price of Grade A butter at Chicago for January was $1.4146 per pound and the nonfat dry milk price was $.9134 per pound, f.o.b. plants in the Chicago area.

Dairying stable in Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Dairying is here to stay in Maryland for at least another generation, says Dr. Mark A. Varner, an Extension dairy management specialist and assistant professor of animal sciences at the University of Maryland in College Park.

Historically entrenched in close proximity to an ever-expanding metropolitan population corridor, the Maryland dairy enterprise has established a solid industry support base and enjoys a consumer market which takes most of its fresh product at relatively high Class I prices established by the federal administrator for the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Order 4 area.

More than 50 percent of Maryland's dairy cattle are registered purebreds. This is the highest percentage for any state in the continental United States. And, despite urban encroachment, the concentration of dairy cows per acre in Maryland is seventh highest among all 50 states.

There's still a lot of interest in dairy farming among Maryland's rural youngsters, Varner observed. Maryland 4-H dairy cattle judging teams have compiled a record of national championships over the past half-century which far surpasses any other state.

This success is due, in part, to enthusiasm among young people and the dedication of adult volunteer 4-H leaders working with team coaches from the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service.

Contrary to the trend prevailing in some other segments of American agriculture, Varner is fairly optimistic about the future of medium-size, family-owned dairy farms, particularly where debt-asset ratios have been kept in reasonable check. It's his personal observation that the debt load for dairy farmers generally is more burdensome in the Midwest than in Maryland.

This philosophy gives credence to Profitable and Efficient Production (PEP), the ongoing educational program of the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service. It places PEP in perspective not as an attempt to save a dying industry, but an honest effort to help dairy farming continue as a viable part of the state's agricultural economy.

Dairy farming is easily the state's second highest cash producing farm business.

THE KRAUSE LANDSMAN

saves TIME

saves FUEL

saves MONEY

LANDSMAN is the Conservation Tillage Tool from Krause

The same Krause that pioneered the ROCKFLEX bearing hanger and the FLEX-WING Disc Harrow has built the LANDSMAN Conservation Tillage Tool to do in one pass what you now do in four. With a LANDSMAN you can disc, incorporate chemicals, cultivate and finish all in one trip. This can reduce your tillage costs by 70%. Because the LANDSMAN is designed to operate effectively at 6 to 7½ miles per hour, you'll cover more acres in less time and burn considerably less fuel.

YOU CAN EXPECT SUPERIOR PERFORMANCE FROM THE LANDSMAN, BECAUSE IT'S FROM KRAUSE

Winter Special On SEEDER/SPREADERS

the New Dimension in seeding/spreading

Over the past two decades Vicon pendulum action seeders/spreaders have become an integral part of the farming scene. Now Vicon Vari-spreaders are entering a New Dimension - a completely new range of spreaders featuring a characteristic new design, and incorporating the latest technology to give the accuracy and reliability demanded by today's profit conscious farmer. Pendulum action gives the advantage of accuracy on sloping ground as well as on the flat, coupled with the ability to spread all types of solid fertilizer, chemicals, seeds, powders and lime.

The six models in the new range offer capacities to suit the needs of every farm size. A special feature of the New Dimension spreaders is an easily adjustable flywheel which changes the effective spreading widths from 20-45 feet.

a great new series.*

DEUTZ-FAHR
84-to 145-hp tractors

The first Deutz tractor, with a 26-hp Otto gasoline engine, was developed in 1894 by the American subsidiary of Klockner-Humboldt-Deutz at Philadelphia. By 1936, the Deutz factory in Cologne, Germany, was turning out the world's first "mass-produced" small tractor, the 11-hp "old-timer" shown here. Today, Deutz-Fahr tractors marketed in North America include the new DX series (84-145 pto hp; the DX4.70 shown here is rated at 84 pto hp) and the 07 and 07C series (43-73 pto hp).

This tough, handsome new series, with new features, supercedes the DX-90 thru DX-160 line. This is the new model line up:

DX 4.70 84 HP Turbo      DX 6.30 110 HP N.A.
DX 6.50 120 HP Turbo      DX 7.10 145 HP Turbo

NEW FEATURES INCLUDE:

- Increased operators comfort.
- Full transmission synchronization.
- Center Line drive to FWD axle.
- OPTITRAC automatic FWD differential lock.
- Shorter turning radius on FWD.
- 540/1000 PTO on all models.
- Optional front 3-pt. Lift & PTO

See these tractors - evaluate all the comfort and operating features they offer as standard equipment.

"They run longer, they run better, they run for less."

Shift on the Go!

Yanmar brings big tractor features down to size with Powershift and Live PTO in compact tractors. Powershift means clutchless on-the-go shifting to keep you going where others bog down. 2-Speed Live PTO keeps implements working at full power even when tractor is stopped. Plus more standard features and Yanmar's dependable 3-cylinder diesel engine.

EARLY RISER GIVES YOU BUILT-IN NO-TILL PERFORMANCE AT NO EXTRA COST.

Early Riser Planters

Do you need a planter that can go directly from conventional-till to min-till or no-till without the extra cost of no-till colters? Then International Harvester has the answer... it's the 800 Series Early Riser planter.

In side-by-side on-farm tests, an independent testing agency confirmed that the exclusive design of the International® narrow angle, staggered double disk opener penetrated hard ground and sliced through trash better than two other popular planters equipped with colters.

Test results also proved Early Riser outperformed the other two planters in both emergence and yield. And farmers confirmed that the Early Riser was faster and easier to adjust and calibrate in all planting conditions.

So if you are considering a new planter, get the planter that's ready for no-till when you are... the International Early Riser. See us today for details.

GREEN LIGHT SERVICE TAKES THE WORRY OUT
BUSY...

Especially when the weather doesn't cooperate That's when the season seems shorter, you get busier and equipment downtime costs more

But when you take advantage of our Green Light Service, especially the off-season specials like the one we're having right now, you can roll into the field and not worry so much about unexpected downtime Because we will have inspected for the unexpected And troubleshooting in the shop is a whole lot more affordable than finding trouble in the field Especially when you're busy

So call us today and check out our Green Light Service Specials Then you won't have to worry about it later when things get busy

PRV strategy outlined at Lan-Chester Pork Day

BY JACK HUBLEY

MARTINDALE — An update on the activities of the Pa. Pork Producer's Pseudorabies Planning Committee was presented by Strasburg pork producer John Henkel at Lan-Chester Pork Day held at the Martindale Firehall on Jan. 30.

Emphasizing that the PRV proposal is still in the formative stages, Henkel outlined the committee's latest draft that included provisions for surveillance, education, out-of-state feeder pigs, infected herds and indemnity.

•Surveillance: In areas designated as high-risk, (with large numbers of pigs and many being transported) random testing of 10 to 30 head per farm could be implemented on the farm or at slaughter. In low-risk areas, random samples would be made, with all slaughter plants involved. Good identification practices are crucial.

•Education: Programs on PRV and improved methods of swine identification could be presented by Extension personnel. Henkel pointed out that producers located in parts of the state that currently have no infection problems know very little about the disease.

•Out-of-state feeder pigs: Identification must accompany all out-of-state pigs, and 10 percent would be blood tested on arrival. Vaccination and quarantine would be optional for all pigs testing positive and all others that may have been in contact with positives.

•Positive herds: Owners could exercise one of the following options, with Pa. Dept. of Agriculture, Penn State Extension and PRV Committee personnel acting in an advisory capacity:

1. For low-incidence herds, (less than 20 percent positive) all sero-positive pigs would be removed, with the breeding herd and replacement gilts being tested every 30 days.

2. The breeding herd and progeny are vaccinated, and replacement gilts are removed as early as possible (preferably at three weeks) and raised in a segregated facility. Replacements are tested at about six months of age and all sero-positives are immediately removed. Retesting should be done in 60 days, or the entire replacement herd should be sold. This approach is probably the most desirable of the three options, Henkel noted.

3. Farmers having a high incidence of the disease and no facilities for isolating replacements may opt for voluntary depopulation.

•Quarantined herds: Marketing alternatives must be explored, since only two Pa. packers are currently accepting infected pigs.

"If it weren't for Hatfield, we'd be in a real fix," emphasized Henkel, who proposed that livestock auctions could possibly schedule infected pigs on designated days. He pointed out that in Iowa, where the disease is widespread and commonly accepted, hog producers have no such marketing problems. "There is no stigma attached to pseudorabies in Iowa," he said. He also called for improved on-farm bio-security and improved truck sanitation measures.

•Indemnity: Most producers feel that some kind of reimbursement is necessary. Funding would be shared by the state and the industry, and would involve total industry participation.

Henkel pointed out that many of the proposed strategies are patterned after the Iowa program, where a pilot pseudorabies eradication project involving 210 Marshall County swine producers has shown promising results. (During a recent visit to Pennsylvania, Iowa State University veterinarian, Dr. G.W. Beran, discussed his state's progress at a pseudorabies meeting held at Lancaster's Farm and Home Center on Dec. 14.)

Henkel also noted that there is a strong feeling among producers that any control program adopted should not depend solely on the state, but should also involve Extension personnel.

A moratorium on forced depopulation of infected herds will remain in force until May 15. In the meantime, the PRV Committee hopes to have the final draft of their proposal completed and reviewed by the Pa. Livestock (Turn to Page D4)

Nominations sought for '85 Ram Lamb Test

HONESDALE — Sheep producers are encouraged to nominate their outstanding ram lambs for the 1985 Ram Lamb Testing Program at the Pennsylvania Meat Animal Evaluation Center at Penn State University.

The purposes of this testing program are:

1. To provide a genetically sound testing program that would allow both the large and small sheep producer to participate.

2. To promote performance testing of sheep in Pennsylvania, and to serve as an educational method to continually acquaint producers with its overall value.

3. To provide a common test for evaluating rate of gain, structural soundness, muscularity, condition and estimated carcass merit.

4. To provide an opportunity for purebred breeders and commercial producers to purchase performance tested rams which have been evaluated in part under similar, unbiased, environmental conditions.

Nominations of ram lambs for this testing program will be accepted from January 1, 1985 to February 28th, 1985. Nominations forms must be filled out and sent to Mr. Glenn Eberly, Director of the Pennsylvania Meat Animal Evaluation Center, by the February 28th deadline.

Delivery date of the ram lambs to the test center is April 16th and the ram lambs are started on test on April 23rd. Tentative ram sale date is August 10, 1985 at the Pennsylvania Meat Animal Evaluation Center and will probably include the top 75 percent of the rams within any breed and/or breed group.

There are a number of important procedures to complete in order to have the ram lamb ready for test by April. These include recording or registering the ram lamb with their respective breed association, born between November 1, 1984 and February 28, 1985, be properly nominated on the entry form and have the required health testing before arriving at the test station.

Sponsors of the 1985 Ram Lamb Testing Program are The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture in Cooperation with The Department of Dairy and Animal Science of The Pennsylvania State University, The Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Grower's Association and The State Breed Associations.

When you sell a load of hogs, you're at the mercy of the buyer. You have to trust him for the correct weight. You have to trust him for a competitive market price. And you have to trust him for the payment. Unfortunately, buyers sometimes take advantage of producers.

Occasionally the gouge is pretty dramatic, like a packing plant shutdown—with insufficient money to pay the bills. Other times buyers get greedy and fool with the scales. The squeeze can also be subtle—like putting the check in the mail ten days after the sale instead of one day after the sale.

Where do you stand when you've got a problem? Under federal law you're protected by the Packers and Stockyard Act. But you've got to recognize the problem and you've got to do something about it.

Let's look at the matter of payment. By law there are two types of livestock sellers—cash sellers and credit sellers. If you and the buyer have nothing in writing, you're a cash seller. That means he must have payment available for you by the close of the next business day, after the livestock are sold. If you're a cash seller selling hogs grade and yield, then the buyer, again, has one business day to make your check available after the final grade is determined.

If you've got something in writing, you're a credit seller. That piece of paper should indicate when the payment is to be made, for example seven days after the hogs are sold. And it should tell how the payment is to be made—check, money transfer, etc.

One exception. If you bring in an animal that appears diseased, then the buyer can purchase it "as is." If the animal doesn't pass inspection at slaughter, the loss is yours, not the buyers.

What if a check bounces? You have 15 business days after the check is returned to notify the packer and the Packers and Stockyard Administration of the problem. Do it with certified mail, so you've got proof of that notification.

What if you never receive payment? You have 30 calendar days from the transaction date to notify the packer (buyer) and the Packers and Stockyard Administration.

After all of this, let's say the packer has gone bankrupt. At that point the P & S administration steps in—within a day or two—and sets up a Packer Trust. This trust includes all receivable funds and all inventory. From it, the bills are paid.

If you're a cash seller, you have first dibs on the trust. If all cash sellers are paid and there's money left over, then it's divided among everyone else — credit sellers, banks, other packing plants, etc. Do you see how important it is to be a cash seller?

Are livestock buyers supposed to be bonded? Well, mostly. Anyone buying for resale (hog buying station), anyone selling on commission (livestock auction), anyone buying on order (livestock dealer) and any packer with annual purchases exceeding $500,000 must be bonded. But a person who buys livestock to feed out does not have to be bonded.

The bond is like an insurance account. The amount in the account is usually determined by the size of the purchases. For example a packer's bond is based on two days kill. If his gross purchases total $600,000 for the year (260 business days), his bond will total about $4,600. Obviously this won't go very far. Worse yet, anyone collecting money can get their hands on the bond. Even if you're a cash seller, what you get from the bond account may not amount to much.

What about the scales? They're inspected periodically and adjusted when necessary. But they can still be tinkered with. The classic method goes something like this. You bring in ten hogs to be sold. Before weighing them the buyer sets the scales to zero. You put your hogs on and when you're not looking, he resets the zero, shaving off 10 pounds from the reading. If the market is $50 per hundredweight, he's just taken $5 out of your pocket.

What about establishing the market price? A buyer can pay you whatever he pleases for your hogs. He can base it on Peoria. He can use a fancy formula. He can ask his grandmother. If you're willing to accept it, that's the price you'll get. So take a hard look at what buyer A pays compared to buyer B and go for the best price. After all, it's your money.

And remember, if you have a problem in the sale of your livestock that can't be settled between you and the buyer, contact the Packers and Stockyard Administration. Here's the address: Box 101 E, Turnpike Road, Bedford, VA 24523 (703-982-4330).

Cover poultry manure to preserve nutrients

NEWARK, Del. — Periodic cleanout of poultry houses throughout the year results in either stockpiling the manure, or spreading it on open ground. Unfortunately, most of this manure becomes available for spreading at times when its maximum nutrient value can't be put to work. So proper storage is essential to maintain its fertilizer value for crop production.

According to J. Ross Harris, University of Delaware extension specialist in environmental quality, the procedure for proper poultry manure storage is simple and requires little time. Here's how:

- Windrow the manure. It may be beneficial to place two rows side by side if a single row would be longer than 90 feet.

- Strike off the top of the windrow. If two rows exist, fill in the gaps between them. (See figure 1.) Note: This step is important. If it's not done, water will lie in the pockets, and it will be hard to remove the protective plastic cover which goes on next.

- Arrange 6 mil black plastic over the manure and place tires along the top and sides of the windrow, spacing them about 8 to 10 feet apart down the length of the pile and about 2 to 3 feet apart going across it. Or, using plastic string, tie pairs of tires together and place them across the pile at 8- to 10-foot intervals so connected tires touch the ground on either side of the row for a lacing effect. (This procedure uses fewer tires.)

- Next, place rough-cut 2x4x16-foot timbers (or some other convenient length) along the edges of the plastic, wrapping this around the timbers and securing it with a wide-headed nail such as a roofing or foam board nail. Space timbers at least three feet apart. (See figure 2.)

- When it's time to spread the manure, remove the tires and roll up the plastic from one side to the other. The plastic may then be folded lengthwise and stored at the site until next time. (See figure 3.)

Harris estimates it will cost about $100 for enough plastic to cover the manure generated in one year in a 20,000-bird broiler house. In Delaware this expense can now be cost-shared with ASCS.

For information on how to use broiler manure profitably for crop production, and for advice on calibrating manure spreaders, farmers are encouraged to consult their county extension agricultural agent.

Angus bull leads New York Bull Test

ITHACA, N.Y. — Reports for the 1984-85 New York Bull Test following the second weigh period of 58 days from Nov. 27-Jan. 21 have been announced by William Greene, director of the Bull Test program.

An Angus bull owned by Berle Farms Co. of Hoosick leads the 86 bulls on the test for this second weigh period. This son of QLC Winchester recorded an average daily gain of 5.31 pounds to lead not only all the bulls on test but also the 29 Angus bull "division".

A Simmental bull owned by Wheatley Farm of Stanfordsville currently stands second in this "Class of '85" with an average daily gain of 4.13 pounds for this test period. The young bull is a son of CAF Mr. Ankony 37L and is one of 12 Simmental bulls on the performance test program.

The seven Shorthorn bulls have the highest breed average daily gain, 3.31 pounds per day for this second weigh period. Leading the Shorthorns with an average daily gain of 3.91 pounds is a son of Sangamon Irish Plumber owned by Stony Brook Farms of Locke.

There are 21 Polled Hereford bulls on the current test program. Leading this breed for an average daily gain and a contender for top test honors is the entry by Sycamore Acres of Trumansburg. This son of EF Victor 212 25P has a score of 3.94 average daily gain for the second weigh period.

The Charolais bull owned by Meadow View Farm of Frankfort also turned in an average daily gain of 3.94 pounds and leads the nine Charolais bulls on test. He is a son of STC Polled Legacy 502.

The 140 day performance test is conducted by Cornell University's Livestock Teaching and Research Center at Harford.

Fifty seven breeders from New York, New Jersey, New England, Virginia, and Pennsylvania are participating in the current Bull Test which is jointly sponsored by the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association, Cornell University, Cooperative Extension, and the State Department of Ag &

Markets.

The Bull Test program will be culminated with the Bull Test Sale May 3, at Ithaca.

USDA seeks comments on embryo import proposal

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The public has until June 15 to comment on a U.S. Department of Agriculture proposal to establish regulations for importing livestock embryos into the United States.

"The proposal, published Oct. 22, generated such great interest that we are extending the comment period beyond the original Dec. 21 closing date," said Bert W. Hawkins, administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

He said the agency also intends to hold a public hearing on the issue and will announce details at a later date.

"Until now," Hawkins said, "our import regulations have dealt only with live animals, animal products and semen. Because there were no provisions for embryos, they could not be imported into this country."

"Embryo transfer is growing in popularity in the livestock industry," he said. "Animal embryos can be collected and frozen in one country, shipped to another and implanted in animals there."

To bring such embryos into the United States, importers would have to obtain a permit from USDA, according to the proposal. Permits would be issued only for embryos conceived in countries that do not have foot-and-mouth disease.

Hawkins said the collection procedures would be approved and supervised by government veterinarians in the country of origin.

Comments may be sent to T.O. Gessel, Regulatory Coordination Staff, APHIS, USDA, 728 Federal Building, Hyattsville, Md. 20782.

APHA hosts 62nd National Show

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Drawing international acclaim to the breed, the 62nd National Polled Hereford Convention-Show-Sale was the highlight of the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show in Fort Worth, Texas, Jan. 23-26.

Polled Hereford breeders from Maine to California and Texas to Canada participated in a full slate of events that included the impressive 436-head National Show, the National Sale, a Beef Industry Awareness Seminar and the annual American Polled Hereford Association (APHA) awards banquet.

Inducted into the Polled Hereford Hall of Fame during special ceremonies were George C. Palmer II, Charlottesville, Va.; and Harry Schooley and his father, the late P.M. Schooley of West Liberty, Iowa.

Assuming the leadership positions for the APHA for the coming year are Board Chairman Dick Franck of Wooden Shoe Farms, Othello, Wash., and Board Vice Chairman Ross Ingram, Circle I Ranch, Water Valley, Miss.

The winners in the National Show included grand champion bull WAT GK Discovery, a Wild Cat Sundance 7K son, and grand champion female Sara 569R, sired by BT Butler 452M. Discovery is owned by Glenkirk Farms, Maysville, Mo.; Jac's Ranch, Bentonville, Ark.; and C.G. Watson, Wasola, Mo. Sara was exhibited by Beartooth Ranch, Columbus, Mont.; Split Butte Ranch, Rupert, Idaho; and Mohican Polled Herefords, Glenmont, Ohio.

The culmination of the breed's National activities was the National Polled Hereford Sale where 34½ lots brought $233,800 to average $6,777. Bull lots averaged $6,700, while female lots averaged $6,866.

Adams Co. Beef Producers schedule Beef Ball

GETTYSBURG — The Adams County Beef Producers will hold its next meeting Tuesday, February 12, at 7:30 P.M. at the Adams County Extension Office. The speaker will be Walter Jeffers from the Arthur J. Glatfelter Agency in York who will discuss farm insurance and your liability coverage, and answer any questions.

The ninth annual Beef Ball and Parade of Bulls will be held at the York Springs fire hall on March 30. Music will be supplied by the White Brothers Band, the public is welcome to attend, and more information can be obtained from Mary Grimes at 334-1022.

Membership to the ACBP Association is open to any area beef producers, or anyone interested in the beef industry in Adams County.

Pork Day

Association's Animal Health Advisory Committee, before submitting it to the Department of Agriculture.

Also featured during the morning program was Penn State swine reproduction specialist Dr. Dan Hagen, who discussed the role of genetics in swine selection.

Dr. Hagen emphasized the importance of continually introducing better boars into the herd. He then divided heritable traits into two categories: those that are moderately heritable, and those that have low heritability. The first category includes such traits as meat production, carcass quality, feed efficiency and growth rate. Those traits possessing very low heritability were litter size, conception rate, and pre-natal and post-natal survival.

Commenting on the push for larger litters, Dr. Hagen said that producers should strive for greater uniformity among baby pigs rather than increasing litter size.

"I think you'd all be happy if you could have litters of 12 uniform pigs, with 10 surviving," he said.

On the subject of embryo transfer, he noted that the technique is not easily adapted to the swine industry.

"It's difficult because the economic unit is the litter," he said. Unlike beef embryo transfers, where a single embryo is transplanted at a time, at least four embryos must be transplanted into a sow to allow the pregnancy to continue.

Turning to artificial insemination, Dr. Hagen pointed out that the technique is easily mastered and very useful for pork producers. One obvious advantage to AI, he said, is that fewer boars are needed to service the same number of sows.

But so far, researchers have had little success with freezing boar semen, Hagen pointed out. Both litter size and the rate of conception suffer when frozen semen is used, he said.

Rounding out the morning's presentations was Penn State red meat specialist, Dr. Bill Henning, with a look at the 1985 pork market. Dr. Henning pointed out that agriculture has been the one exception to the overall upward swing of the economy last year.

Turning to last year's weak pork prices, he said that retailers did not feature pork products as much as they could have. He also noted that the health scares precipitated by what he referred to as the vegetarian element of society have also helped to keep the lid on all red meat prices.

Though pork industry expansion in the Midwest is about over, he said, some eastern expansion is likely to occur this year in light of the low cost of feed.

With pork production expected to decline by four to eight percent this year, prices should be higher, he said, adding that profit margins at the packer level should improve as well.

Dr. Henning predicts that prices will average in the low-$50 range throughout most of the first and second quarters, with a strong beef market boosting pork prices to the mid-$50 range during the third quarter.

"If we see $70 cattle, we'll have hogs pushing $60," he said. Prices averaging about $47.50 during the fourth quarter will be due to the normal price erosion experienced at that time of the year, he pointed out.

Though some producers expressed fears that the current trend toward larger operations would squeeze the smaller producer out of the industry, Dr. Henning did not agree.

"There will still be a place for the family farmer," he concluded, adding that the mid-size farm with 100 sows will still be able to produce hogs more efficiently than the large operations.

Red meat production down for Dec.

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania commercial red meat production, dressed weight basis, during December 1984 totaled 78.1 million pounds, down 26 percent from December 1983, according to the Pennsylvania Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Beef slaughter, at 91.7 million pounds liveweight, was down nine percent from December 1983. Total head slaughtered was down seven percent at 79,500, and liveweight averaged 1,153 pounds, a decrease of 33 pounds. Veal slaughter was 3.8 million pounds liveweight, down 16 percent. Calf slaughter at 22,900 head was down 14 percent, and the average liveweight decreased four pounds to 166 pounds.

Hog slaughter, at 38.7 million

During afternoon sessions, Dr. Henning addressed the problem of drug residues, with Dr. Hagen speaking on the subject of environmental effects on reproduction. Also featured was swine veterinarian Dr. Timothy Trayer speaking on bio-security and herd health management.

pounds liveweight, was down 47 percent from a year earlier. Total head slaughtered was down 49 percent at 160,300, but the average liveweight increased 10 pounds to 241 pounds. Lamb and mutton slaughter was 1.4 million pounds liveweight, up 17 percent. The number slaughtered was 13,600, up 16 percent and the average liveweight increased one pound to 104 pounds.

U.S. commercial red meat production in December totaled 3.12 billion pounds, down eight percent from 1983. Beef production, at 1.83 billion pounds, was down seven percent. Total head killed was down seven percent at 2.94 million, while average liveweight increased three pounds to 1,073. Veal production increased five percent from a year ago to 39 million pounds. Calf slaughter was down six percent at 268 thousand head, however, average liveweight increased 16 pounds to 243.

U.S. pork production totaled 1.22 billion pounds, down 10 percent from a year ago. The 6.99 million head killed was down 11 percent, while the average liveweight increased two pounds to 245. Lamb and mutton production was unchanged at 30 million pounds. Slaughter totaled 530,000 head, down four percent, but the average liveweight increased three pounds to 114.

LMI gets new name

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — After being known for 15 years as Livestock Merchandising Institute, this educational foundation has a new name: Livestock Industry Institute. And, correspondingly, the name of the Institute's annual conference has been changed to Livestock Industry Congress, from Livestock Marketing Congress.

"The change to Livestock Industry Institute gives a more accurate identification of this organization...who's in it and what it does," said James L. Fries, the Institute's executive director.

The Institute's more than 900 members, who are known as Trustees, include representatives from all segments of the livestock and meat industry and related fields of agribusiness.

Cornell professor forecasts new era for animal agriculture

ITHACA, NY — "Mankind's future is at stake in a formidable race between population growth and famine," the late British historian Arnold Toynbee once said. His warning still holds true. With the year 2000 only 15 years away, the earth's population is headed for the seven billion mark, some two billion more mouths to feed than today.

As the global population grows, demands for animal products will increase dramatically, and the challenge to avert food shortages in the years ahead will become enormous, says William Hansel, professor of animal physiology at Cornell University.

in the field of reproductive physiology, especially animal reproduction.

Livestock and poultry, he says, provide 53 percent of all foods consumed in the United States, including two-thirds of the protein, one-third of the energy, one-half of the fat, and significant quantities of the essential minerals, micronutrients, and vitamins in our daily diets.

"Steps must be taken to boost the productivity of animals by improving their fertility, health, nutrition, and genetic potential," Hansel stresses. "These areas are likely to realize the greatest agricultural advances in the coming years."

By the end of the century, cattle breeding will be a completely controlled procedure, he predicts. Artificial inseminators will be

"inembryonators," implanting embryos produced by cows of superior genetic background and fertilized by sperm from outstanding bulls.

Techniques for controlling estrous cycles will be perfected so that groups of cattle, sheep, swine, and goats will be inseminated or impregnated with embryos at a predetermined time, eliminating the need to check the animals for estrus.

Superovulation techniques that are essential for embryo transfer will be finetuned, making it possible to harvest 100 or more eggs at a time. In vitro fertilization and embryo freezing techniques also will be perfected so that embryos can be stored in the laboratory indefinitely. Already, the sex of embryos can be controlled through intricate laboratory procedures.

"By the end of the century, the current high rates of embryo mortality will be curbed, vastly improving the fertility of recipient animals," Hansel says.

Rapid advances in recent years in recombinant DNA techniques, or gene splicing, allow scientists to prepare purified genes and inject them into fertilized embryos. New genetic materials thus introduced can be disseminated in domestic animals by embryo transfer. Genetic engineering of embryos, cloning, and dissection of embryos are among areas of research requiring major efforts.

These are just a few examples of genetic manipulations that will be accomplished in the future, according to the Cornell scientist. A great deal of fundamental information remains to be developed, however, before these techniques can become used widely.

Over the years, animal scientists, notably physiologists and nutritionists, have made tremendous contributions to the knowledge of the endocrine system and other physiological mechanisms that control animal growth, reproduction, and lactation.

This knowledge has led to the development of techniques that have resulted in improved growth rates, more efficient use of energy and protein, leaner carcasses, and increased milk production.

"We are now entering a new era in which we are using our knowledge of ways to control the hormones produced by the endocrine glands, especially the anterior pituitary gland, to develop techniques to improve animal performance," Hansel notes.

"Because the six different hormones produced and released by the pituitary profoundly influence growth, reproduction, lactation, and adaptation to stress, it is crucial that we have a better understanding of the hypothalamus," Hansel notes.

The hypothalamus also produces hormones that stimulate and inhibit feed intake, and regulate functions mediated by parts of the nervous system.

"Thus, we can expect to see new methods for regulating the hypothalamus and for using the hormones it produces to increase lactation, improve growth rates, and produce leaner carcasses," Hansel says.

In his view, some of the areas requiring stepped-up research efforts include synthesis through recombinant DNA techniques of large quantities of all the pituitary hormones in cattle, sheep, swine, and poultry.

Research is also needed to make use of hypothalamic hormones to regulate growth, feed efficiency, lactation, and carcass characteristics and to develop new ways to manipulate environmental factors such as light and temperature to maximize production of the hypothalamic hormones.

Over the years, animal food production has increased tremendously. This trend will continue and even accelerate as the demand for animal products rises, according to Hansel. Increased productivity per animal will be achieved largely as a result of discoveries in the areas of forage production and utilization, animal reproduction and genetics, and animal physiology and nutrition.

"The stage is set for the use of genetic engineering techniques in animal breeding," he points out. "Increased production of meat and milk by each animal, as well as improved carcass characteristics, could be achieved by regulating the animal's endocrine system and other physiological factors."

American Pork Congress will cover respiratory diseases

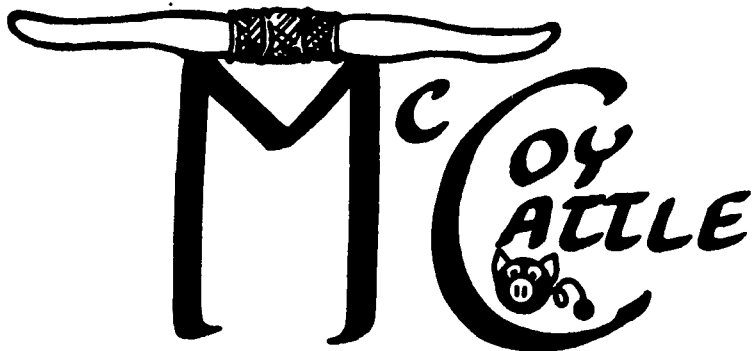

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Haemophilus pleuropneumonia and associated respiratory diseases of swine will be discussed in a two-hour seminar at the American Pork Congress to be held in Indianapolis March 5-8. Haemophilus pleuropneumonia, rarely found in this country only a decade ago, is now estimated to be costing the U.S. swine industry $10 million a year. The seminar is scheduled for Tuesday, March 5, from 3 to 5 p.m.

Dr. Roy Schultz, practicing veterinarian and noted expert on respiratory diseases of swine, will lead off the program with a presentation on haemophilus pleuropneumonia.

Next, Dr. L.G. Biehl, University of Illinois Extension veterinarian, will give an overview of associated respiratory diseases. These include atrophic rhinitis, pasteurellosis, mycoplasma pneumonia and pseudorabies, which are suspected of increasing haemophilus pleuropneumonia occurrence.

The formal portion of the seminar will conclude with a talk by Arlin Sorensen, a Harlan, Iowa pork producer. Mr. Sorensen will describe how he managed to control a severe haemophilus outbreak in his herd, and what steps he has taken to prevent reoccurrence.

BUSINESS NEWS...

Slawson & Mead Inc., expands operations

FORESTVILLE, N.Y. — Slawson & Mead Inc., formerly of Forestville, announce their relocation to a newly purchased headquarters.

The facility, located at 219 Brigham Road, Dunkirk, N.Y., will house the firm's administrative, sales, engineering offices and manufacturing plant.

This move is part of a large expansion program Slawson & Mead is undertaking. The firm manufactures specialized agricultural equipment including the Vinemaster Mechanized Vineyard System, Spray-Safe filters, McAdam disks and Springtooth harrows. Tractor cabs, herbicide booms and the Ellis brush rake are also produced.

The firm distributes and services a variety of agricultural, industrial and safety products in the Northeast. A steel service center and additional product lines have been added.

The company has also named Phillip P. Petrakos to the newly created position of director of sales. Mr. Petrakos is responsible for the expansion and administration of the company's dealer network in the U.S. and Canada. He will also distribute products represented by Slawson & Mead in the northeast and expand the firms custom design and fabrication business.

A graduate of Silver Creek Central School and Clarkson

Phillip Petrakos

College of Technology, Mr. Petrakos was previously eastern regional manager for Blount & Agri-Industrial, Bluffton, Indiana. He has also held the position of sales engineer with the S. Howes Company and Clarkliff of Buffalo, Inc. Mr. Petrakos is president of the Silver Creek Chamber of Commerce, a director of the Northern Chautauqua Chamber and the Festival of Grapes, Inc. and is a member of the Institute of Industrial Engineers. He resides in Silver Creek.

New flail mowers available from Mathews

CRYSTAL LAKE, Ill. — Mathews Equipment Co. announces a New line of flail mowers: Models 6000FM, 7200M and 8800M in 60, 72 and 88 inch cutting widths, respectively.

The mowers feature precision balanced heavy-duty rotor, 1-15/16" greasable rotor bearings, patented spring loaded "quick change" knives, single "C" section belt drive with spring tensioned, self-adjust idler pulley, full span tubular steel gauge roller, 60 hp gearbox, 540 rpm PTO, category I three-point hitch, and cutting heights easily adjusted from 0 to 6 inches. Optional 300-degree rotor mount caster wheel kit and thatching blade kits are also available.

The mowers provide clean cutting, low impact action and downward deflection of cut material for greater bystander and operator safety. These safer flail mowers are ideally suited for fast, efficient mowing of large areas. Airports, roadways, parks, industrial and residential complexes are a few of the many and diverse applications. For more information contact: Mathews Equipments Co., 500 Industrial Ave., Crystal Lake, Ill. 60014. Phone: 815-459-2210.

Pint-size pedal pullers to compete at Messick's

ELIZABETHTOWN — Messick Farm Equipment, Inc., of Elizabethtown will sponsor a pedal tractor pull for children three to eight years old on Feb. 14, at 7 p.m. The event will be held in Messick's large shop area, with Dave Nolt of Paradise serving as pull manager.

Similar to a tractor pull, a pedal pull features pint-size contestants and tractors, as well as a miniaturized sled with a moving weight box. Weights range as high as 100 pounds, with a full pull being 75 feet.

Classes are determined by age, with both boys and girls competing in one of three classes: ages three to four, five to six, and seven to eight. Tractors will be provided at the event.

Parents are urged to enter their children in advance at Messicks, with registrations being accepted up to and including the same day as the pull. The pulling sled, as well as all tractors will be on display one hour before the pull.

Prizes will be presented to all class winners, and all participants will receive an award. So sign up your children with pull coordinator Ken Messick, then come on out and see what pedal pulling is all about.

Gehl offers new 60-Series forage harvesters

WEST BEND, Wisc. — The Gehl Company has introduced its new line of 60-Series forage harvesters, described as state-of-the-art machines by a company spokesman.

The three new machines are the 1260, 1060 and 760, states Terry LeFever, Gehl forage harvester product manager. The 1260 is rated for tractors up to 300 hp, the 1060 for tractors up to 200 hp, and the 760 for tractors up to 150 hp.

Describing the new 1260 and 1060 as "truly state-of-the-art forage harvesters," LeFever explained that these two models feature an innovative Auto-Max System for load management that replaces shear pins and greatly reduces field downtime while maximizing machine and tractor capacities.

To achieve this breakthrough, Gehl put two load sensors — one on the feedrolls and the other on the attachment drive with an electric clutch on the feedroll and attachment transmission. "When there's an overload, these sensors automatically disengage the electric clutch, stopping the feedrolls and the crop attachment almost instantly," LeFever said.

"This is the point where shear pins would normally have to be replaced, but because there are no shear pins, the operator should never have to leave the tractor seat. He simply shifts back to neutral to reset the clutch. Then, while still maintaining operational rpm, he shifts into forward again and the overload will go through the harvester. These few seconds are usually long enough for the crop to compress and be fed smoothly into the cylinder.

"It's really a breakthrough in harvester technology," LeFever said. "What it means for the operator is that he can operate his harvester and tractor near their top capacity limits without fear of prolonged downtime should an overload occur.

Just as the load sensing system protects the harvester from overloads, a new speed monitoring system protects the unit from plugging the blower and deflector because of drops in tractor rpm. A speed monitor is mounted in the feed delivery system. When the speed of the blower drops below 70 percent of the optimum rpm, the monitor automatically disengages the clutch, shutting down the feedrolls and attachment. Without the extra load demand the tractor can regain its speed and allow the harvester clutch to be re-engaged and go back to harvesting.

The Auto-Max System is standard equipment on the new Gehl 1260 and an option on the new 1060.

Both of these machines can also be outfitted with the new Metal-Stop metal detector. This system will stop the feedrolls as soon as any ferrous metal is detected between them. The Metal-Stop system will be available as a factory-installed option for any Gehl harvester outfitted with the Auto-Max System.

A third new unit, the 760, has also been introduced by Gehl. The 760 features a close-coupled cylinder and blower with part of the cylinder knives actually running in the blower compartment. This increases the efficiency of the harvester by eliminating any dead spots in material flow through the unit.

A new option for the 760 is an overrunning clutch on the driveline which allows the cylinder and blower to free-wheel when power is cut. This feature is standard on the 1260 and the 1060 models.

The 760 can be fitted with an in-head hydraulic knife and cutterbar sharpener allowing the cylinder knives to be sharpened right in the field, using tractor hydraulics. The knife sharpener system can also be used to reface the cutterbar, restoring its sharp edge for better cutting and reduced horsepower requirements. The knife and cutterbar sharpener are optional on the 760, standard on the two larger harvesters.

Another feature that is standard on all three harvesters is a simplified single-station cutterbar adjustment system. "We feel the more simplified the system is, the more it will be used, and the more the customer will benefit from reduced power requirements and better cut control," LeFever said.

Nobody builds a more accurate planter than the Seed Boss®

The Seed Boss planter gives you accurate seed depth and spacing whether you're planting conventional, minimum-till or no-till.

No matter whether you plant conventional, minimum-till or no-till, we'll match our Seed Boss® planter against any other brand. For accurate seed depth, spacing and emergence.

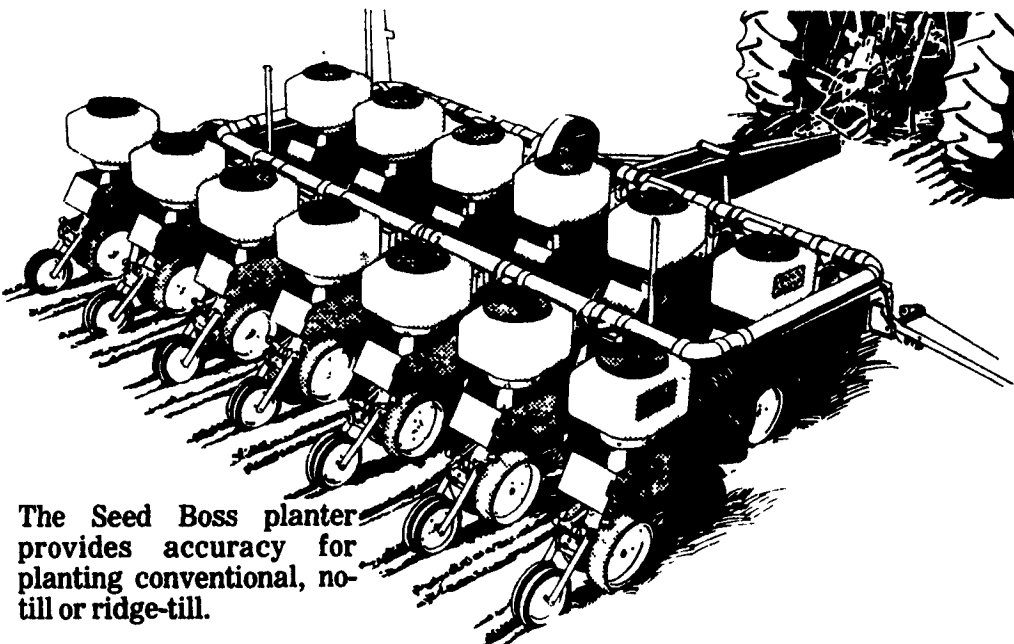

Seed Boss is built for accuracy under a wide range of field conditions. Our low, constant air pressure system insures consistent seed drop with a wide variety of seed sizes.

Double disk openers with walking beam dual gauge wheels provide uniform seed depth. Plus the extra heft and strength built into every Seed Boss frame means more stability at higher speeds and under rougher conditions.

Come in today and experience for yourself the quality and value built into every Seed Boss. It's why a lot of farmers believe it's today's most accurate planter.

This planter fits every field.

The Seed Boss planter provides accuracy for planting conventional, no-till or ridge-till.

You could plant every field a different way and still plant every one well with one Seed Boss® planter. Because this planter can plant conventional, no-till, ridge-till, even solid-seeded with the addition of just a few simple attachments.

Tough-no-till attachments. For tough, unconventional tillage fields, add no-till coulters with cleaning blades. Our yoke-type coulters mounting with heavy-duty bearings keeps the blades accurately aligned, right in front of the seed drop opening. This means more uniform planting under rough field conditions.

You design your planter. Set up your Seed Boss for just about any planting configuration—wide rows, narrow rows, skip rows or solid-seeded. In a pull-type, tool bar, folding model or double-up with our Soybean Special.

One thing stays the same. Every Seed Boss planter is built with a heavy box-beam frame that adds weight, strength and durability. Plus every model comes with the famous Seed Boss row units, known across the country for precise seed drop of nearly any row crop, any size seed.

Automatic's compact sprayer gets into the tight spots

CHAMBERSBURG
Automatic's popular Porta Mister with optional boom can be mounted on a trailer to create a compact sprayer for many purposes. All that's needed is 12-volt battery power to operate the sprayer, according to the unit's distributor, Ryder Supply.

The entire rig is only four feet wide, making it ideal for road-sides, premise spraying, parks and other areas where big equipment can't go. A trigger-grip spray gun and 15-foot hose are standard equipment with the Porta-Mister.

Other features include limited by-pass valve, built-in pressure switch and 12-gallon tank with 5-inch screw-on lid. The sprayer can also be mounted directly on small tractors or ATV's for a compact "go-anywhere" sprayer.

For further details contact the manufacturer, Automatic Equipment Mfg. Co., Department NR, Box P, Pender, Nebraska 68047, 402-385-3054, or the distributor, Ryder Supply, Box 219, Chambersburg, Pennsylvania, 17201, 717-263-9111.

When added to an All Terrain Vehicle, Worksaver seeder/spreaders complete small jobs efficiently.

Tidal Wave goes to ABS

DEFOREST, Wis. — Paclamar Tidal Wave has been leased by American Breeders Service following the sale of 1/2 interest at the South Fork Sale held on the site of the TV series, "Dallas," December 8, 1984.

The Texas Holstein Sire Syndicate, new co-owner of the bull, agreed along with the other owner Marlin Hoff, Coldsprings Farm, to have the bull housed at ABS Headquarters in DeForest, Wis. Semen will be made available to breeders exclusively by ABS through their regular distribution system and representative outlets.

Tidal Wave entered the quarantine facilities at ABS December 29, and it is expected that semen will be available by mid-February.

Tidal Wave was bred by Paclamar Farms and consigned to the 1979 National Conventional Sale where he was purchased by Marlin Hoff.

Sired by Wapa Arlinda Conductor, Tidal Wave is out of Paclamar Triune Tippy 2E, a Bootmaker daughter. He was progeny-tested by the Holstein Sire Development Service (HSDS) and has Predicted Differences of +$114, +1151M and +.90 PDT as reported in the January 1985 Sire Summary.

More wheels available from DMI

GOODFIELD, Ill. — DMI, Inc., manufacturer of farm equipment, recently announced a newly developed tractor triple wheel system to meet the needs of today's heavier and higher horsepower tractors.

DMI states that when tractors were smaller, in the 95 horsepower range and generally equipped with 18.4 X 34 tires, they left deep compacted tire tracks. Putting on dual wheels solved this compaction problem. However, today's 160 horsepower tractors, with nearly twice the weight and equipped with 18.4 X 38 tires, require triples to obtain the same balanced tire-to-weight ratio.

According to DMI, their new triple system is not the old "dual-on-a-dual" approach, but a complete triple system designed for these newer tractors with long axles. The DMI prime 10-hole dual wheels have formed center discs made of heavier steel than regular 10-hole dual wheels. The center discs have also been repositioned to withstand a greater shock load and to provide stronger support for the DMI band-type Sup'r-Lok II rims used as triples.

New planter well adapted for sweetcorn

NEW HOLLAND — The ABC Groff Company of New Holland has designed a three-pt, two-row planter frame which has a lot to offer the commercial sweetcorn grower.

The VERSA-FRAME is a heavy duty planter system that features infinite row spacings from 16 inches to 42 inches. With John Deere Max-Emerge planter units it plants up to 25 acres per 10 hour day figuring 60 percent efficiency. That means 40 percent of the time is taken making turns at the end of rows and filling seed boxes and fertilizer boxes. This efficiency is average for most planters.

Most commercial farmers do not plant 25 acres each day. Chances are they plant a few good early, mid-season and long season sweetcorn varieties. The long season varieties, such as Silver Queen, are planted in succession every 3 to 5 days for successive harvest dates. The more successive plantings made, the longer the harvest season.

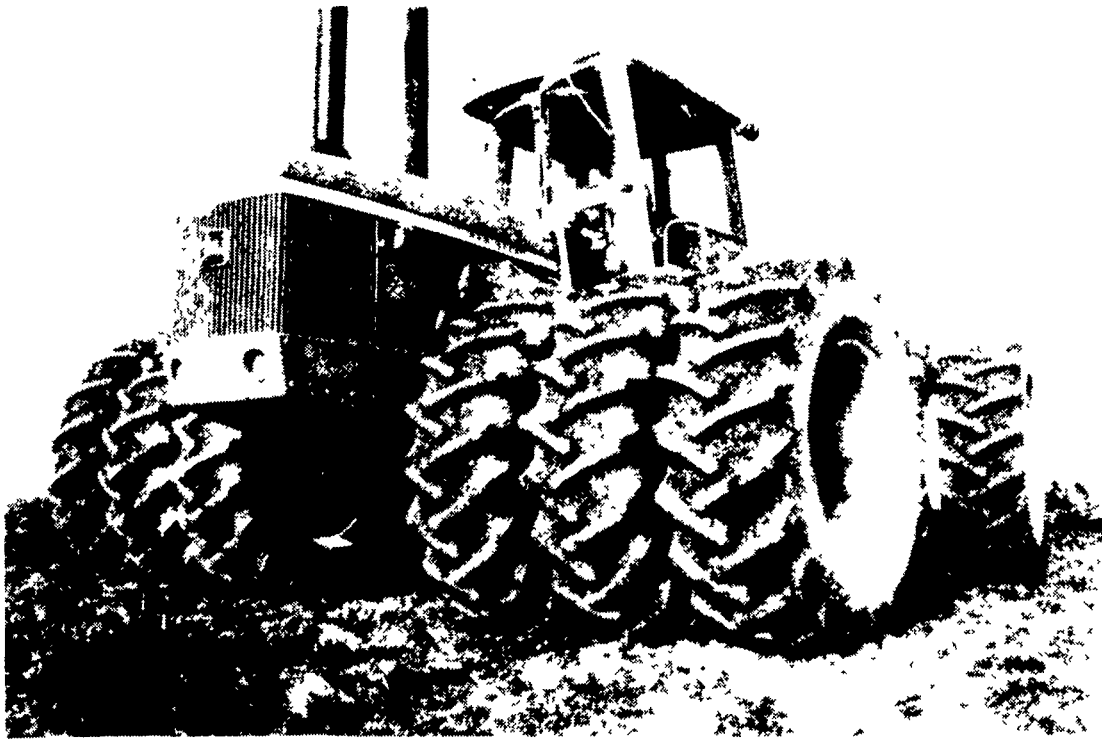

Groff's planter system is extremely versatile and convenient for sweetcorn growers. Outfitted with heavy duty coulters the planter can plant sweetcorn in conservation tillage or no-till fields. There are no planter plates, so changing from one seed variety or seed size to another takes far less time in the field.

The VERSA-FRAME with the John Deere planter units plants the seed more evenly and at more controlled depth than most older type planters. This insures increased yields plus a more even maturity. Sweetcorn must emerge evenly within 24 to 36 hours plus good seedling growth rate if the corn is to be clean picked. Even maturity is especially important for farmers who use mechanical harvesters. Since most harvesters are one row or two-row the VERSA-FRAME system is ideal.

A 500-pound capacity dry fertilizer box or liquid fertilizer tank plus appropriate application tools are available for applying starter fertilizer or deep-placed liquid nitrogen. There are also insecticide boxes available for applying insecticides as a prophylactic against first generation European corn borer plus rootworm and cutworm control.

By adding double disk furrow openers to the front of the seed dropping unit a furrow up to five inches deep and 12 inches wide can be made. This enables the grower to lay plastic mulch over the top of the planted furrows for earlier planting and earlier harvesting. The plastic covered furrows have a greenhouse effect on the corn.

The planter is priced at $3,800 to $4,500, depending on the options.

Here's how dairymen in this area are selling themselves on Murphy Bru-Mash

A little arithmetic shows Bru-Mash benefits

Your Murphy representative has a simple worksheet form he'd like to go over with you and help you fill out — using your feeds, your costs and ingredient prices in your area. Complete the arithmetic on the form and we think you'll see why Murphy Bru-Mash has become so popular so quickly.

The secret of Bru-Mash is really not much of a mystery. Bru-Mash combines the advantages of highest quality by-pass protein with excellent palatability and digestibility. Result: Your top cows eat better and convert more of what they eat into milk. They stay on feed longer and they make maximum use of your homegrown dairy feeds.

Farm Credit takes over Farm Records and Tax Service

YORK — A new financially related program, Farm Records & Tax Service is being provided to farmers and agribusinesses in South Central Pennsylvania as announced by Jay V. Rush, general manager of the York Farm Credit Service, with offices in York, Carlisle, Chambersburg, Gettysburg, New Bloomfield, and Stewartstown.

Effective January 1, 1985, York Farm Credit Service began to serve the farm records and tax service needs of farmers previously served by the Agway Profile Records & Tax Service. The transfer of these services from Agway to Farm Credit has been underway for over six months, and will result in approximately 120 new customers for Farm Credit.

The basis for the Records & Tax Service that Farm Credit will be offering is the Agrifax system, which although new to Pennsylvania and the York service area, is a time proven, user oriented, computer based system that is used by approximately 18,000 farmers across the nation. Rush stressed that the Agrifax system being used by York Farm Credit has been recently updated by the Springfield, Mass. Farm Credit District and can be used with a farmer's own computer or information can be provided to Farm Credit's computer for processing, which provides useful monthly reports for making today's critical farm management decisions.

A third record-keeping option is the manual system, which features quarterly profit and loss statements, and which enables Farm Credit to serve a wide range of farm accounting needs.

The Farm Records & Tax Service is available to all farmers eligible to use Farm Credit's lending programs, even if they are not present borrowers. Rush went on to clarify that present borrowers will not be required to use the records service to qualify for a loan, although quality records and financial information are becoming more important in making lending decisions.

Farm Credit also recognizes the importance of confidentiality in dealing with financial information. For this reason, procedures are in place to restrict exposure of a farmer's records to the level determined by the farmer.

Rush emphasized that financial management services are not new to Farm Credit. While primarily a credit service, Farm Credit has offered Credit Life Insurance for a number of years, and in January 1984 implemented a Business, Estate & Tax Planning Service, which has provided for over 30 farmers, a comprehensive plan to provide short and long range financial savings, as well as peace of mind.

Ear tags control pests on cattle

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Anchor Laboratories, Inc., introduces the new, convenient Permethrin ear tags "Ranch Pak" for cattle producers who purchase in large quantities. "Ranch Pak," plastic pails containing 50 Permethrin Ear Tags and 52 attachment studs. The durable container compactly stores and protects the tags from any damage.

The "Ranch Pak" contains Permethrin ear tags designed to provide a larger useful surface area and to direct more insecticide to sites pests prefer. These tags swing, touch the hair coat and brush a large surface area to provide the animal with better protection.

Two tags per animal controls face flies, horn flies, gulf coast ticks, spinose ear ticks and acts as an aid in controlling lice, stable flies and houseflies.

Permethrin ear tags are also available in packages of 24 tags.

Monsanto defends Lasso safety record

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Noting that "Monsanto will not market a product whose proposed use would result in unacceptable risks," company officials said recently that the extensive data on Lasso herbicide indicates a "vast margin of safety" for farmers, applicators, the public, and the environment.

"The health and safety data base we have on Lasso is, to our knowledge, as extensive as that of any agricultural chemical in the world. It has been reviewed by our scientists as well as independent experts in toxicology and risk assessment," said Nicholas Reding, executive vice president, Monsanto Co.

"Our conclusion — based on the data, outside review, and 16 years of manufacturing and use experience with the product — is that Lasso does not pose unreasonable risks when used according to label instructions. We will not market a product whose use would result in unacceptable risks. That is Monsanto's approach to product safety, and we are committed to it," he said.

Special Review

Questions about Lasso herbicide, the most widely used agricultural chemical in the United States, were raised in November as a result of the Environmental Protection Agency's re-registration procedures for the product. EPA re-registration will be conducted on all pesticides which were registered before 1978 to insure that they have been subjected to the most up-to-date testing procedures.

During the re-registration of Lasso, laboratory tests showed that rats fed high levels of the material daily for most of their lifetimes developed tumors. That finding triggered a Special Review, an in-depth evaluation of all data on the herbicide which will weigh its risks and benefits.

Reding points out that the feeding levels that resulted in tumor formation in rats have no correlation to the greatest potential human exposure to Lasso.

"To reach the exposure level that caused a single tumor in a group of 100 rats, a farmer would have to load, mix and apply 21,000 gallons of Lasso every day of every year throughout most of his lifetime," he said.

"Most farmers apply Lasso for less than five days a year. Custom applicators, who may use Lasso longer, use closed systems which help shield them from contact with the product. Our calculations have shown that the lifetime risk of developing a tumor, based on 40 years of using Lasso, is in the range of one-in-a-million, a range that has historically been considered acceptable by the EPA," Reding noted.

Extensive Testing

Monsanto has reached this conclusion through examination of its data base on the product, which includes extensive testing and 16 years of manufacturing and on-the-farm experience.

In evaluating the risk and exposure potential of Lasso, Monsanto conducted studies to determine how readily alachlor, the active ingredient in Lasso, is absorbed into the body. In addition the company tested for exposure to alachlor among applicators in fields under working conditions. More than 60 separate tests were conducted and results were evaluated by both Monsanto scientists and independent experts in toxicology and risk assessment, explained Reding.

Also, at Monsanto's Lasso manufacturing plants, worker exposure is extensively monitored. Routine checks on airborne levels of Lasso in the work environment have been conducted for years as part of comprehensive industrial hygiene programs.

In addition, physical examinations and clinical tests are performed yearly on all workers. This information along with detailed job history data is continually entered into Monsanto's computerized Medical and Environmental Health Information System.

"Tracking of worker health trends has shown no unusual or adverse health effects in employees who work in the day-to-day manufacture of Lasso," he said.

Unanimous Conclusion

Monsanto has agreed to cooperate fully with the EPA through the Special Review process, and has instituted a series of programs across the country to inform users on proper handling procedures for Lasso.

"The stringent review of data, combined with the 16 years of experience on the farm and in the factory, leads us to one unanimous conclusion," Reding continued. "Proper use of Lasso is not harmful — to farmers, to applicators, or to the environment."

Worksaver seeder/spreaders adapt to ATV's

LITCHFIELD, Ill. — The complete, twenty-four model line of rear-mounted seeder/spreaders from Worksaver, Inc., Litchfield, Illinois, includes units designed for use with all major makes of All Terrain Vehicles.

Worksaver seeder/spreaders reduce costly manual seeding and fertilizing by taking advantage of the versatility of an ATV. An ATV-mounted seeder/spreader efficiently covers confined or rugged areas impossible to reach with a tractor, leaves soft or muddy ground minimally disturbed, and handles smaller jobs more economically.

Each seeder/spreader is equipped with a one-bushel hopper of corrosion-resistant, durable polyethylene, and features positive seed gate control and variable fan speed for consistent, even distribution. A hopper lid eliminates the loss of seed or fertilizer to the wind. Splash guard, 12-volt motor and complete wiring harness are included.

For more information about Worksaver seeder/spreaders for ATV's, contact Worksaver, Inc., P.O. Box 1000, Litchfield, Illinois 62056. Telephone 217-324-5973.

Automatic's Porta Mister plus boom is only four feet wide and mounts easily on ATV's or small tractors.

Red Ball pull-on footwear helps control disease

MANCHESTER, N.H. — The problem of disease control is especially serious for poultry and pork growers. Now Red Ball, a leader in the development and manufacture of protective footwear for farm and industry, is introducing a new product designed to help in this vital area.

Easy-Kleen pull-on boots feature a completely smooth surface to minimize the collection of soil and animal waste on both the upper and the outsole. The smooth surface also provides for quick, easy, thorough cleaning as the grower goes from one area to another.

Lightweight Easy-Kleen boots are full-cut to fit over work shoes and boots. They are molded in one piece for 100-percent waterproof protection. In addition, the durable polyvinyl uppers and heavy-gauge, long-wearing outsoles are compounded to remain flexible in low temperatures and to resist animal fats and greases as well as many common cleaning oils, cleaning products and disinfectants. Easy-Kleen boots also feature rust-resistant hardware. PERMASLIP coating inside the boot makes for easy on and off and a snug fit.

The new 10-inch, black pull-on boots are available in men's sizes medium through extra large to accommodate sizes 8 through 13. More information about the Easy-Kleen is available from Red Ball, Division of Hampshire Manufacturing Corporation/A Prevue Company, P.O. Box 3200, Manchester, N.H. 03105

NEW FENCING
BY AMERICAN
OWNERS

"The Arc 12 Solar system allows us to safely run our stallions next to the mares eliminating time and labor on try backs."

Harold S. Warder, Quality Quarter Horses, Oskaloosa, Iowa

- Eliminates fence sagging
- No staples or wire clips
- Adjustable enclosed spring assembly for each wire
- Optional site rails™
- Optional Arc 110 Volt multi wire unit
- Installed by trained dealers
- Fully guaranteed by warranty

The ARC 12 Fence is a new concept in livestock fencing. Using free energy from the sun, the solar powered solid state unit keeps a powerful 12 volt battery charged for effective shocking. Special non-conductive white plastic posts are attractive and extremely durable, capable of being bent 45° and returning to their original position. Using smooth 12½ gauge high tensile wire eliminates injuries from barbed wire.

FERTILIZER
COULTERVersatile
Fertilizer
Placement

The new Yetter Fertilizer Coulter lets you put fertilizer right down beneath the trash and place it accurately alongside the seed bed at the depth you prefer for maximum utilization. You'll also like the way Yetter's new coulter cuts a clean, wedge-shaped slot and doesn't disturb the soil like conventional double disc openers. Unlike many units, the Yetter coulter is fully adjustable and you can use it just as efficiently for no-till, mini-till and conventional tillage. The versatile bracket makes mounting on your planter quick and easy. Don't wait... see your Yetter dealer today or phone us direct. Yetter Manufacturing Co., Colchester, IL 62326-0358. # The Dairy Business

By

THE ECSTASY OF FARM LIFE

Forgive me. I have developed a habit of looking at dairy farming strictly as a business. To be evaluated only in terms of dollars. Or profit and loss. This is short-sighted bunk, as you are well aware.

Rural living, as opposed to city or urban life, is like living in another world. Forget about the old cliches like fresh air and sunshine on the farm, - there are other assets that come with a 'good ole country boy' - or girl.

It's hard to put a price on the togetherness that is taken for granted by family members on a farm. Where else do you find family members taking over and filling in when Dad suddenly decides to be 'unavoidably' detained at the auction, (or the barber shop)? Actually, he is nearly always indispensable to the business, except at those rare episodes when the vet happens to drop in to blood test the herd just before milking time. Why, it's just natural for mom and the kids to carry on the business while the boss is preoccupied, isn't it?

And who can deny the unbounded

joy that mother feels when she discovers the heifers placidly grazing in the garden? To say nothing of the exotic delight of those same fat, lettuce- and cabbage-fed hummies when mother comes out to play 'swing the broomstick' with them. What a joy to see them scurry for the barnyard gate, which just happens to swing shut before they get inside. Oh well, the other gate is wide open and inviting (the one that goes to the sweet corn patch). Screaming is good exercise for the lungs, and does wonders for the sinuses.

Sunday morning can be particularly uplifting, especially when it breaks on a gloriously frosty Christmas card scene with cool, brisk temperatures a bare nothing above nothing. No water leaks this morning. Everything tight and solid. Ha! We'll make ice cream after Church. After the pipes are thawed, the cleaner chain repaired, and the silo unloader is unstuck. If we ever get to church. We might, if dad doesn't dislocate a disc trying to carry a tub of HMC across the skating rink in front of the barn. And if mom doesn't waste too much time thawing the pump, cleaning up the milk house, feeding the 25 calves in the hutches back of the orchard, cooking breakfast, and getting the kids dressed, we might get to church before the anthem. Glory Halleluia!

Happiness is when, after six weeks of beautiful sunshine and hot wind, a cool lingering shower washes the dust away. And washes, and washes, and washes. Of course, it washes everything off of the alfalfa that was just about dry. Everything. All the dust. Even the leaves. It leaves nice, clean, washed stems. After all, we really needed the rain. Lots and lots of rain. A few little gullies in the corn field won't be noticed, until we bust an axel on the picker next fall.

One of the joys of farm life is the trip down the lane to the mail box. There is always good news in the morning mail. A letter from Aunt Samantha, with more good news about her arthritis. Ah-ha. There are a couple of long narrow ones with windows. One is from the bank. Isn't that nice. Could it be a check? Always good to get a check. Oh yeah, this is the first of the month, so that must be the mortgage notice. The other three envelopes are probably bills too. No need to worry about them, just throw them on Mom's desk. She's the only one who knows what to do with them anyway. Now, why the heck didn't Lancaster Farming come?

Now to top off this little discourse of the joys and pleasures of life on the farm, I'll have to reveal a little secret. I lied. It's not exactly that way, and you know it.

It is not April 1, and Groundhog Day is over, so it must have been the new moon. I haven't felt quite like myself lately, so please forgive me. I really love farm living, as I'm sure you do too.

In case you've been thinking of giving up the ghost, don't. Cheer up! The new moon will wax brighter every day now, and the groundhog will sleep off his frightening experience of last week. And if we can just survive April Fools' Day, the winter will be over and spring will have sprung once more.

You see, farming is not just a business. It is a unique way of living. Any way you look at it, it's hard to beat.

AUTO/TRUCK DIESEL TREATMENT totally disperses water. It eliminates water even better than water separators. It also keeps injectors clean, improves engine efficiency, and contains no harmful alcohol. Use it in every tankful all year 'round. IT COSTS SO LITTLE TO PROTECT SO MUCH. Use Auto/Truck Polarized Flow Improver during the wintertime to prevent waxing and gelling.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

GOOD NEWS- 1985 TAXES

There is some good news in the 1985 tax situation. First the brackets went up which in effect reduces your tax on the same income as you had in 1984. A $29,900 income for a married couple filing jointly had a tax of $4790 in 1984. The same income in 1985, due to indexing and a 4% change in brackets, would result in a $4544 tax. There is some sentiment in Congress to eliminate indexing but this is one time the President is on our side.

A second good news item is that personal exemptions will go from $1000 to $1040, again due to indexing. That doesn't help me like it did at one time (most of my dependents are on their own—a couple even have their own dependents now). Third is the increase in the standard deduction from 3400 to 3540 for marrieds filing jointly and 2300 to 2390 for singles.

Fourth item is the increase from $10,000 to $11,000 for people eligible for earned income credits. Along with the increase in the maximum is the increase in the maximum credit from $500 to $550. Unfortunately, a chunk of this increase is eaten up in the increased social security tax.

ESTIMATED TAXES

There has been no basic change made for farmers or fisherman. However if your tax due is less than $500, you could delay filing until April 15 without penalty.

Two other ways to avoid penalty or underpayment of estimated taxes are: (1) prepay an amount equal to 100% of 1984 taxes or (2) pay thru the year an amount equal to 80% of taxes due in 1985 (or 66-2/3% if you are a farmer).

Of course full time (over 2/3 of gross income from farming) farmers can file their final return by March 1 and avoid estimates entirely.

CHARITY DEDUCTIONS

Volunteer mileage increases from 9 to 12 cents for 1985. Non-itemizers will be able to deduct 50% of all charitable gifts without filing a Schedule A for the 1985 tax year. That coupled with the increased standard deduction will probably result in fewer itemizers for 1985.

DIVORCE LAW CHANGES

The change in tax implications for divorcing and divorced people will be dramatic. The new law will probably result in some judges and attorneys causing real tax headaches for divorced people. A lot of old rules that judges and divorce attorneys operated under for over 30 years have been eliminated. The replacement rules are complex and will need some digesting by a legal sector as well as some help from knowledgeable accountants.

Schuylkill Extension agent named

POTTSVILLE — Donald E. Tanner has been named Schuylkill County assistant Extension agent by the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service. His position became effective January 15.

Tanner's responsibilities include coordinating all county 4-H activities in cooperation with other staff who are assigned 4-H duties. He will plan, initiate and evaluate a broad 4-H program to improve economic, social and cultural aspects of community and family life.

A graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, Tanner holds a bachelor's degree in social science. Before accepting his current position, he was a 4-H worker with the McKean County Extension office.

Tanner is a member of the Pennsylvania 4-H Agents Association and the McKean County Historical Society.

He is a native of Turtlepoint, McKean County.

USDA revises P.L. 480 allocations

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has issued its revised country and commodity allocations for fiscal 1985 under Titles I and III of Public Law 480 (the Food for Peace program).

Under Secretary of Agriculture Daniel G. Amstutz said current program plans provide for distribution of $1,053.6 million in commodity shipments, changed from $1,099.5 million the previous quarter. Of the current amount, $900.5 million is allocated and $153.1 million is being held in a reserve to furnish commodities for unforeseen needs during the remainder of the fiscal year. There has been a recent transfer of $50 million from the Title I/III program to Title II to help assure adequate funding to meet food needs in Africa.

Amstutz said there has been an increase in the allocation for Bangladesh, the Dominican Republic and Yemen. Also, Zimbabwe has been newly identified for an allocation.

The revised allocations meet the legal requirement that not less than 75 percent of food aid commodities be allocated to friendly countries that meet the International Development Association poverty criterion. The countries in this category are those with an annual per capita gross national product of $790 or less.

Amstutz said the program takes into account such variables as the commodities and budget available in the United States and participating countries; changing economic and foreign policy situations, including human rights assessments; potential for market development; fluctuations in commodity prices; availability of handling, storage and distribution facilities; and possible disincentives to local production.

Except for agreements already signed, these allocations do not represent either final U.S. commitments or agreements with participating governments. Situations still may develop which could cause a further change in country and commodity allocations, Amstutz said.

Title I of P.L. 480 is a concessional sales program designed to promote exports of agricultural commodities from the United States and to foster economic development in recipient countries. The program provides loans of up to 40 years, with a grace period of up to 10 years and low interest rates.

Title III provides for the forgiveness of the debt incurred under Title I, based on accomplishments in food for development programs and projects agreed upon by the United States and recipient countries.

Additional technical information on the P.L. 480 program is available from Mary Chambliss of USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service, (202) 447-3573.

Agriculture Week set

BALTIMORE — Agriculture Week will be observed in Baltimore County at Hunt Valley Mall, Shawan Road and I83 from Monday, February 18th thru Saturday, February 23rd.

"MARYLAND AGRICULTURE — A MODERN MIRACLE" is the theme for Baltimore County Agriculture Week.

The Baltimore County Extension Service, under the direction of G. Richard Curran is coordinating the program with assistance from the Baltimore County Farm Bureau and it's president, Raymond Armacost, Jr. and many other farm organizations.

The kick-off for the festivities will be held on the evening of February 18th when a county official will present a proclamation declaring the week "Baltimore County Agriculture Week" to Mr. Curran and Mr. Armacost. Beginning that day many farm displays will be shown on both floors of the Hunt Valley Mall expanse. Many farm people will be on hand to explain how the displayed products are grown on their farm.

For slurry manure: Patz Model 100 Slurry Pump

- Handle high volumes of free-flowing manure or slurry with fine-cut bedding.
- Moves manure underground through 15" or 12" PVC pipe to storage area.
- Large-capacity 7" by 15" plunger and one-way valve for constant manure removal mean less cleaning time.
- Stroke length offers three adjustments to match manure consistency.
- All moving parts removable for easy inspection.
- Big 84" hopper.
- Ends daily hauling. Time savings and fertilizer savings pay for investment.

Dairymen invited to PEP reproductive workshops in Md.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Phase III of Profitable and Efficient Production, a statewide educational program for dairy farmers, began recently throughout Maryland.

The 1985 winter workshops will continue through March 21, covering the northern tiers of counties from western Maryland to the Eastern Shore.

Sponsored by the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service, the PEP program was begun in 1983 to help the state's dairy farmers cope with an uncertain cost-price future.

Nutrition, or proper feeding of dairy cows, received primary emphasis in the first year of the PEP program. Maintaining and improving milk quality through mastitis control comprised the chief goal during Phase II.

This year, the goal will be to help dairy farmers put together a total reproductive management program which integrates herd health, nutrition and genetics. A first-of-its-kind manual, Dairy Integrated Reproductive Management, will be used as a text

Attendance at the 1985 winter workshops will be more limited than in previous years, reports Dr. Mark A. Varner, Extension dairy management specialist at the University of Maryland.

This year's workshops will include lectures from University of Maryland Extension specialists and panel discussions with local veterinarians. There also will be laboratory sessions where participants will actually dissect the reproductive tract of a cow.

Registration charges will be in the range of $20. to $30 for each two or three-day workshop. This cost will include a copy of the manual on Dairy Integrated Reproductive Management.

If they haven't already received a letter, interested dairy farmers should contact their local county Extension agricultural agent about attending one of the workshops.

Registration for most of the workshops is still open. Farmers are not required to attend the nearest workshop. They can opt to attend one in another area if the dates are more convenient.

Here is the workshop schedule:

Feb. 12, 20 & 27—Baltimore County; Cooperative Extension Service office at 9811 Van Buren Lane in Cockeysville, 9:30 a.m. - 2 p.m. The office is located two blocks east of the Texas fire station, off York Road (highway 45).

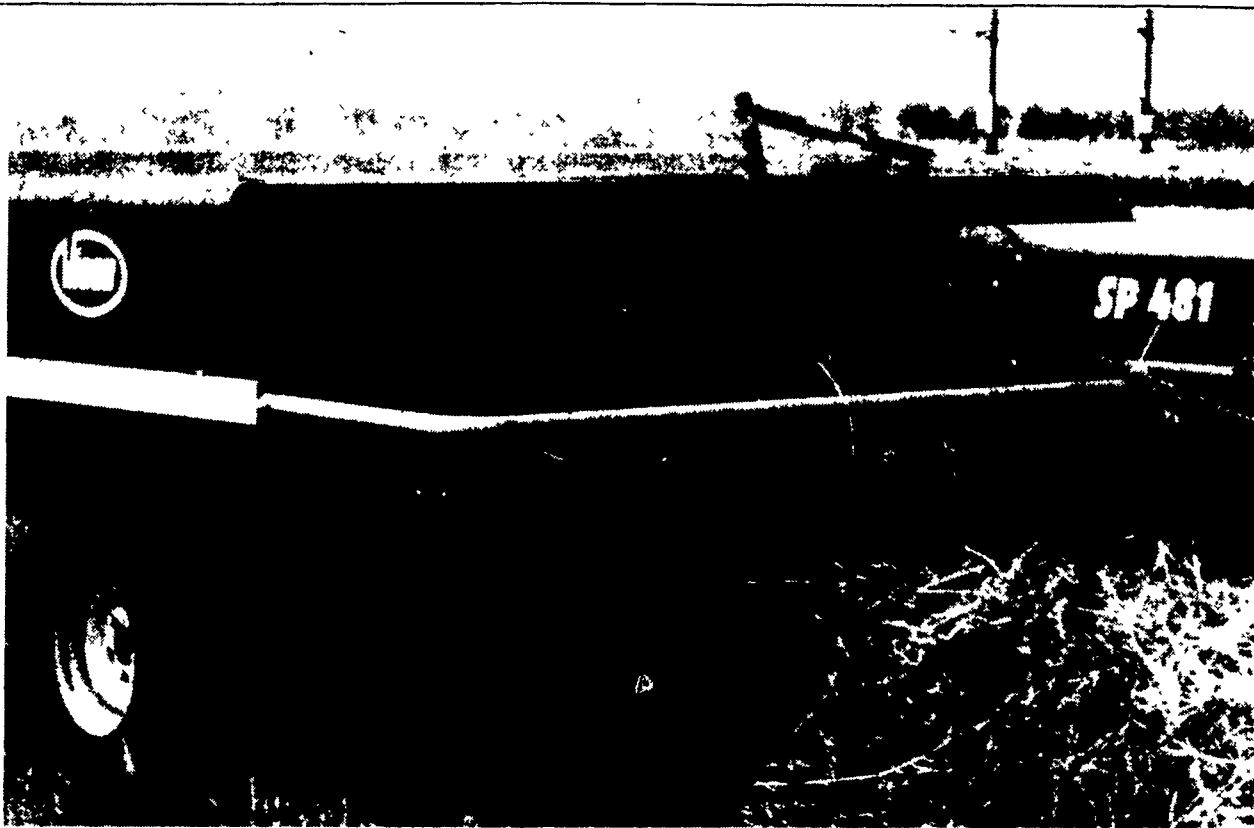

Feb. 19 & 26—Frederick County; Cooperative Extension Service office at 520 N. Market Street in Frederick, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. Follow highway 355 into downtown Frederick from either north or south.

Feb. 28, March 7 & 14—Carroll County; Cooperative Extension Service office at 700 Agriculture Center, southwest of downtown Westminster, 10 a.m. - 2 p.m. Located west of highway 32 at end of Smith Avenue.

March 5, 12 & 19—Howard County; Cooperative Extension Service office at 8306 Forrest Street, off Main Street in downtown Ellicott City, 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.

March 6, 13 & 21—Harford County; Joppa Hall at Harford Community College east of Bel Air, 10 a.m. - 2 p.m. The college is located at 401 Thomas Run Road, just off highway 22, about midway between Bel Air and Churchville.

Individual counties may schedule follow-up workshops during the next few years for dairy farmers who are not able to attend the 1985 meetings. An advanced workshop series is tentatively planned in about five years.

THE HIGHEST CAPACITY SQUARE BALERS IN THE WORLD.

No matter how many fields you have to bale, Vicon's new square balers offer a wide selection of the highest capacity square balers in the world.

A combination auger/feeder fork moves the crop evenly into the full width of the bale chamber. So you get consistent bales of even density, time after time.

And because Vicon engineers have reduced moving parts and chain drives to a minimum, you get reliable, trouble-free performance, season after season.

The satisfaction that comes from doing a good job of farming

Liming is one of the most important factors in keeping your soil in the highest productive range. A good pasture with a pH of 6.5 or higher, for example, will make 300 to 400 lbs of beef per acre and produce up to $100 gross income per acre. This means with the help of lime, profits from pastures can compare favorably with feed or grain crops.

To fight mastitis-causing bacteria and improve dairy sanitation, ask for Purina protection.

Introducing two new teat dip/udder wash combinations.

New Purina Darigard™ II is the odorless, non-iodine formulation that aids in reducing the spread of mastitis-causing bacteria. With a reduced iodine content, new Purina® Iodine .5% also protects against major mastitis-causing organisms. Or choose Puridine® the original teat dip/udder wash combination with 1% iodine.

Choose liquid or powder for dairy equipment cleaning.

Purina® Solu-Clean® is the easy way to speed cleaning of milk lines and bulk tanks. Dairy Cleaner MT is a highly soluble powder for effective cleaning even in fluctuating water temperatures.

Purina® Udder Ointment for soothing protection of chapped udders and teats.

Ask your Purina dealer for the sanitation products you need to protect dairy performance.
